FOUND TIED HAND AND FOOT IN GARDEN POTTING SHED

Kidnapped Island Woman Safe

$4,000 Ransom Demand

By TERRY IZZARD
Times Staff Reporter

An 82-year-old woman who was kidnapped from her Ladysmith home Tuesday was found alive today.

Mrs. Mary Elizabeth Knight was found tied hand and foot in a potting shed in her garden.

The grey-haired wife of a hardware store owner was found buried beneath a pile of old wood and building material at 8:35 a.m.

She was bruised and scratched but apparently suffered no other injuries, according to police.

The elderly woman was rushed to Ladysmith Hospital where her condition is fair.

SEARCH

Her discovery ended a search which was sparked when Mrs. Knight mysteriously disappeared Tuesday morning.

The search was intensified after a phone call to the Knight home on the Old Island Highway Tuesday afternoon.

A man asked to speak to the missing woman's husband, Jocelin, 85.

He demanded $4,000 in small bills for Mrs. Knight's safe return.

The caller said the money was to be ready by 4 p.m. He did not say on what day or where the money was to be delivered.

INSPECTOR CALLED IN

Immediately Inspector George M. MacKay, head of Vancouver Island RCMP detachments, was called in on the case.

A search by nearly 100 police and volunteers concentrated on the area around the Knight house.

During the afternoon searchers came upon the old potting shed about 200 yards from the house.

They glanced inside but did not see anything.

Insp. MacKay could not be sure this morning if Mrs. Knight was actually inside at the time.

LIKELY CARRIED

But it is likely Mrs. Knight was carried to the shed after being kidnapped, then buried alive beneath the pile of rubble.

The kidnappers could not have used a car to carry her to the shed which is situated in thick woodland.

Police are appealing for information concerning anyone seen in the area Tuesday.

So far they have not been able to interview Mrs. Knight to get a description of her abductors.

REST ORDERED

Her doctor has ordered a complete rest for the time being.

Mrs. Knight was discovered

MOTHER AND SON MISSING

Sheriff Killers Hunted, Pair Feared Abducted

SPRINGFIELD, Ore. (AP)—A mother and her young son were missing today, and police feared they were abducted by two killers who fatally riddled a deputy sheriff with a shotgun blast and pistol bullets late Tuesday night.

The deputy, Carlton E. Smith, 33, was killed while making his first night patrol.

The killers' car was found early today a few miles away, abandoned in southeast Springfield, some 110 miles south of Portland.

Mrs. David Corbin, 33, and her son, Clinton, 12, and the family car were missing from a home less than two blocks away.

Lights in the house and the television were on. A daughter, Bernadette, 15, said she and three other younger children in the house, heard nothing during the night.

But neither did they hear police who checked the house at 2 a.m. as part of a house-to-house search through the area near where the car was found.

The killers' car was sold in Salem Tuesday to Wilbur Marlon Grey. Police sent out a bulletin seeking him and one of his frequent companions, Karl Cletes Bowles, for questioning.

SMITH
. . . on first patrol

Both were released last week from Oregon State Prison. Grey had served a sentence for armed robbery and Bowles for breaking and entering.

Smith had reported by radio near midnight that he had stopped a 1958 sports car for a routine check. He included its licence number in his report.

Moments later his voice came over the radio again:

"Oh my God I'm shot."

He was dead when sheriff's Sgt. Howard Kerschner raced up a few minutes later.

HEAR SHOTS

The shooting took place on a county road north of Eugene. A nearby resident, Donald Tosch, and his son Robert, 20, said they heard a series of shots, then a louder blast. They ran out of their house and saw two men pushing a sports car as though to start it, then leap in and roar away.

Authorities speculated they may be the men wanted in a $13,400 armed robbery of a First National Bank branch in Portland.

Two planes were in the air at dawn, scanning the area at the edge of Springfield. A house-to-house check was made and searchers with bloodhounds took to the fields.

INTERNATIONAL PHONE LINKS DEAD

'I Dig... Where I Am Told'

SWANLEY, England (Reuters) — International telephone links were thrown into confusion Tuesday when a workman dug a hole outside Bert's Cafe here.

Derek Chaplin, 30—"Where I am told to dig, I just dig"—severed thousands of connections on the continental cable with his mechanical shovel on a drain site.

Thanks to Derek:

- Phone calls to Europe were delayed up to 10 hours.
- Eurovision's television link was put out of action.
- Early Bird satellite communications between Britain and continental Europe were cut off.
- Dozens of telephone conversations between London and the continent came to an abrupt end.

Chaplin told his foreman: "No one told me to look out for a cable."

Merchants and European embassies in London had to use telex for their messages.

The line was not expected to be fully repaired until today.

TWO NEW MEMBERS

Cardin Gets Justice Post In Shuffle

OTTAWA (CP)—Works Minister Lucien Cardin, 46-year-old American-born lawyer, took over the justice portfolio today from Guy Favreau, who resigned under the fire of the Dorion report.

★ ★ ★

Mr. Favreau, 47, remains in the cabinet as president of the Privy Council with special responsibility for federal-provincial relations. A federal-provincial summit conference opens here July 19.

In cabinet shifts involving seven portfolios, Prime Minister Pearson also announced:

Larry Pennell, 50-year-old lawyer and parliamentary secretary to Finance Minister Gordon, joins the cabinet as solicitor-general.

Another new cabinet member as minister without portfolio is Jean-Luc Pepin, 40-year-old political scientist and parliamentary secretary to Trade Minister Sharp. His special job will be to assist Transport Minister Pickersgill.

REPLACES CARDIN

Privy Council President McIlraith replaces Mr. Cardin in the works ministry. He remains as government House leader in the Commons.

Mines Minister Benidickson, 54, will leave the cabinet because of ill health and go to the Senate. He will be replaced in the mines portfolio by J. Watson MacNaught, now solicitor-general.

Mr. Pennell and Mr. Pepin said they were called only Tuesday by Mr. Pearson.

Mr. Pepin, MP for Drummond-Athabaska, said that before the call he thought he would replace the dismissed Guy Rouleau as parliamentary secretary to the prime minister.

He said his only qualification for the transport department is that his father is a retired CNR freight agent.

WELCOMES JOB

He added that he is glad to be given responsibility in the transport department because of the important railway legislation which will be introduced in the Commons.

"I also believe that French-speaking Canadians should become more interested in the economic departments of government than they have been," he said.

Mr. Pennell, MP for Brant-Haldimand, said he expects to confer with Mr. Cardin soon

'Sordid Mess'—John D.

KITCHENER, Ont. (CP) — Opposition Leader Diefenbaker said today Prime Minister Pearson's decision to name Guy Favreau president of the Privy Council only added to the "sorry, sordid mess" of the Rivard case.

He compared the affair to Britain's Profumo scandal and said retention of the former justice minister in the cabinet made the situation in Ottawa "immeasurably worse."

The Progressive Conservative leader, here on a speaking engagement, told a press conference the Privy Council presidency is a position of honor and respect.

"If he (Favreau) wasn't fit to be minister of justice, he's unfit for any other parliamentary portfolio," he said.

Mr. Diefenbaker said the prime minister's action would not have happened in any other country in the world.

"Profumo was not driven from public life because of his extramural life, but because he deceived the House of Commons. One can never agree in Parliament on the interpretation of facts, but the facts must be true," he said.

AT MONTREAL

Goons Enforce Gas Strike

MONTREAL (CP)—Ten men have been arrested in incidents resulting from a strike of gasoline retailers which has spread across Quebec province.

Members of the Gasoline Retailers Fraternity in Quebec City, Chicoutimi and the Lake St. John area now are officially in on the strike of other fraternity members in the general area of Montreal.

All are seeking higher profits, recognition of their group and other concessions from 11 gasoline companies in Quebec.

Auguste Vial, fraternity president, said any violence has been the work of persons from outside the fraternity.

Meantime the shutdown was estimated to be 90-per-cent effective in Montreal with nearly all service stations on the south shore of the St. Lawrence, the Laurentians and the Eastern Townships also reported closed.

Four of the arrests were made in Cowansville 45 miles southeast of Montreal where 40 men were held off by police as they sought to close a still-open service station.

WINDOWS BROKEN

In Montreal, five men were arrested after pumps and windows were smashed at an east-central service station. Police said the five were usually involved in any type of strike going on in the city.

Another man was taken into custody at an east-end garage on suspicion of carrying a concealed weapon.

Mr. Vial said in a statement that the companies are showing a negative attitude by not agreeing to negotiate with the fraternity.

Of the fraternity's request for recognition, a spokesman for Shell said today such recognition is impossible because the group represents "only a very small minority of Shell dealers."

ONLY FOUR OPEN

He said that of Shell's 160 dealers in Montreal, all but four are closed down.

Some 70 station owners in Quebec City and 200 in Chicou-

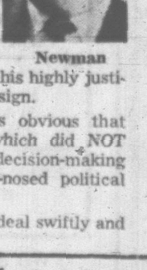
Pearson Needs To Be Hard-Nosed

LIBERALS 'BUMBLING' CLEANUP AFTER PROBE

By PETER NEWMAN

OTTAWA — In its handling of the Dorion report, the Pearson government has once again managed to make the worst of a bad situation.



Newman

It's difficult to diagnose the exact reasons why there was such a delay in the firing of Guy Rouleau and why the PM chose to keep Guy Favreau in the cabinet despite his highly justified offer to resign.

But it seems obvious that one element which did NOT go into this decision-making mix was hard-nosed political advice.

By failing to deal swiftly and ruthlessly with those directly involved, Pearson has transferred to himself and his whole administration much of the indignation which the Dorion findings have roused across the nation.

Had he ordered Rouleau out of the Liberal party more promptly and accepted Favreau's proferred resignation, Pearson could have immediately diverted the political lightning of an offended public opinion from himself to the subordinates whose behavior had been questioned by Chief Justice Dorion.

HAZARDS PRESTIGE

Instead, Pearson chose to hazard his own prestige. In the process he has placed in jeopardy the reservoir of goodwill that Canadians feel for him personally.

Most decisions taken by this government in the field of political strategy seem to be judged by the standard of bureaucratic acceptability.

The former civil servants who dominate the Pearson cabinet assess policies on the basis of what appeals to their small tight circle of equals.

The Pearson ministers dwell in a self-congratulatory cocoon, they rationalize their actions to each other and behave as if they need have no

WILSON IGNORES CRIES TO QUIT

LONDON (Reuters) — Authoritative sources confirmed today that Prime Minister Wilson's Labor government will ignore cries of "resign" that arose from Opposition members after their 1 a.m. defeat of the government early this morning.

The gleeful shouting from the Conservative Opposition came after a block of Conservative members, hidden in crannies of the building, ganged up on a lulled Labor party to win three early-morning votes.

CHICAGO—A 33-year-old carpenter who passed a long and exacting "perfect husband" test with flying colors has been reconciled with his wife, who drafted the test.

For nearly 11 months, Curt Moberg has been living with a 31-point ultimatum issued by his 29-year-old wife, Cecilia, requiring, among other things, that he "co-operate in everything and anything."

He agreed to give up all hunting and fishing trips, pay all bills on time, let his wife handle all financial matters, earn $125 or more a week for 52 weeks a year, and maintain an open-door policy for all relatives and friends.

Moberg won a year-long trial reconciliation last Aug. 12, when he agreed in court to give the test a good try.

The agreement stipulated that if he broke just one of the 31 points, "a divorce hearing will be had and all merchandise and all property will be given to Cecilia and the children (Craig, 3, and Carl, 2) without a fight.

Lawyers for the couple appeared before Judge Hyman Feldman Tuesday and announced there has been a reconciliation and divorce proceedings were being dropped. Judge Feldman dismissed the suit.

Among other conditions Moberg agreed to were:

- No arguing in front of the children.
- To be dressed properly for any occasion.
- Joint shopping for family necessities.
- Run up no personal debts.

TOLEDO, Ohio—James Porter, a patrolman less than a week, is finding that his job is getting him unhinged.

While walking his beat early Tuesday, Patrolman Porter, 25, yawned and his jaw locked open. A doctor corrected the locked jaw, and Porter returned to duty.

Several hours later, the patrolman yawned again—and sure enough he had to be taken to hospital when he was unable to close his jaw.

This time, attendants taped his mouth closed, put him on a liquid diet, and sent him home.

Exotic Cacti Flowers Possible This Year

By HILDA BEASTALL

This may be the summer to induce flowering to take place on our tropical house plants.

Hilda

Calling on memories of the hot season of 1958, when many desert cacti in pots produced their fascinating blooms for the first time here, I can remember philodendrons putting up their queer calla-like flowers in the following spring.

These we attributed to the high temperatures which built up in living-room corners where these large shade-loving tropicals usually spend their time.

The same may happen this year. In the meantime, if owners of the desert types of cacti and succulents will expose their plants to direct sun either indoors or out, they will notice an improvement in their growth, and some of them may come into flower before fall.

If in small pots, two and three-inch sizes for instance, they may need watering every other day. Do this only in the morning, so that the soil will be drier and warmed again to go through the night.

Large pots will need far less watering, since the plant roots are more extensive, and the volume of soil will not heat or dry out so rapidly. Also the plants themselves have a larger storage area of food and moisture.

One year I had unusual luck with several large opuntias and cerei blooming profusely as they stood in a large coldframe in full sun.

They certainly were eye-catchers, with the addition of heady perfume at night.

On a modern patio I can imagine guests staying late to enjoy the sight and scent of these true exotics in our northern clime.

CHARGED with perjury as a result of his testimony before the Dorion inquiry, Eddie Lechasseur, a friend of jail escapee Lucien Rivard, failed for a second day Tuesday to find backers to provide him with $10,000 bail in Montreal.

2 Survive Air Crash At Cairo

CAIRO (UPI) — A Russian-built military transport, apparently ferrying Egyptian troops to the war-torn Yemen, crashed in the desert near Cairo today shortly after takeoff.

Unofficial sources said there were 27 dead and two survivors among the 22 Egyptian military passengers and seven Russian crewmen.

There was no official confirmation of the death toll because the Egyptians threw a tight security screen around the wreckage.

Egyptian officials believed there was an explosion aboard the aircraft shortly after it left the ground, the unofficial sources said. They based the belief on the fact one engine fell several hundred yards from the rest of the wreckage.

The sources said one Russian and one Egyptian survived the crash of the four-engined Antonov-12 military transport. The Russian, identified as a tail gunner named M. Tulin, suffered minor scratches. There were no details on the Egyptian.

Officials withheld many details of the crash because the Antonov was a military plane.

Three truckloads of troops cordoned off the crash site, about five miles from where 121 persons were killed in a Pakistani Airline crash May 20.

An Egyptian officer with the troops told newsmen, "It is forbidden to stay here." He refused to say anything about the crash.

The plane was believed to have crashed on takeoff for Yemen. It struck the ground about 50 yards from the Suez Highway near Almaza Airport, east of Cairo.

Mural Studies Now on Display

More than 50 drawings and paintings constituting preliminary studies for the new Edmonton Airport mural went on [illegible] at Greater Victoria Art Gallery this week.

They are the work of ex-Victoria artist Jack Shadbolt.

Described as one of the great Canadian murals, the 36-foot long painting on the theme of the Canadian bush pilot created considerable controversy when it was first unveiled two years ago.

It is now accepted as one of Canada's major achievements in the mural field.

The exhibition follows the development of Jack Shadbolt's ideas from the first pencil studies made by artists on flights over the sub-Arctic to the completed concept.

about the handling of his new solicitor-general's portfolio.

"I am looking forward to working with him as a team. I am very pleased to be going into this portfolio because I will be more closely associated with my first love—the law."

He said that as a lawyer he is in favor of the abolition of the death penalty with certain clarifications concerning the detention of convicted murderers. Until he conferred with Mr. Cardin he wouldn't know what role he would play in guiding the capital punishment legislation through the Commons.

When Mr. Benidickson, a Commons member for 20 years for Kenora-Rainy River, and Mr. Rouleau resign, the Commons standing will be: Liberals 127, Conservatives 93, New Democrats 18, Creditistes 13, Social Credit nine, independent two, vacant three—total 265.

ANNOUNCES RESIGNATION

Mr. Pearson announced Tuesday that Mr. Rouleau, MP for Montreal Dollard, will resign for his part in the attempts to free narcotics trafficker Lucien Rivard on bail.

One Commons vacancy — Digby - Annapolis - Kings — already exists as a result of the death of Conservative George Nowlan.

Mr. Cardin was born at Providence, R.I., and came to Canada at the age of 12. He served on corvettes in the Canadian navy during the Second World War.

He has represented the Quebec riding of Richelieu-Vercheres since 1952. He joined the cabinet in 1963 as associate defence minister, later replacing Jean-Paul Deschatelets in the works portfolio when the latter resigned for personal reasons.

Mr. Pennell is a native of Brantford and served in the RCAF during the Second World War. He was first elected to the Commons in 1962 and was appointed parliamentary secretary to Mr. Gordon a year ago.

STUDIED IN PARIS

Mr. Pepin, a native of Drummondville, Que., is a graduate in law and philosophy from the University of Ottawa. He also is a graduate of the Political Science School of Paris.

Before his election to the Commons in 1963, he taught political science at the University of Ottawa and was a political commentator. He has been parliamentary secretary to Mr. Sharp since the Liberals took office in April, 1963.

The prime minister said the transport department has some complex legislation to deal with and that steps must be taken to transfer part of the vast department to another minister.

Mr. Pearson said this might eventually involve the creation of an associate transport ministry.

The prime minister said without elaboration that there will be other appointments to the Senate before long.

He also said he hopes to have "very shortly" the recommendations of the justice department on what charges, if any, should be laid as a result of the Dorion report.

He said he considers this a matter of "great urgency."

He also mentioned that the subject of combatting organized crime is on the agenda of the federal - provincial conference later this month.

particular concern about public reaction.

This tendency has repeatedly led the government into embarrassing pratfalls which might have been avoided had Pearson managed to achieve any resonance with the tides of public opinion.

TYPICAL EXAMPLE

The Favreau compromise is a typical example.

Inside the cabinet and even within the walls of the Liberal caucus, Favreau's retention can be meticulously rationalized and made politically acceptable.

But to the country at large, it looks at best like a piece of political bumbling at worst, like a display or arrogant over-confidence.

In making his decision, Pearson assumed the role in which he feels most comfortable: that of the honest broker between the various points of view of in-group opinion.

No political strategists were consulted on the final decision to let Favreau stay and apparently no heed is being paid to the sense of public outrage which is reflected in the editorial pages of nearly every Canadian newspaper.

This week's expected cabinet shuffle can go only part of the way in restoring public confidence, because it has all the appearance of a forced retreat.

"It is one of the sure signs of an able prime minister," concluded Macgregor Dawson, foremost scholar of Canadian politics, "that he will have the courage and toughness to get rid of men who have ceased to be assets."

One Ottawa political veteran, who was active during the Mackenzie King regime, has compared how King would have reacted to the Dorion report: "King would have called in whoever was responsible for the Quebec machine and said, 'Get these people out of the Liberal party by tomorrow morning. I want their resignations on my desk by 10 o'clock.'

"King would then have mounted a white charger, dissolved the House and swept the country. The trouble with Pearson is that he has no political style and no real ability to take the public pulse."

At the present time, Pearson's position is immeasurably strengthened by the political paralysis and frustration of voters with the rudderless Conservative alternative.

But that situation can't go on forever; sooner or later the Liberals are going to have to meet the challenge of the public's growing desire for dynamic leadership.

If they can't provide it, a Conservative party with a new chief could make a dramatic appeal to the Canadian imagination.

PRICE PROBE REQUESTED BY DOUGLAS

OTTAWA (CP)—New Democratic Leader Douglas said today in a statement the latest increase in the consumer price index should prod the government into investigating the underlying causes of price increases.

"Are these increases justified or are they the result of market manipulation by those with an inordinate greed for more profits?" he asked.

He said Finance Minister Gordon should "stop playing the ostrich" and start investigating.

"Mr. Gordon has a duty to order a full-scale investigation and to take appropriate action before the situation gets out of hand."

tions with playgirl Christine Keeler).

Mr. Diefenbaker said he was not impressed with the appointment of Lucien Cardin as minister of justice because he said Mr. Cardin didn't make much of an impression on anyone.

The Conservative leader expressed general satisfaction on other appointments announced in Ottawa today.

He had particular praise for Larry Pennell, the new solicitor-general, describing him as a "very fine man," and for William Benedickson, the mines minister who is leaving the cabinet to become a senator, whom he called a "very estimable gentleman."

He also said that Jean-Luc Pepin, named minister without portfolio, had "done very well in the House."

NDP Leader Douglas today described Prime Minister Pearson's cabinet changes as minimal but approved the appointment of Guy Favreau to handle federal-provincial relations.

Mr. Douglas said in an interview he had hoped the prime minister would undertake a more extensive overhaul of his ministry by moving more "aggressive and progressive" MPs to the front benches.

He said Mr. Favreau, who resigned last week as justice minister in wake of the Dorion report, had been put into "a good slot."

As Privy Council president he would have little responsibility for administration, and could use his abilities as a conciliator and ngeotiator in dealing with Quebec and other provincial governments.

Mr. Douglas said he was not opposed to Mr. Favreau remaining in the government as long as he was not running a department. He said this was necessary because the Dorion report had questioned Mr. Favreau's ministerial discretion.

Girls Stampedin' In Old Corral

CALGARY (CP) — Some 100 policemen were on hand to control 7,000 screaming 'een-agers, mostly girls, who attended afternoon and evening performances of the Dave Clark Five, a British rock-and-roll group, during a one-night stand at the Calgary Stampede corral building Tuesday.

Some girls in front rows tried to breakk through a cordon of policemen ringing the stage during the afternoon performance but were unsuccessful.

Front-row seats were removed for the evening performance and the audience warned that if there were any movement toward the stage, the lights would go on and the show would be over.

One fan flung herself at the group's car when they left at the end of their evening show. She slumped to the sidewalk in tears and resisted attempts by police to help her up.

Screaming during the performance was deafening at times as crying, near-hysterical youngsters watched their idols.

timi and Lake St. John, 100 miles north, voted to strike starting today.

Motorists crowded around stations still open in the strike-bound areas. Sometimes they used buckets to cart away stocks of fuel in case of a prolonged shutdown.

There was no staying open for individualists who defied the operators' decision to strike. At some stations, 50 or so cars would pull up, each demanding 25 cents in gas.

Then they ordered the attendant to clean the windows, check the oil, battery, windshield wipers, tires and then hand him a $50 bill for the purchase. After three or four cars the station operators had neither the change nor enthusiasm to stay open.

Whatever enthusiasm remained, the "goon squads" took care of. At some stations, as many as 25 husky men would walk into the lot, tell the owner in no uncertain terms that he should close and "lend support" to the cause. One man who didn't got his gas hoses cut and his pumps smashed.

At one station, a group of men marched onto a lot open for service. The owner took a quick look at them, locked the front door and calmly drove off in his car.

Attack on Missiles Johnson's Decision

By FRED S. HOFFMAN

WASHINGTON (AP)—Any decision on whether the United States should try to knock out anti-aircraft missile sites being prepared near North Viet Nam's capital and its chief port will be up to President Johnson, sources said today.

A key question affecting any such decision is whether the United States intends to bomb Hanoi, the capital, and Haiphong, the vital port.

So far, U.S. bombers have struck no closer than 40 miles from Hanoi and have kept well away from Haiphong.

For about two months, U.S. reconnaissance planes have maintained a close watch on the progress of several sites being prepared for anti-aircraft missiles to defend the Hanoi-Haiphong area.

The state department reported Tuesday that work on two of the sites is virtually complete and two other sites have reached an advanced stage. This is one more site than previously reported.

There is no evidence that any of the surface-to-air missiles have yet been placed in firing position there, the department said.

In late April, Defence Secretary Robert McNamara said it should be assumed that the missile sites will become combat-ready and that "we are . . . planning" accordingly.

COULD BE COSTLY

Any attempt to smash the missile sites could be costly, because the North Vietnamese are believed to have concentrated radar-directed, anti-aircraft gun batteries in the Hanoi-Haiphong region, centre of the country's industry.

The North Vietnamese also could be expected to commit their force of some 50 older-model MiG jets, now based at fields near Hanoi, to counter any attack.

There are reports that modern MiG-21 jets may appear soon in North Viet Nam. These planes probably could battle the best U.S. craft on roughly equal terms.

The Russian-made surface-to-air missiles have a range of about 35 miles at a slant. They can streak up to an altitude of about 80,000 feet—high enough to hit even the Americans' B-52 intercontinental bomber.

The United States has only one anti-aircraft missile unit in South Viet Nam, a marine battalion of Hawk missiles deployed to defend the Da Nang air base.

The air threat from the north is considered slight, unless China should get into the war directly.

This threat is represented mainly by a handful of aging IL-28 jet bombers, which have been seen on North Vietnamese fields but which so far have not ventured to the south.

LESAGE SAYS

P.Q. Assuming Eskimo Control

QUEBEC CITY (UPI)—Premier Jean Lesage said Wednesday night the federal government has agreed to gradually transfer its jurisdiction over Quebec Eskimos to the province.

Lesage said he and Prime Minister Pearson have settled the controversial dispute which last year at this time iced relations between Quebec and Ottawa, both claiming the right to administer the affairs of Quebec's 3,000 Eskimos.

At an informal press conference, Lesage said the province eventually would take over complete jurisdiction of Eskimo affairs "in stages" and in a "pragmatic way."

He said the agreement followed an exchange of "numerous letters" with Pearson and series of meetings.

Lesage indicated the final decision was taken at a meeting in Montreal in May.

"There was an understanding we would go ahead by stages and that is what we are doing," Lesage told newsmen after the Quebec legislature adjourned for the night.

At Ottawa, authorities said at least 95 per cent of the 2,500 Eskimos living in Quebec are English-speaking Protestants.

NATIVES OPPOSED

About two years ago both the Eskimos and Indians in northern Quebec opposed transfer of their affairs to Quebec jurisdiction.

Lesage was broached on the subject after newsmen questioned him about a school for Eskimos the province is erecting at Fort Chico, in northern Quebec.

Lesage said the school was "one stage" in the step-by-step assumption by Quebec of control over Eskimo affairs. The school was "proof the steps are being taken."

The two main protaganists in the jurisdictional squabble—Northern Affairs Minister Arthur Laing and Quebec Resources Minister Rene Levesque—broke off negotiations last year. Laing later met with Lesage here, but no agreement had been announced.

The Eskimo question was reborn in the legislature last night during a long, debate on construction of the Fort Chico school.

The boarding school initially will offer classes in Eskimo for Eskimo and in French for French-speaking residents of the area.

The confessionality of the school was not made clear. Most Eskimos were proselytized into the Anglican faith by English-speaking missionaries, while a handful were joined to the Catholic religion by the Oblate Order.

BOMB ROCKS OFFICES IN CHICAGO

CHICAGO (UPI)—A powerful bomb exploded on the sidewalk outside the Masonite Building just off Chicago's Loop early today, shattering glass a block away and rocking office buildings two blocks away.

Damage was estimated at more than $200,000, much of it to expensive calculating equipment. There were no injuries.

Police bomb and arson detectives investigated.

John J. Angus, manager of Friden Inc's midwest office, which occupies the ground floor of the 10-storey, 3-year-old structure, said he had no explanation for the bombing. Friden manufactures office equipment.

Right Wing Group Will Not Be Secret

PHOENIX, Ariz. (AP)—The president of the newly formed Free Society Association said Tuesday his group will differ from the John Birch Society "in many respects."

Denison Kitchel said two of the main differences will be that the association will not be secret and will not have a monolithic administration.

Kitchel said that there will be some similarity in the publications put out by both societies.

Honorary chairman of the association is Barry Goldwater, Republican presidential candidate last fall.

Kitchel insisted the main object of the association will be to mold the existing political parties along conservative lines, and said it will not be likely to lead to a third party.

Kitchel is a Phoenix and Washington attorney who served as campaign manager for Goldwater in the presidential election.

EMBEZZLING CHARGE

Dr. King Defends Accused Minister

SELMA, Ala. (AP) — Civil rights leaders have rallied to the support of one of their number, Rev. Frederick D. Reese of Selma, who is charged with embezzling $1,850 from the organization that he heads.

Reese, a lieutenant of Martin Luther King in the Alabama civil rights campaign, was indicted Tuesday on three charges of embezzling from the Dallas County Voters League, a key organization in the lengthy civil rights drive in Selma and Dallas county earlier this year.

Rev. Ralph Abernathy, vice-president of King's Southern Christian Leadership Conference, flew into Selma Tuesday night with other leaders assigned by King to investigate the charges made against the Negro minister.

Before flying back to Atlanta, Abernathy announced the full support of the organization for Reese before a cheering crowd at Brown's Chapel (African Methodist Episcopal), a centre of the Selma civil rights drive.

King swiftly jumped to Reese's defence after news of the indictments reached him.

"At this time, we have no reason to doubt either the interest or the integrity of the Rev. Mr. Reese or any of the Dallas County leadership," he said.

"However, in order to emphasize our interest in fair play an justice, SCLC will immediately launch an investigation into allegations made against Mr. Reese and any other members of the organization.

'JUSTICE BIASED'

"The public should be made cognizant that these charges were made in an area where justice traditionally has been biased against Negroes, and too often just consideration under law has to be sought in federal court."

Selma Mayor Joe Smitherman and Safety Director Wilson Baker said at a press conference after Reese's indictment that the investigation was begun only after Negro civil rights workers complained.

The grand jury, called into special session by circuit Judge James Hare, turned in one indictment for each of three cheques alleged to have been written on an account Reese is said by Baker to have established in Montgomery. The cheques were for $1,500, $133, and $217 respectively.

Baker said it is possible that more accounts and more people are involved.

Smitherman said there is evidence that food and clothing contributed to the civil rights movement are being sold in rural areas of Dallas County.

Baker said he began his investigation when Negro leaders filed a complaint against William Ezra Greer, a civil rights leader in Selma.

The investigation turned up no evidence against Greer, Baker said, but did against Reese.

In Case Of Fire 'Crash'

SUDBURY, Ont. (CP) — Members of nearby Dowling Township's 21-man volunteer fire brigade will continue to break a window to enter the fire station in emergencies.

Township councillors have decided this is a quicker, less complicated way of entering the station than giving the firemen keys to the door.

Councillors said Tuesday they were afraid keys would be lost as soon as they are issued.

Reeve John Schneider instructed the fire chief to have two spare panes of glass on hand at all times.

"We want to make sure no unauthorized person gets into the fire hall after the glass is broken," the reeve explained.

First Concert At Cathedral Starts Saturday

A series of noon-hour concerts will begin in Christ Church Cathedral Saturday at 12:15 p.m.

Popular organ classics will be featured and the first recital will be given by Geoffrey Thornburn, assistant cathedral organist. He will play Purcell's Trumpet Air and Mozart's F Minor Fantasia.

There will be no tickets or admission charges, but a collection to cover expenses will be taken.

Future recitalists will be David Palmer of the University of Michigan; Lynne Dougan of Shawnigan Lake, winner of a music festival award for the organ; Alastair Highet of Nanaimo; Suzanne Gibson, recitalist for the CBC; and Richard Proudman, the cathedral's organist and choirmaster.

CALLAGHAN
. . . under fire

U.K. Tories Bristle At Attack

LONDON (UPI) — Chancellor of the Exchequer James Callaghan withdrew under fire from the House of Commons chamber Tuesday, charged with overstepping the bounds of decency in a weekend speech.

The house voted 254-248 to refer tse fuss to the committee of privileges which could reprimand, jail or expel the minister from parliament.

But informed sources said the committee most likely would recommend no action at all for Laborite Callaghan's biting attack on Conservative party members—leaving Prime Minister Wilson's slim parliamentary majority of four unimpaired.

Calaghan stirred the ire of Conservatives during a speech at Swansea, Wales, when he said he did not look at Certain tories and consider them "the honorable member for X, Y, and Z."

"I look at them and say 'investment trusts,' 'capital speculators,' or 'that fellow who is the stock exchange man who makes profits on gilt edge.'"

That swipe made a gaggle of Conservative party members hopping mad.

Labor Charges Tory Trickery

LONDON (Reuters)—Britain's Labor government suffered three humiliating but not fatal voting defeats during a finance bill debate in the House of Commons early today.

The government immediately charged trickery, saying some opposition Conservative party members had lulled Labor members into thinking they had gone home, then rushed back to the half-empty House and forced a vote while they had the edge in members present.

The government, which has a four-vote majority when the 630-seat House is full, lost twice by 13 and once by 14 votes.

The government was caught unawares by the attack, launched after 1 a.m. during one of the many all-night sittings on the lengthy finance bill which is aimed at putting the April budget proposals into effect.

Conservatives shouted "resign, resign," as they called the snap votes and stung the government with three straight defeats.

But political observers said the defeats, although a setback to Prime Minister Wilson's government, in office only since last October, do not mean its resignation or an early general election.

'AFFAIR WAS PLOTTED'

The Laborites charged that Conservatives had plotted the whole affair. They said a group of Tories left the House about midnight as though to go home. Seeing this, some Labor members also left the late sitting.

However, the Conservatives were actually hiding in offices and nearby apartments. At a pre-arranged time, they trooped back into the House, surprising the socialists and upsetting the carefully arranged balance of power.

As the Tories returned, one of their members moved an amendment that inserted a new clause protecting holders of unit trust and investment trusts, similar to mutual funds in North America, from the capital gains tax.

In successive voting, the government was decisively beaten. The figures: Opposition 180, government 166; opposition 180, government 167.

The socialists then sought to continue the debate, but were again defeated, by 13 votes, when the opposition forced an adjournment.

Tories greeted the votes with roars of triumph and taunted the government members with cries of "out, out."

Edward Heath, Opposition financial spokesman, said: "The lesson for the government is plain. It should resign and resign quickly, and the country can then pass its verdict upon you."

James Callaghan, chancellor of the exchequer, replied: "The score of government victories now is 93 to two. That is not a bad tally."

The Labor government has been defeated once before in the House of Commons—but not so severely.

THE FINAL ENUNCIATION OF Mr. Khrushchev's international policy called for peaceful competition with the West rather than war. But there was an exception. He said that where peoples without their full independence rebelled in order to win it, Russia would help them with their fight.

Mr. Khrushchev has been removed from the scene in Moscow, but his successors have said that they would continue the policy which he had announced, and apparently they are following this course. The reluctance and delay with which the Soviet Union is providing help to the Communist elements in Viet Nam are therefore particularly interesting. Either Moscow does not recognize the South Viet Nam struggle as a legitimate revolution of the people fighting for their rights, or it has decided to suspend implementation of the assistance clause in its international policy for reasons peculiar to this particular case.

The reason for the latter course — if this correctly describes the situation—appears to be Red China. Russia is obliged to protect the proper pro-Communist image: it cannot appear to be less concerned than Peking. But it knows that the Viet Nam game is a Chinese game, that Peking is ambitious to extend its power throughout southeast Asia, and that any Communist gains in South Viet Nam will inevitably be to the advantage of Red China—and Red China today is much more a rival of Russia than an ally.

This would explain Moscow's dispatch of only minor assistance so far — the latest apparently some anti-aircraft missiles for use only in the defence of Hanoi—as well as its soft rejection of Commonwealth mediation efforts with the advice to urge negotiations on the active participants rather than the onlookers. And there remains the basic fact, of course, that Russia does not want to be dragged into a major armed confrontation with the United States over Viet Nam—with or without Red Chinese involvement.

There is another factor in the Viet Nam situation that is becoming clearer each day, and the Commonwealth proposal was the latest manifestation of it. The fact is that almost every country in the world is becoming engaged, in one way or another, in the Viet Nam problem. NATO, SEATO, the Commonwealth premiers, the Afro-Asian conference members, the United Nations — all these groups have concerned themselves in Viet Nam either with advice, offers to foster peace, denunciations or other reactions.

In other words, there is a very large element of public opinion — world opinion — involved in the situation, and the participants must manoeuvre with one eye on what the observing nations will think of their conduct.

This is particularly the case regarding Afro-Asian reaction. The emerging countries are watching the East-West struggle with vital interest. They want to know who is going to win, they want to know which system — free enterprise, socialist, communist—or parts of it will be best suited to their needs, and they want to drive the best bargain they can in an ideologically divided world where the opposed nations are anxious to win the support of neutrals.

The Viet Nam theatre is therefore a wide one; its implications extend far beyond southeast Asia. As never before, this is a conflict which is an observation ground for the rest of the world, and the judgments of the observers are not being formed only on the military aspect of the struggle, but also on its moral, political, ideological and economic ramifications.

Above all, the Viet Nam struggle is being viewed as an indication of the future behavior of the major participants. The rice paddies and the jungles are a testing ground in more ways than one.

'I Know How to Live In Jail'

A WINNIPEG MAGISTRATE, moved to compassion by the story of a 26-year-old man who appeared before him, has found the accused a home and is sponsoring an attempt to give him a new start in life.

The record shows that of those 26 years, 12 have been spent in prison—and the charge on which the man was last arrested came two days after his release from Stony Mountain penitentiary.

He told the court: "I steal because I have no home, no job and nobody to turn to. I know how to live in jail, but I don't know how to live in the world."

This is a pathetic confession that might be repeated in many instances across Canada as in other countries. The simple statistics of conviction and sentence are deeply revealing. A human being now 26, to have spent 12 years in prison, must have started his career of misdemeanors when he was 14 or younger.

In other words, this was the young delinquent of less than a score of years ago. He has many parallels — boys who drifted into trouble at an early age and graduated to the more serious category of crimes.

The reclamation efforts of the magistrate could yield benefits to the man in question, and to society by relieving it of the burden of a person who believed he had no other way of subsisting than by stealing. Reformation has been effected in such cases, though the averages are not impressive.

But what seems to be disclosed so glaringly in the Winnipeg case is the significance of failure in treatment of a juvenile. A child of 14 started on a recurring prison existence. Long before that, some circumstances conditioned the boy to commit his early offences.

If there is a moral in the story, it is that effective prevention starts long before a man becomes a repetitious violator of the law—perhaps long before he is a boy of 14. Which lends added emphasis to the point made repeatedly by welfare groups, that the time to help the potentially wayward is while they are still small children.

The Bader Example

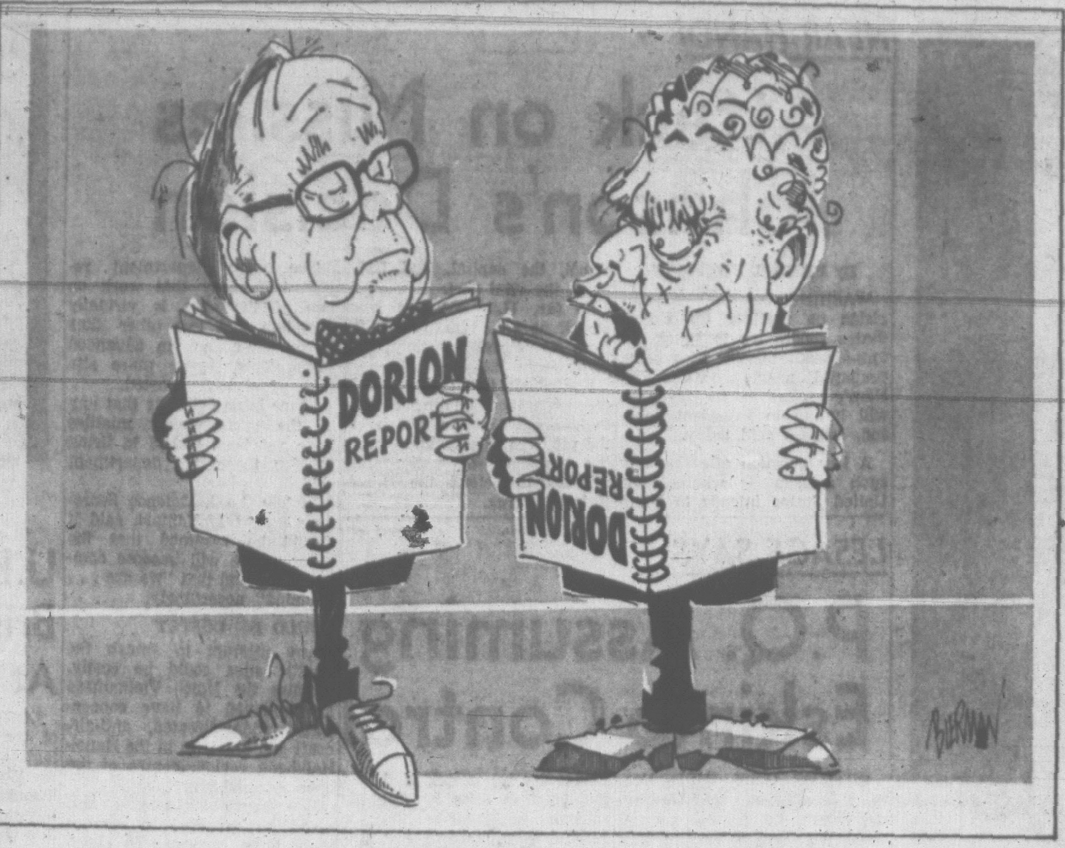
WESTERN CANADIAN Esteem for Douglas Bader, who refused to let the loss of his legs prevent active service to his country, is renewed by the visit the distinguished British fighter pilot made the other day to a young man in Vancouver.

The call was paid by Bader to offer encouragement to the victim of a helicopter accident in northern British Columbia who has also lost both legs.

"Compared to the handicaps some people I have met have overcome, mine was only a slight inconvenience," the renowned airman remarked.

It is to be hoped that the young Vancouver man will find inspiration from the chat, encouraging recuperation and his determination to overcome his disabilities.

The rest of us who believe we have problems might profitably think of Douglas Bader and recall an old saying which begins: "I cried because I had no shoes . . ."



"... I have an entirely different view of it ...!"

—Bierman, The Victoria Daily Times.

THE LONDON CONFERENCE

By MARTIN DEWEY

The Tough Thread of Consensus

THE Comonwealth hangs on the thread of consensus, it is said. But if the recent prime ministers' conference did nothing else, it demonstrated that the thread is tougher than it looks. During eight days of high-level politicking, it became tangled in a maze of conflicting interests, and emerged dangerously frayed by the sharp edges of controversy. But once again — almost miraculously, this time— it managed to support the weight of the final conference communique.

Dewey

More than once the thread appeared ready to snap. On Rhodesia, for example, several African delegates insisted throughout the conference that they would not endorse the communique if Britain did not name an early date for a constitutional conference.

Disagreement Disguised

The section of the communique dealing with the Viet Nam peace mission proposal also disguised abrasive, fundamental disagreement about the Commonwealth's role in the world. Here, as on Rhodesia, the final consensus rested more heavily on an unwillingness to fight in public than on any real agreement among the delegates.

The pivotal figure in both major issues was, of course, Prime Minister Harold Wilson. On Rhodesia, he went into the conference determined to hammer through the very result that the African leaders were then vowing never to accept—that is, that Britain would remain entirely free to deal as she sees fit with Rhodesia's white minority government. The fact he achieved his objective and that "the most explosive issue of the conference" never exploded must be counted a personal victory for the British prime minister. True, he gave some ground when he allowed the Commonwealth relations secretary, Mr. Arthur Bottomley, to endorse the principle of majority rule for an independent Rhodesia. But it was not much ground.

Cards on the Table

It meant little more, in fact, than publicly endorsing a principle which presumably reflects Mr. Wilson's private convictions and which certainly reflects the convictions of his party. It was concession only in that it forced the prime minister to lay his cards on the table at a moment when it would have been more prudent to play closer to the chest.

To be sure, some of the delegates hailed Mr. Bottomley's assurances as a major advance in the British position. But then the Africans, at least could not very well return home with nothing to show for their pre-conference promises to force Britain's hand.

The truth is that the situation is virtually the same as it was at the end of last year's conference. Then, Sir Alec Douglas-Home insisted that the problem was Britain's alone, but promised "to take note" of the delegates' views. This year, Mr. Wilson reiterated Sir Alec's position, but promised "to take account" of those views. The only difference was that this time the Africans were permitted the luxury of listing their views in the final communique.

Averted Explosion

Mr. Wilson's achievement was not that he retained Britain's freedom of action—which he was constitutionally obliged to do at any rate—but that he also managed to convince the Africans of his government's good intentions and thereby averted the much-feared explosion.

Time alone will prove whether he was able to do so without unduly provoking the Rhodesian government.

But if Mr. Wilson must be given full marks for steering the conference away from the brink of breakdown on Rhodesia, he must also bear the blame for wantonly and bull-headedly pushing it towards the brink on the Vietnamese issue. With the best will in the world, it is hard to find anything good to say about his peace mission proposal, either in its conception, handling or result.

Even Mr. Wilson's motives are open to question. If his first thought had been for world peace, why did he place the idea before the conference as an all-in package with himself as mission chairman? Why was he completely unwilling to step down when it became clear that his participation was a handicap, to the delegates as much as to the Communists? One can only conclude that the success of the mission was not the all-important consideration. The mission must get on the road—but it must get on the road with Mr. Wilson perched on top.

Moreover, if he truly believed that the mission's value was a mirror of the collective will of the Commonwealth, why was he afraid to test that will? Why, in other words, did he insist that the delegates endorse the proposal and put out a communique only four hours after they first heard of it? At the very least, he was guilty of trying to send the mission on its way with bogus credentials.

Peace Mission Gesture

To round out the indictment, Mr. Wilson can reasonably be charged with treating the peace mission as an end in itself. Its chances of breaking the Viet Nam deadlock would have been pitifully slim even if it had been accorded the full benefits of prior diplomatic spade work. But not a single feeler was put out to test the reaction of the Communist world before the conference, at a time when Mr. Wilson could have made some adjustments without risking the proposal.

Moreover, Mr. Wilson insisted that the peace mission be given the full treatment in the final communique even though he, along with everyone else, knew that it had been rejected in all the Communist capitals. Here again, one can only conclude that getting the proposal into the communique was the important thing and never mind what happened after that.

Peking was certainly wide of the mark when it charged the British prime minister with manipulating the Commonwealth conference to serve Washington's needs. But Mr. Wilson will not easily escape the charge that he manipulated the conference to serve his own needs.

PLUS CA CHANGE . . .

In a way, it is inexact to talk about The Commonwealth, as if it were one solid monolithic unchanging bloc, because that's precisely what it is not. If there's one thing that can be confidently predicted about the Commonwealth grouping of nations, it is that it will be different next year from what it is now. Change and development are two of its outstanding characteristics.

COMPETITIVE PLAY

Rival Communist Bids in Africa

WHETHER or not the Chinese have actually offered $200 million to finance the projected "Zam-Tan" railway, it would be the most natural thing in the world if they were to do so. The postponement of the Algiers conference in the teeth of the most powerful and openly displayed Chinese pressure was such a major diplomatic defeat that Peking is bound to think up some device to distract attention from that failure.

There was a time, only a few years ago, when Africa was a theatre for the straight conflict between East and West, with the Soviet Union representing the East. It was five years ago, in 1960, that the Russians seemed most confident. Africa was swarming with ambitions and the honest toil of Professor Potekhin, Moscow's great African expert, seemed to be coming to fruition.

But then the Russians made the discovery that there are many different kinds of Africans and that different peoples call for different approaches. The events of 1961, when they were smartly bundled out of the Congo, confirmed the lesson. They retired to think again.

In that year, too, although what was going on was not fully realized at the time, the Chinese opened their counter-Russian operations in Africa. One of the earliest skirmishes in what proved to be a major campaign was the widely-publicized grant of a $25 million credit to Guinea, interest free, and repayable between 1970 and 1980 — a demonstrative attempt to outbid Russian's normal terms of 2½ per cent interest on loans repayable in 12 years.

Sino-Soviet Conflict

Since then Africa has become the scene of major operations in the cold war between China and Russia. For some time China did rather well: she was at first far more tactful than Moscow and showed a keener appreciation of the differing problems of the many African nations. She was also much quicker on the draw in support of revolutionary movements—e.g. in Algeria. This helped in some places to make up for the fact that she could offer far less material help than the Russians.

But China's enthusiasm for revolution soon began to disturb many new African leaders, more or less unaligned, who had themselves come to represent the status quo. They had had their revolutions in throwing off the shackles of colonialism; they wanted no more.

The difficulties of the Chinese in persuading non-Communist governments that they were interested in their welfare and not in their overthrow greatly increased with the heating up of the Sino-Russian conflict. China's vaunted ideological purity did not stop her from giving aid to anti-Communist governments, so long as they denounced imperialism.

Thus, for example, at the end of last year, Peking promised to supply nearly $90 million worth of material to the United Arab Republic. This was a drop in the bucket compared with the immense credits provided by the Soviet Union. But it was enough to make people ask how the Chinese could pretend to be less cynical than the Russians if they actively supported a government which was categorically anti-Communist? It could only mean that their support was no more than a tactical move in the East-West conflict.

Playing Both Ends

This realization in no way hinders the UAR, or any other African nation, from taking what it can safely get from China, as from Russia. It does, however, prevent them from accepting Chinese assertions of good-will at their face value. And, during the past year, African annoyance with Peking has been inflamed by the way in which the Chinese on every possible occasion have sought to embroil non-aligned and non-interested states in their struggle with Russia. The blatant intriguing against Russian participation in the ill-fated Algiers conference was only one example of this.

Other, obscurer tensions are arising in Africa—this time between the Communist countries of East Europe on the one hand and both Russia and China on the other. The Russian and Chinese interest in Africa is entirely political—the activities of Moscow and Peking are part of "the great game." But for certain East European countries — Poland and Czechoslovakia; Hungary and Bulgaria, too, to say nothing of Yugoslavia outside the bloc — trade with Africa has genuine economic importance.

African Trade Unnecessary

Russia does not need trade with Africa, nor does China. China can barely afford the small amount of material aid she is granting Africa; Russia has to think twice, now that the Kremlin is committed to appeasing the Soviet consumer, but she can still afford a good deal.

Certain East European countries, on the other hand, are building up African connections which have nothing to do with politics and everything to do with their own economic future. These do not want to see their relations with newly-independent countries jeopardized by the blatant political manoeuvrings of the two great Communist powers.

Thus the forces at work are intricate in the extreme.

From The Times of July 7, 1890:

Wellington: Summonses to evict striking coal miners from company-owned homes here have been issued. But it was learned that the miners intend to vacate their dwellings without making any disturbance. Numerous tents have been provided for the emergency and more are on their way from Seattle. Both the owners and miners are determined not to give in and the strike is expected to be prolonged.

GUATEMALA

Tinder for The Match

By CHARLES BARTLETT

COL. ENRIQUE PERALTA, a dour figure in khaki, walked slowly to the front of the balcony of the Presidential Palace. The cannons boomed a salute across the plaza. The band played the national anthem. The flags fluttered in the evening breeze but none of the citizens in the small crowd cheered.

Peralta, now 27 months in a presidency which he seized to frustrate the left wing, could not have been startled by this fresh evidence of his unpopularity. Every aspect of his regime reflects the unease of a man who does not expect to be able to hang on much longer.

His nervousness is betrayed by the jet fighters which buzz the city at intervals during the day, by the ubiquitous soldiers with submachine guns slung from their shoulders, by the censor in the cable office and the restrained tone of the press, and by the whispered suspicions that political arrests are taking place. Peralta's need to remind the people of his power has given his country many of the aspects of a police state.

"Peralta has given us two years of stability and we've enjoyed them because they've been prosperous," said one of the leading businessmen. "We've had a holiday from the agitators but we know it will end soon because the ferment is bottled up and it must explode at some point. The longer it waits, the worse the explosion will probably be."

The political plight of Peralta and Guatemala is not deeply significant in world terms. He may be ousted shortly by one of his fellow colonels. There will be a crisis, the left wing will try to spark an uprising and be thwarted, a new holding operation will be installed, and Guatemala will move along its bumpy road toward political maturity.

Military No Answer

However Peralta's plight does explain why the military are less and less of an answer to the deepening complexities of South American political life. Their inadequacies are important because the colonels are expected to be more politically active than ever in the wake of the Dominican intervention. Only the most dogmatic liberals argue that President Johnson could have avoided the intervention but many suspect that an unhappy consequence of the policy will be to encourage right wing solutions to political problems.

Peralta is not an evil man like Trujillo and he has not, as far as anyone knows, enriched himself. But he made the critical mistake of silencing his opposition, a step which bought calm at the price of isolating the government from popular sentiment. This total lack of communication between classes as well as between the cities and the countryside is one of the grievous failings of these societies. By cutting all the lines, Peralta has made himself a prisoner of forces which he cannot accurately assess.

His minister of health has sealed off the poor section of Guatemala City, where over 100,000 persons live in miserable, unsanitary conditions. Even the Peace Corps is not permitted to work in the wretched barrios, which spawn the terrorists who rock the city with sporadic violence.

But the point is that Peralta has failed to supply answers, or even partial answers, to this and the other fundamental problems of Guatemala. His government builds new classrooms but fails to train teachers. His officials draft programs but everyone knows that the programs are meaningless. His administration has no ideology and no direction except to avoid the extremes.

Since Peralta is clearly a transient figure, his civil servants keep their distance from him. The church and the business elite back him skeptically but his main reliance is upon the force of arms. Even the military, divided by ambitions and factionalism, intrigues in a spooky fashion reminiscent of the Kremlin.

Persia's Pop Pirates

By MICHAEL ROWE

TEHERAN — Persia's pop singers threaten to go on strike if the government does not act to protect their interests. This brings to a head long-simmering unrest caused by Persia's lack of a copyright law.

Not only singing stars but writers, musicians, poets and painters are affected. Absence of copyright law puts many people at the mercy of unscrupulous and profiteering publishers and recording companies. It was unrest over such alleged profiteering—in this case by a number of local gramophone companies—that brought matters to the boil.

Grumbling by pop singers, including Elaheh and Ravanbaksh, two of the nation's most prominent names in this field, led to harsh words in public and eventually an action brought against the singers for slander by four local recording companies.

Piffling Royalties

The singers had complained that their royalties for recordings were piffling and bore little relation to the vast profits made by the companies. They also claimed that many of their broadcast songs were being recorded both without permission and without financial reward.

The singers, who have the advantage over most other artists and writers affected by lack of a copyright law in that they are more often in the public eye, decided to take their complaint to parliament.

One day last week, a group of six set off to enlist the aid of sympathetic parliamentarians. The women of the group dressed carefully in their gayest, most appealing summer frocks while the men donned casual dress. The impact they made among the sober suits of the parliament chamber in Teheran was considerable.

Their appeals met with immediate success. A bill on "the ownership of artistic works" is now under preparation and it remains to be seen whether passage of the bill, and with it Persia's long-awaited maiden copyright act, will come into effect before the court is ready to hear the suits against the singers.

Silence Threatened

Meanwhile, the singers have announced that unless their demands are satisfactorily met, they will refuse all public and broadcasting engagements.

Persia's continuing lack of copyright law, claimed by many as a deliberate "oversight" to facilitate translation into Persian of the host of scientific and technical text books so much needed in a developing country, has produced an at times barefaced ignoring of all reasonable tenets of professional behavior.

The country's newspapers and other periodicals indulge in an unparalleled form of plagiarism, "lifting" named articles at will from each and every foreign counterpart.

'Press' Is Nasty Word in U.K. But Gov't Knows How to Use It

By FLORA LEWIS

LONDON—Every month or so, some British politician proclaims that Britain's press is the best in the world. But by and large, and certainly in what considers itself good society, press is a dirty word in this country.

There are the press barons, the proprietors, but they are set apart.

Otherwise the general assumption is that newspaper people are not gentlemen. Like upstarts, they must continuously prove themselves.

The few who are regularly and comfortably accepted qualify on the grounds that they are gentlemen who happen to have gone in for an unsavory occupation—like an aristocrat who can get away with a bad temper or odd personal tastes because, after all, he is an aristocrat.

Foreign correspondents are considered quite separately. They are taken more or less for what they take themselves. With British newspapermen, it's the other way around—they tend to take themselves for what they are thought to be.

This has made possible a system of news management in public affairs that is all the more effective for having no clear-cut sanctions.

The result is that while the serious newspapers can be blunt and energetic enough in comment, they fail to dig out much more of the news than is handed them on official platters.

The popular press is aggressive in stories about individuals and the defencelessly exposed, but considers the main purpose of probing in public affairs to find facts that bolster its views: the Daily Express, for example, to keep Britain out of Europe; the Daily Mirror to urge it in.

Every London paper has its diplomatic correspondent, its defence correspondent, its industrial correspondent (labor union affairs), its financial editor, and its lobby correspondent who does Parliament, politics and the prime minister's office.

Every government department has its information officer who deals with the appropriate correspondents.

The reporters accredited to one department jealously defend their territory against incursion, forming cozy little clubs about their source of news.

As the editor of one London weekly said, they would far rather trade tips with each other than tell someone on their own paper what is going on in their special realm.

It would be almost inconceivable for one of them to bring in his paper's diplomatic correspondent if the prime minister chose to expound on foreign policy, for example.

Glaring Case

That makes it much easier for government to pump out exactly what it wants. A glaring case of how it works came when Prime Minister Harold Wilson visited Germany last spring.

Not long after his arrival, he held an open press conference in Berlin where he jettisoned 20 years of Labor Party policy on Germany, switched Britain to a line much closer to Bonn's views than the previous Conservative government had followed, and even went out beyond Washington on some points in support of Bonn.

Afterwards, Wilson had a private briefing with the accompanying lobby crowd from London and told them the point of his trip was to make the Germans cough up money to offset the sterling drain of British troops in Germany.

He said he would talk tough, and later he said his firm tactics won the round.

It was a hat trick that worked perfectly. The Germans got the message loud and clear that the Labor government they had feared was eager to be friends.

The British public heard nothing of a policy change that would have raised a rumpus with such blunt revelation. London's headlines were all about how Wilson's angry talk cowed Bonn.

Coverage of government in London is carefully compartmentalized, not only by this exclusive clustering of each set of reporters around their major source but also by types and nationality of publication.

Right Clique

When the government wants to explain something intricate, such as the budget or a defence white paper, briefings are held—in the plural.

First the appropriate clique of British correspondents are received.

Then, with just enough interval to let the matinee audience out without its crossing the next audience at the door, Commonwealth, American, and other foreign newsmen are admitted in their group's turn.

At the foreign office, where briefings are regular, the system is further broken down with separate briefings for agencies, Sunday papers, the "3 o'clock group" whose limited members choose each other, and "the Times" in solitary grandeur.

This makes it much simpler for the foreign office to deliver its version of events unchallenged, but it does not impose the system, the barriers are maintained by the reporters themselves.

Hero of Dieppe Raid Protests Canadian Being Made Scapegoat

LONDON (CP) — A British hero of the 1942 Dieppe raid says Maj.-Gen. Hamilton Roberts, who commanded Canadian troops in the assault, was later made a scapegoat for failure by the "top brass."

Lord Lovat, who led a Commando unit in the raid, came out angrily in a letter to The Sunday Express against an article that stated "not a single main objective of the attack was achieved."

After outlining some successes achieved at Dieppe, Lovat writes:

* * *

"Hard things were said after the raid but the top brass survived the post-mortem by finding a convenient scapegoat in the person of Gen. Hamilton Roberts . . . a fighting soldier who carried out the orders he was given and acted like a gentleman in accepting his dismissal in silence without protest."

Lovat's ire was aroused by a Sunday Express article by Alden Hatch, entitled The Magnificant Mountbattens, touching on Admiral Lord Louis Mountbatten's role as chief of combined operations at the time of the Dieppe raid. Lovat says Mountbatten must bear "his full share of responsibility."

Dieppe veterans "understandably resent the sweeping statement that no important military objectives were captured in the Dieppe raid," Lovat writers.

"We came as raiders, not invaders, on that hot, bloody morning; this was no second front . . .

"Mr. Alden Hatch is clearly a diplomat but no war correspondent or he would have pointed out that the chief of combined operations must take his full share of responsibility for the bull-necked plan that committed the Royal Marines and four Canadian regiments to a frontal assault in broad daylight on a fortified harbor protected by unscaleable cliffs with resulting losses of some 3,000 men along with all their tanks and equipment."

* * *

Lovat suggests Hatch would be "well advised not to stir up the embers of resentment which will always smoulder beneath the surface for all ranks who fought and fell in this most controversial operation."

D. Mills-Roberts, another commando leader who now is a brigadier, also wrote The Sunday Express to protest the assertion that no main objectives were attained. He speaks of the "gallant Canadian assault force."

Roberts died last year.

Personnel Managers For Soviet

MOSCOW (Reuters)—Soviet economists, concerned at the low standards of industrial management here, are calling in the help of industrial psychologists and sociologists — banned under Stalin.

The managerial side of industry has long been regarded here as little more than a necessary evil and treated with extreme parsimony. Economic planners have shown reluctance to allot more than a small proportion of a factory's budget to managerial expenses.

But the increase of huge new industrial complexes has created urgent problems.

An article in the newspaper Sovietskaya Rossiya now has highlighted the situation and explained what the sociologists think can be done.

The article, by a sociologist at the Leningrad University institute of complex social research, said the institute had already carried out two surveys, based on written questionnaires, in factories in the city.

POOR RELATIONS

The first, which sought to establish why trained technicians so frequently changed jobs, showed on the basis of 11,000 replies that the main reasons were bad management and poor personnel relations.

The second survey, made in one of the city's largest factories, the Kirov machine building plant, showed that the technical and office staff were doing up to 22 hours a week unpaid overtime to get through their work because of bad organization.

One important handicap is lack of modern office equipment and refusal of regional economic planning councils to sanction its purchase.

The article said the institute was planning a complete survey on problems of management, based on one workshop in a large Leningrad factory. But a strong reluctance on the part of management to submit itself to questioning, even in written form, had to be overcome.

The recent creation of departments of industrial management in some technical colleges would not be enough to solve the problem by itself, the article added.

BETWEEN OURSELVES

By Elizabeth Forbes

Mrs. Nellie Ormond, resident supervisor at the Red Cross Lodge, adjacent to Veterans' Hospital, is looking for volunteer help.

She needs this help to fill in during the summer while regular volunteers are on holidays and, if available, to continue into the winter months.

She's looking for women who are willing to make sandwiches, brew tea and serve light meals and snacks to veterans who make the lodge their headquarters during the day and to the relatives and friends who visit them.

"There must be women with time on their hands who would be happy to help us, a few hours a week," she says . . . "if only I could find them."

* * *

Canteen work at the lodge is arranged in three daily shifts, 10 in the morning until one, one to four and six to nine at night. Four volunteers are needed on the first shift and five in the afternoon and evening.

Each volunteer wears a blue smock with the Red Cross insignia on the breast pocket. The traditional blue veil, once worn by all volunteers, is not compulsory now. Today, many women do not wear it.

The lodge is maintained entirely for veterans in hospital. There is a spacious lounge, card and writing rooms and four bedroom units for emergency overnight guests (wives of patients who are seriously ill).

Food and other articles in the canteen are sold at cost. There is no profit. "We just break even," Nellie Ormond explains.

Volunteer work is pleasant. Women who offer to help find that while they are assisting others they are also gaining a great deal in happiness and in friendships.

* * *

"We have some on the volunteer staff who have been with us for years," Mrs. Ormond says. "They still look forward to the hours they spend in the canteen."

It was on Nov. 15, 1947, that the Red Cross Lodge was officially opened on the grounds at Veterans' Hospital.

Smaller than the other seven lodges across Canada, it nevertheless presented an air of warmth and friendliness and a homey atmosphere that, in 18 years, has never been lost.

Madge Molson, now Mrs. J. H. McEleney, was chairman of the lodge committee; Mrs. J. W. Benning Jr., the co-chairman. A corps of Victoria women, headed by Mrs. A. A. Meharey, worked with them to arrange the furnishings and the decorations.

Well-known decorator of that day, Mrs. Miriam Coultas, planned the interior design.

Lieutenant-Governor Charles A. Banks officiated at the opening and Maj.-Gen. R. C. Alexander, then president of the Victoria Branch of the Canadian Red Cross, was official host.

From the beginning, a staff of volunteers, under a resident supervisor, manned the lodge.

These women acted as hostesses to the many sick and weary veterans of two world wars who came through the lodge doors.

They talked to them, read to them, arranged games for them and they served food to them in the canteen.

* * *

They worked an average of 11 hours daily, seven days a week. In a year that totals more than 150,000 volunteer hours, given freely and with friendly smiles.

Take it from there across the years and you've got a magnificent record of service.

Today, in 1965, the Red Cross Lodge remains an integral part of the Veterans' Hospital program.

While many of those First World War veterans have gone now, there still are victims of the Second World War to care for and to help.

As in the past, the lodge is open seven days a week. (Christmas Day is the only time it is closed.)

Volunteers are needed!

If you are finding the summer days lonely; if you need new interests or the stimulation of making friends and, at the same time, doing something to help others, get in touch with Mrs. Ormond.

She'll give you a job, right away.

CAPITALIST, COMMUNIST STRANGE UNION IN POLAND

By LEON DENNEN

Poland's popular newspaper, Zycie Warszawy, has finally disclosed that Wladyslaw Gomulka's Marxist-Leninist regime and West Germany's Krupp firm will become joint owners of a new industrial enterprise.

For Red chieftain Gomulka this was a humiliating and painful revelation which he could no longer keep secret. The ordinary Pole dislikes Germans—Communist or capitalist.

He particularly hates the name Krupp, Hitler's former munitions maker who once exploited thousands of Poles, Jews and others as slave laborers.

Why, then, did Gomulka decide to tarnish his much-proclaimed Marxist-Leninist purity and even leave himself open to Red China's castigation as a "capitalist lackey?"

* * *

In the view of German specialists on Communist East Europe, Gomulka is in serious trouble. Poland's economy is stagnating.

Unemployment, especially among young Poles and university graduates, is alarmingly increasing.

Gomulka is therefore forced to look to Western capitalists (even to Krupp) for help to stimulate economic development, create more jobs and avert an anti-Communist revolution of the type that exploded in Poland in 1956.

Polish officials denied for many months that they were negotiating secretly with the West German firm. They even claimed that reports of a deal between Warsaw and Krupp's ambitious and hard-driving manager Berthold Beitz were the usual "malicious lies" of American and Western journalists.

Nor would Beitz talk. He is the new type of West German industrial tycoon who will not let political considerations deter him from opening new markets for Krupp.

* * *

There is still another reason for his silence. The Krupp firm is not anxious to have Western reporters pry too much into its business affairs.

After all, it was only 13 years ago that Alfried Krupp, the firm's head, was sentenced to 12 years in prison as a Nazi collaborator. All his property was confiscated.

Thanks in part to John J. McCloy, an American banker who was U.S. High Commissioner in Germany, Krupp was released long before he served his full prison term.

His properties were returned to him ostensibly because he promised to divest himself of his industrial empire.

But Krupp never kept his promise. Today he is the richest man in Europe and also one of the largest steelmakers in the world.

Poland's joint venture with Krupp is thus a unique project. Krupp will supply management, machiness, capital and what is generally known as technology. Poland will contribute the site, plant buildings and manpower.

This Communist-capitalist experiment may eventually become a model for other joint ventures between West Germany and other Red state enterprises in East Europe. But in the meantime Gomulka is hard-pressed to find ways and means to quell the suspicion and doubts not only of orthodox Reds but also of ordinary Poles.

He can claim—as he actually claims — that Poland's agreement with Krupp is quite in Lenin's tradition. When communism was in difficulty in Russia in the 1920s Lenin inaugurated his New Economic Policy and invited investment by Western capitalists. The experiment lasted until Stalin expelled all Western capitalists and seized their properties.

* * *

Like Lenin, Gomulka obviously believes that the capitalists are so greedy for profits that they will eventually "hang themselves with their own rope."

However, Krupp is not just another capitalist firm. In the Red view, it represents "militaristic" West Germany as contrasted with "peace-loving" Communist East Germany.

A more important aspect of Gomulka's problem is the traditional, subconscious association by the man-in-the-street of the very name Krupp with wars, cannons and slave labor.

Can Red propaganda afford to admit that, for the present at least, Krupp does not produce cannons?

'No Typical Canadian' —Favreau

Our search for unity must at this point face the stark, unaccommodating fact that there is not, in the hearts of Canadians, a basic or traditional common feeling. In a philosophical sense, there is no typical Canadian, because there is no single typically Canadian emotion toward Canada.

It is wrong to say we have no national philosophy; on the contrary, we have too many. And most of them exclude some part of our people: almost always there is in each private philosophy of Canada some variation of what Professor Arthur Porter's recent book has called a "vertical mosaic"—the idea of a society stratified on cultural and ethnic lines: with some kind of master race on top, and an assortment of inferior castes below.

Like the bigoted Christians of old who went about unchurching each other, many Canadians today still go about "depatriating" each other—in plain English, refusing to accept other Canadians as true countrymen. The first, inescapable step toward unity, then, is clearly to recognize that although Canadians are diverse, they are without exception equally Canadian.

8 Buildings Up in 17 Days

By JIM HUME
Times Business Editor

Hume

A bouncy little construction company whipped into the north country recently, erected eight buildings and nipped back into Victoria looking for fresh fields to conquer.

Total elapsed time from departure to return: 17 days.

Paul LeBaron, construction manager of Island Prefab, 2891 Trans-Canada Highway is the man who set something of a record up on the Stikine and Scud Rivers.

The pre-fabs, two bunkhouses, two cook-houses, two powder magazines and two blasting-cap storage sheds, were moved by barge to the mouth of the Stikine, just north of Wrangell, Alaska, then flown beneath a helicopter 28 miles to the first campsite, 32 miles to the second.

Each campsite got one of each of the buildings.

* * *

The buildings were erected to house the road building crew of Frontier Construction engaged in a 40-mile slash through the wilderness to link up with Kenco Mining Company, the company with the big copper strike on the Stikine.

The copper strike is another story, one we mentioned some time ago as the strike to watch. The gravevine says its one of the biggest in history though the developers are keeping fairly quiet so far.

Back to the pre-fabs. . . .

Mr. LeBaron and his partner Jim Murray, sales manager, set up shop in Victoria a little less than six weeks ago. They sell and erect Vancouver-built pre-fabs of all sizes and shapes.

This summer three one classroom schools will go up in the Greater Victoria area, one in Saanich, two in Victoria proper. Mr. LeBaron will handle the construction chores, Mr. Murray having done his bit by selling the schools to the Greater Victoria School Board.

They also sell and erect, or show the customer how to erect, summer cabins and full-fledged houses.

* * *

One of their next big projects is a three-bedroom house which is now being manufactured in Vancouver and should be going up in double-quick time later this summer.

Mr. LeBaron is quite modest about his trip to the northern wilderness.

"I flew up there alone because I knew they had a crew of 20 men on the road building gang and that I could teach them how to erect their own homes," is the way he puts it. The fact that he was only 17 days away from home and that the eight buildings were completely finished before he left, shows that he is a good teacher or that pre-fabs are pretty simple to put together.

Mr. LeBaron says it's the latter. "There's nothing to it if you have a little help," he says with a slight shrug.

Why the helicopter at a cost of $350 an hour to move the sections inland from the coast?

"It's pretty rugged country," says Mr. LeBaron. "The only way in and out is by helicopter . . . unless you built a road."

* * *

Justifiably proud of the adventure Mr. LeBaron is naturally hopeful that the now completed contract on the Stikine and Scud will lead to others in remote areas.

"We have proved that it can be done," he said. "It's the great advantage to the pre-fab. You can build them anywhere."

That's always providing you have the $350 an hour for the helicopter.

Canada's First R.N. Dies Here at 98

Miss Evaline Pemberton, the first registered nurse in Canada, died in Pemberton Road private hospital Tuesday at the age of 98.

Funeral services will be held in Hayward's funeral chapel Monday at 1:30 p.m. followed by interment in Ross Bay cemetery.

Tall and slim, Miss Pemberton was born in the old Pemberton family home on Fairfield Road on March 31, 1867 — the only surviving member of a famous Victoria family.

CHEERFUL SOUL

"She lived with us for seven years," said the nurse at the Pemberton Road hospital. "She was a cheerful soul and never gave us any trouble.

Miss Pemberton used to go for walks in the grounds and was always offering to help us. She enjoyed reading and listening to the radio but never cared for TV.

"She was in every respect a credit to the nursing profession."

PROMINENT FAMILY

Miss Pemberton's father was Hon. Augustus John Pemberton, a prominent figure in the city's early history.

She received her first nursing appointment at a hospital in Halifax, N.S., in 1890 and became the first registered nurse in Canada.

Miss Pemberton had no close relatives, but is survived by two cousins, Mrs. H. C. Holmes and Mrs. A. L. Harvey.

She Had Everything But Dies by Overdose

PARIS (Reuters) — Nina Dyer, 35, a British model twice married to millionaires, has died near here and the police chief of her hometown said today she was killed by an overdose of sleeping pills.

The chief in Garches, 12 miles outside of Paris, said the ex-model suffered from fits of depression in recent months and died of an overdose of barbiturates.

He said she became ill from the overdose after driving herself home Friday night. She died Saturday and no relatives have so far come forward to arrange her burial.

Since her divorce in 1962 from Prince Sadruddin, uncle of the present Aga Khan, she had lived alone, seeing few visitors in her vast and luxurious apartment outside Paris. She spent most of her time at high-living fashion and theatre parties.

She once complained that she was a lonely person. For company, she surrounded herself with animals—two black leopards, 11 dogs and three parrots.

She was from 1954 to 1956 the wife of German steel and arms magnate Baron Heinrich von Thyssen. He courted her with extravagant gifts and gave her a reported $3,000,000 settlement when they were divorced.

The daughter of an English lawyer in Ceylon, she was regarded as one of the world's most beautiful women.

IN U.K. PARLIAMENT

Move to Undercut Philip's Critic

LONDON (Reuters) — Members of Parliament from both the ruling Labor and opposition Conservative parties came to the support of Prince Philip today in the controversy over his remarks urging patience in seeking a solution to racial problems in Rhodesia.

Four Labor members put forward an amendment to replace a motion by fellow Laborite Hugh Jenkins that indirectly criticizes Philip. The amendment instead would reaffirm the right of free speech.

Jenkins asked the House Monday to declare that it is a condition of constitutional monarchy that royalty should not give public expression to contentious political opinions.

The amendment by Simon Maher, Walter Aldritt, Peter Mahon and James Dunn calls on the House to reaffirm instead "its belief in the principles of democracy, the liberty of the individual and the right of free speech."

A second Commons motion, presented by Conservative Gilbert Longden, asks the House to declare: "That this House considers that in publicly expressing the hope that inevitable change in a Commonwealth country should come about gradually rather than as a result of a bloodbath, the consort of the head of the Commonwealth was expressing the view of common humanity and common sense, and one which, it is hoped, will be shared by everyone else throughout the Commonwealth."

Wood Tick Bite Partly Paralyzes B.C. Youngster

FRUITVALE (CP)—A four-year-old girl was partially paralyzed when bitten by a wood tick, it was reported Tuesday.

Dr. Nicolas Schmitt said the girl suffered numbness of the legs and feet and had great difficulty walking a week ago. She had no pain or fever.

He said the girl's condition improved rapidly after an enlarged wood tick was removed. He did not say where the tick attacked and did not give the girl's name.

Wood ticks are common in parts of the province between March and June.

FULL POINT IN JUNE

Living Cost Jumps

OTTAWA (CP)—The Bureau of Statistics' index of consumer prices rose one full point to 139.0 for June, compared with 138.0 for May, the bureau reported today.

The increase was mainly attributed to a rise in food prices.

The bureau said that at the beginning of June the index, based on 1949 prices equalling 100, was 2.7 per cent higher than in June, 1964.

In addition to food prices, which were up 2.3 per cent in the month, the bureau reported increases in the indexes for housing, clothing, transportation, and recreation and reading.

The index for health and personal care declined slightly, while the tobacco and alcohol index remained unchanged.

A finance department study of the rise in food prices found that the greatest upward thrust came from the influence of U.S. food prices.

Prices of vegetables rose 12 per cent in Canada and the finance department study found that this was almost entirely in the lines of vegetables that are imported from the United States early in the season, before the new crop of Canada-grown vegetables comes on the market.

There was also a 3½-per-cent increase in meat prices. This the finance department study also attributed to the influence of American prices. When U.S. beef prices are high, Canadian stockraisers ship to the U.S. market and Canadian prices rise to compete.

Finance Minister Gordon was vacationing and unavailable for comment on the new index.

A departmental source, however, noted that the index is a measure of prices that consumers would have to pay for goods surveyed by the bureau of statistics, and said it is not a measure of prices consumers are willing to pay.

The total index, which is a measure of living costs, has been rising steadily since last October, posting new records each month from December, 1964, on. Its latest monthly declines were in September, 1963, and September, 1964.

The June increase this year was the first full-point increase in the index in at least 2½ years.

Cage For Killer Completed

NAMU, B.C. (CP) — Workmen labored Tuesday night to launch a monstrous maze of steel bars and oil drums that is to be a cage for a killer whale during a trip to Seattle.

The question was would the killer whale captured near here two weeks ago enter the cage?

The Seattle Aquarium paid $8,000 for the whale that became entrapped in some salmon nets. It has built the cage at this cannery town 300 miles north of Vancouver.

The cage is 15 feet high, 60 feet long and 40 feet wide.

In the water it will sit five feet above the surface, floating on 41 oil barrels.

Tuesday night workmen were attempting to launch it with the aid of a pile driver, two fork lifts, a dock winch and the hoists of two seine boats.

The tug Robert E. Lee was due here from Seattle today.

MANUFACTURING SLIPS, DBS REPORT SHOWS

OTTAWA (CP) — Canada's manufacturing industries shipped less and received fewer new orders in April than they did in March this year, but the trend may not have been all on the gloomy side.

The bureau of statistics reported that while shipments and orders were down in actual dollar value, the movements resulted predominantly from seasonal influences.

Recasting its statistics to remove the seasonal variations, the bureau reported shipments in April were little below the March level, while new orders actually rose.

Danger signs for the manufacturing industries are when shipments and new orders fall off, and they are left with a build-up of stocks of finished goods.

The bureau reported manufacturers' shipments in April at $2,778,100,000, a drop of almost three per cent from the March estimate of $2,860,100,000. The April shipments were nearly six per cent greater than April shipments in 1964.

Bids Suggest Luck Behind the Oil Wall

EDMONTON (CP) — Imperial Oil Ltd., which clamped tight security measures on a drilling site in the Rainbow Lake area of northwestern Alberta last month, Tuesday outbid rivals for drilling rights on crown land adjacent to the site.

Imperial paid a total of $4,815,890 for two drilling reservations of 8,320 acres each at a provincial government sale of oil and natural gas rights.

Imperial's parcels surround land on which the company already has drilling rights. Purchase of rights on the new parcels will allow the firm to expand its exploration for oil in the area 400 miles northwest of Edmonton.

The Rainbow Lake area has been a focus of oil industry interest since Banff Oil Ltd. was successful with a discovery well in February. The are is largely muskeg.

Last month Imperial confined all hands on its Rainbow Lake drilling rig to the site and erected a wall around the site.

These measures were to prevent scouts for rival companies from gauging Imperial's success and thus discovering the worth of the area in which Imperial is operating.

GRAIN PRICES

WINNIPEG (CP) — Most prices were firm in modest trade today on the Winnipeg Grain Exchange. There was some export interest.

Oats and barley moved narrowly in light domestic trade.

Oilseeds dropped slightly, but had a firm undertone. Sale of 2,000 tons of rapeseed to Japan and some flax to Britain was reported.

CHICAGO (AP)—Prices were generally weaker in the grain futures market today although demand improved for old crop soybeans.

Brokers said most of the activity was speculative and linked with reports of improved weather both for the development of the corn and soybean crops and harvesting of winter wheat.

Peace River Big Producer Of Iron Powder

EDMONTON (CP) — The Peace River area of Alberta could become a big producer of iron powder, used in a revolutionary steel-making process, within three or four years, says G. R. Heffernan, president of Peace River Mining and Smelting Ltd.

Mr. Heffernan said in an interview here that Peace River area output by 1969 could reach 100,000 tons a year — about equal to U.S. demand for iron powder at present.

Mr. Heffernan said his company is developing a new leaching process and other recovery and refining techniques to produce iron powder 99 per cent pure from ore deposits at Clear Hills, Alta.

He said the techniques should be perfected in about a year and a plant at Clear Hills, 350 miles northwest of Edmonton and 100 miles north of Peace River, in operation two or three years after that.

Brock's Big Bat Slams; Hall's Lightest 'Booms'

Times News Service

The big bat of Lou Brock continued at a sizzling pace . . . .385, leading St. Louis Cardinals in a 3-2 victory over San Francisco Giants Tuesday night.

Brock's three hits, scoring two runs and driving in a third, helped the Cards notch up their seventh National Baseball League win.

In the American League, Cal Griffith went fishing for a right-handed pitcher last winter using Jimmie Hall for bait.

The Minnesota Twins president got nibbles from the New York Yankees and the Boston Red Sox but no bites, and his bait turned out to be the best catch of all.

WHIPLASH SWING

The slender Hall, who has a whiplash swing and uses one of the lightest bats in the league, slammed a pair of two-run homers Tuesday night as the Twins blanked the Boston Red Sox 9-0 and increased their AL lead to two full games over Cleveland.

In other AL action, Los Angeles topped Washington 6-2, Detroit shut out New York 8-0, Baltimore whipped Kansas City 4-1 and Cleveland at Chicago was postponed by rain.

THIRD SHUTOUT

Jim Grant scattered eight Boston hits in posting his third shutout for the Twins. He was never in trouble after Hall belted loser Jerry Stephenson for a two-run homer in the first inning and repeated the feat in the second.

Hall's three hits gave him a total of seven in the last two days, during which time he has scored three times and driven in five others.

In other National League action, the Dodgers moved back into first by winning an 11-7 slugfest over the Cincinnati Reds and Pittsburgh pirates scuttled the Philadelphia Phillies 8-4. Houston at Milwaukee was postponed by wet grounds and the Cubs and Mets were not scheduled.

WINNINGEST LOSES

Brock's three safeties accounted for half the total the Redbirds collected off Juan Marichal, the major league's winningest righthander who suffered his seventh defeat in 20 decisions. And the native of El Dorado, Ark., figured in every one of the Cards' runs.

Curt Simmons gained credit for the victory—his first—although he needed relief help from Don Dennis and Hal Woodeshick, who have given the St. Louis bullpen a touch of respectability. A crowd of 31,229, the largest of the season at Busch Stadium, watched the Cards make it two straight over the Giants.

Don Drysdale gained his 12th victory for the Dodgers and contributed to their 13-hit attack with his fourth home run.

HUNGERFORD BEACHED BY MYSTERIOUS MALADY

HENLEY ON THAMES, England (CP)—George Hungerford of Vancouver, 23-year-old Olympic gold-medal winner in pairs rowing, says he still doesn't know what has caused the bouts of weakness which have knocked him out of rowing, at least temporarily.

He said that he underwent tests in hospital at nearby Reading.

"There was nothing conclusive so far," he said. "There doesn't seem to be anything drastically wrong, but I would not want to speculate now until the tests are completed and the results are in."

Hungerford and his partner, Roger Jackson of Toronto, were eliminated last Thursday from the pairs rowing at the Henley Royal Regatta in a major upset. Hungerford says he was overcome by weakness during the race and barely conscious for the last part of it.

Doctors have said he is suffering from a form of anemia in which his body's oxygen supply falls off under strain.

RAWLINGS TRIPPED

Scrappy Display By Independents

Independents coupled an aggressive offence with a superb two-hit pitching performance by Dave Murdoch Tuesday to down Rawlings 5-1 in Senior Amateur Baseball League action at Royal Athletic Park.

The cellar-dwellers rapped nine hits, stole three bases and laid down three sacrifice bunts to chalk up their sixth victory of the season. Tony Cosier, Bob Smith and Steve Bishop led the attack with two hits apiece.

Cosier sparked three of the winners' five one-run innings. He singled, stole second and scored on a double steal in the first, drove in Smith with a single in the fifth, and sacrificed Buddy Taylor into scoring position in the sixth inning.

SECOND VICTORY

Murdoch moved his fastball around the plate and changed speeds with his breaking pitch to record his second win of the season. He was relieved in the seventh by Grant Udy after a walk, an error and a single by Lyle Cornett. Bishop bailed Udy out of trouble in the ninth, getting Cornett to hit into a double play and then striking out pinch-hitter Vince McDonald.

George Brice went the distance for Rawlings.

Transport Workers, who won the Senior Amateur tournament in Chemainus Sunday, will play Rawlings tonight at 6:30 at Royal Athletic Park.

Local Cricketers Battle to Draw

The Victoria and district representative cricket team, led by Keith Bickmore's 45 runs, John Sheather's 29 runs and Dick Hale's 23 runs, totalled 146 runs for four wickets Tuesday, to draw with California's powerful touring club in an exhibition match at Beacon Hill Park.

California, sparked by a 25-run performance by Leo Magnus, picked up 96 runs for eight wickets before time ran out.

The American squad won their first two games of the Victoria cricket week schedule, defeating Seattle by 74 runs on Sunday and another Victoria squad by four wickets on Monday.

They were scheduled to play against a representative B.C. club from Vancouver today at 1:30 p.m. at Beacon Hill.

Pro's Ace Came A Day Too Early

TORONTO (CP)—Bruce Murray, professional at the St. Catharines Golf and Country Club shot a hole-in-one Tuesday while warming up for the Millar Trophy Canadian professional match play golf championships starting today at Pine Valley Golf Club here.

If Murray, a Toronto native who was a top junior golfer in Edmonton before moving to Kitchener four years ago, had fired the ace a day later than he did he would have collected $1,000. Pine Valley owner Jack Bailey has offered 1,000 silver dollars to any golfer shooting an ace during the tourney.

Junior Rocks Keeping Pressure on Leaders

Victoria Shamrocks sustained their drive towards top spot with a 19-13 conquest over hapless Burnaby Norburns Tuesday night in Inter-City Junior Lacrosse League action at Memorial Arena.

The Rocks now have 26 points, two fewer than league-leading New Westminster.

John Stewart, Ron Zilkie, John Lauvaas and Tej Dhillon powered the winners offence with three goals each. Bob Preston scored a pair and Ken Alexander Ranjit Dillon, Tom Deanshaw, Tom Churchill and Brent Atkins picked up single markers.

Ron Howard led Norburns with a three-goal night. Bill Chomick, Jindy Gill and Graham Corkish collected two goals while Norm Deslauriers, Dennis Nagy, Robert Thompson, and Ernie Glover added solo scores for the losers.

MALE PROS SLOW . . .

. . . AND OVER-DRAMATIC

The Girls, She Says, Don't Lollygag

NEW YORK (AP) — The male tournament golf pros are a bunch of cry-babies who play too slowly and over-dramatize their shots, says the new Women's Open Champion of the United States.

"Why do the men pros take five and six hours to play a round that the girls get over in three hours and a half?" Long-stemmed Carol Mann, repeated a question.

"The answer is simple—the girls don't lollygag. They just step up and hit their shots."

Miss Mann, 23, a professional golfer from Towson, Md., chided her masculine counterparts today.

"I try to find some justification for the way they act—maybe it's all that money they play for, I tell myself, but sometimes it seems positively ridiculous.

"Put them on a course where they have to hit two irons or three woods to a green and they yelp as if they had been stuck with an ice pick.

"Why, the women play long irons and woods on the fairways all the time and never complain."

Carol said she sees no reason why the men should take almost twice as long to get around 18 holes.

"It's true the men's courses are longer, but we're hitting the same clubs to the greens they are. A men's course of 7,200 yards if equivalent to a women's course of 6,200, and remember, they hit fewer shots.

"The men waste a lot of time on the tee, waggling their clubs, while the women step up and hit the ball. We are disciplined to be ready for our second shot. The men study charts, walk up to the green and back and hold long conferences with their caddies. Every shot is a life-or-death decision.

"And on the greens, they mark every ball, whether it's 18 feet from the cup or 18 inches; whether it's picked up mud or not. The girls just knock them in.

"Everything is so climactic with the men. If they miss a putt, they go back and brood for five minutes and then they return, with a look of heroic pain, and hole out from six inches."

Lema Blows Hot

SOUTHPORT, Eng. (CP) — Defending-champion Tony Lema of the United States fired a five-under-par 68 today, a course record, for the first-round lead in the British Open golf championship but many of the big field still had to finish.

Playing spectacularly as he did last year when he won at St. Andrews, Scotland, the lean Californian took a one-stroke early lead over Ireland's Christy O'Connor, who earlier had broken the record for the reconstructed Royal Birkdale course with a 69.

Another Irishman, amateur Joe Carr, was in third place with a 70.

Lema came in with his sizzling round after the heavy favorite, Jack Nicklaus, the U.S. Masters champion, had struggled home in even par 73.

O'Connor, pitching superbly to the pins, had four birdies and escaped the dangers of the 7,037-yard Birkdale seaside links by playing cautious golf. He was one under par with a 34 for the first nine holes.

"With a little bit of luck, I could have been three shots better," O'Connor said.

DEVLIN NEXT

Behind O'Connor at 71 came Bruce Devlin, the always tough Australian.

The toughness of the course was indicated by some of the high scores registered by such top players as Peter Thomson of Australia, who had a 74; Harry Wettman, the British Ryder Cup veteran, who fired a 76, and Max Faulkner of Britain, who went to 74.

The burly, 210-pound Nicklaus, who fired a 65 in his practice round Tuesday, started badly with fives on the first three holes. His tee shots were spraying. But he rallied to salvage a par score.

Nicklaus said that while the conditions were not difficult he found the greens a bit slow. "I missed half my putts by misreading the greens," he said.

"Anyway, a 73 is better than a 76, which I had for my first round last year," Nicklaus added. He finished second to Lema in the 1964 British Open.

Nicklaus missed from six feet at the first hole, was off the line all the way to the second, and he fluffed a pitch at the third for his third straight five.

But big Jack pulled up with three, three and four for the next three holes and matched par on the seventh, eighth and ninth holes to be out in 36, one over par. He was home in 37—one stroke under par. He had only one three, a birdie at the 16th, where he ran down a 25-foot putt. At the short 12th and 14th holes he dropped shots with fours.

McNeill Steps Into Fray; Chapman In Great Display

VANCOUVER — Victoria Shamrocks are rapidly earning a reputation as one of the most unpredictable clubs in the Inter-City Lacrosse League.

JIM McNEILL . . . back in harness

They rolled into Vancouver sadly under-staffed Tuesday but emerged with a 10-6 victory over the defending Canadian champions to earn a share of third place in the league standings.

With Jim McNeill donning playing togs for the first time this season, the scrappy Irish beat the odds with a tenacious checking display and a fancy netminding effort by Skip Chapman.

GAME TONIGHT

It was the fourth time this season that the Rocks have managed to topple Bobby Marsh's Vancouver club. The two clubs square off again tonight in Victoria's Memorial Arena, starting at 8.

McNeill, 24, dressed when the Shamrocks fielded only 12 players. Jim handed his usual coaching chores to his father, Hector.

Although playing only periodically, Jim made his presence felt, especially on the odd-man play. His appearance on the left point added considerable oomph to the power play.

PLAYERS MISSED

Shamrocks' manpower problems hit a low ebb when Larry Biggs, Al Matson, Bob Harris and Jack Henry were unable to show because of work. Forward Bill Munro and defenceman Jack Showers were already out with injuries.

If that wasn't enough, defenceman Ed Kowalyk hobbled at half-speed because of a toe injury and Ted Leibich was forced to miss most of the last quarter because of another injury.

Chapman turned back 35 Vancouver shots but was especially brilliant in the second and third quarters. Vancouver jumped into a 3-2 lead in the opening quarter but couldn't score another goal until the final frame.

THREE FOR REG

Reg Foster, continuing his sparkling play for the Victoria team this season, Ron Jay and Tom Collett sparked the Rocks' offence. Foster scored three goals while Jay had two goals and two assists to take over fourth place in the league scoring race.

Collett scored two goals while singles went to Tommy Black, Kowalyk and Larry Clarkson.

Wayne Pecknold scored twice for Vancouver and singles went to Whitey Nelson, Sid Warick, Bob Babcock and Gordie Frederickson.

TEE TOPICS

By Ernie Fedoruk

These warm, sunny days are happy ones for Arthur Donaldson. He has just been appointed the new head greenskeeper at Gorge Vale, has just won five straight tournaments and, most important, signs indicate that his reinstatement as an amateur will be finalized within 10 days.

ART DONALDSON

When that amateur card does turn up, Victoria will have—oh joy—a contender for the Canadian amateur championship next year.

The national event comes to Colwood next summer and Art declared yesterday he's "gonna go for it."

If Art keeps his game at the peak he reached in the past month, the local threat may be a big one. In addition to his five-straight string, Pappy has blistered the par-73 Gorge course with a pair of 67s in recent weeks.

It all started back on May 30. Donaldson was the low man in the Cedar Hill Open. He then won a pair of club events—the Maynard and Carmichael trophies—and at the weekend he marched off with top honors at Cowichan and Comox.

The club events have to be recorded because both were handicap events. And, as everybody knows, the low handicap players generally have difficulty in winning handicap events.

Donaldson had to come from behind to win both the Cowichan and Comox tournaments. At Cowichan, Art trailed Laurie Carroll by three strokes with nine holes to play. Donaldson hit the back nine with a 35 while Carroll took a 39.

Donaldson trailed Colwood's Laurie Kerr by seven strokes after the first 18 at Comox. Donaldson carded a sizzling second-round 64, dropping a birdie putt on the last hole, to edge Gord Whan by one stroke. Kerr finished third.

Because of his application for amateur reinstatement, Donaldson did not claim any prize.

After listening to the comments at the 30th National Left-handers' Tournament in Las Vegas last week, it would seem to me that the southpaws are all looking forward to their visit to Victoria next year.

No one is more enthused about "the tournament in Canada" than is Bill Sharpe, the venerable southern gentleman who is recognized as the father of the left-handed golf association (NALG).

Moving the tournament out of the U.S., he declared, "is one of the greatest progressive steps we have ever taken. It will be, of course, a great boost to the lefty golfers throughout Canada."

Sharpe feels certain the Victoria tournament will draw over 300 lefties. For one thing, he feels the mid-July dates "comes at an ideal vacation time."

Sharpe calls his association "the greatest cross-section of business and professional men you ever saw." After watching those southpaws swing and spend in Vegas, I'll have to agree with him.

Mile Champion's Legs Are Failing

LONDON (AP) — Peter Snell, New Zealand's track sensation, says his legs are going dead on him when he's running.

"It is not a physical weakness, so much as a muscular one," the Olympic champion told reporters.

Snell has been beaten twice in the last few days. He finished seventh in a mile at London's White City Stadium Saturday and third in Dublin Monday night, but each time was under four minutes.

He will race in Prague at the end of the week.

"I am running in under four minutes regularly in practice now," Snell said. "I am certain that my legs will come all right soon. I think I shall be running well again before long."

Snell has said he intends to retire after his present world tour.

He is out to regain the mile blue ribbon from France's Michel Jazy, who last month bettered Snell's listed world record of 3:53.1 with a time of 3:53.6.

RACE OFFICIAL DIES

LOS ANGELES (AP)—James J. Tunney, 59, chairman of the board of stewards at Hollywood Park and presiding steward at Santa Anita Race Track, died Tuesday, apparently of a heart attack. He was associated with racetrack officiating for many years.

HOLDOVERS GUARANTEED

ATLANTA (UPI) — The sports section of the Atlantian magazine contained this forecast:

"Since most of the regulars will be back, we are looking forward to another outstanding softball season."

The magazine was the one published by inmates of the Atlanta Federal Penitentiary.

Premier Officiates At Opening

VANCOUVER (CP)—Premier Bennett Tuesday officially opened the renovated Exhibition Park race track before a non-holiday record crowd of 12,000.

The renovations, which included a new grandstand, a track extension, better stable facilities and new offices, cost $3,000,000.

Apprentice jockey Dennis Tierney, 20, from Ireland, appeared to have won his maiden victory in the third race on Cruisin Thru, but moved to third place behind Miss Consuelo and Some Royal Flush after racing stewards ruled Tierney crowded Some Royal Flush in the stretch.

Tierney regained what he had lost by getting his maiden victory on Punter's Joy in the fifth.

Victoria Junior Hopes Fall 10 Strokes Behind

VANCOUVER — Victoria's hopes for a representative on the B.C. junior interprovincial golf team were scattered into the rough and around the greens of Marine Drive Tuesday.

The best Victorians could manage after the second round of the B.C. championship tournament was a share of 26th place.

Colwood's John Morgan, 70-83, and Victoria City champion Don Billsborough, 76-77, were bracketed with three other golfers at 153—exactly 10 strokes off the pace set by a Seattle smoothie.

Steve Cole, carving out a par-matching 71, grabbed the 36-hole lead with a 143 total, one less than Jim Bradey of Seattle.

MORGAN BLOWS

Bradey and Morgan shared the first-round lead with 70s but both slipped Tuesday. Bradey came in with a 74 while Morgan blew to an 83.

The Seattle players are not eligible to vie for berths on the B.C. team. Leading the race for a team spot was Al Greenstreet of Vancouver, whose 73-73—146 put him three strokes behind Cole.

Three other Vancouver players, Jim Scully, B. Alexander and Ron Fratkin, shared fourth with 147s.

Cole, playing superbly, might have come in with a classic round but for one hole. He took a triple bogey on the 11th.

The 54-hole event was scheduled to wind up today.

Marciano Insists Boxing Needs Help

WASHINGTON (UPI) — Fight fans on the House commerce committee agreed today that boxing is flat on its back. But they disagreed on whether it's Uncle Sam's responsibility to get the game back on its feet.

As the committee's inquiry went into its second round, chairman Oren E. Harris (D.—Ark.), said there is a serious question how far the government can or should go in correcting the evils which a battery of ex-champs said Tuesday were about to count boxing out.

Nat Fleischer, boxing historian and editor of Ring Magazine; Cus D'Amato, who was manager of Floyd Patterson during part of his reign as heavyweight titleholder, and the chairman of the New York Athletic and Colorado Boxing Commissions were on today's witness card.

SICK SPORT

Jack Dempsey, Rocky Marciano and Gene Tunney—the latter through his son John, a freshman member of Congress—Tuesday pictured the recent Liston-Clay fight in Lewiston, Maine, as symptomatic of a sick sport growing steadily sicker. They blamed diverse state laws and haphazard standards.

Committee members seemed to agree that the golden era of boxing ended some years ago. One put the start of the decline at about the time Marciano retired undefeated in 1955 after four years as heavyweight champ.

But Rep. Leo W. O'Brien, (D-N.Y.) asked Joseph Miller, former chairman of the District of Columbia boxing commission, "Do you think boxing is worth saving?" And Rep. Torbert H. MacDonald, (D—Mass.), told Marciano, "My personal guess is that we ought to leave the whole thing alone, and let it work itself out."

"I'm awfully sorry to hear you say that, sir," replied Marciano. "We need help. Boxing has cancer. We hope this committee won't let the patient die but will get a good doctor."

What the three old champs asked for in the way of medicine the committee seemed unlikely to give them. They wanted a federal boxing commission, with power to license just about everybody in the fight game.

"You've got to start at the bottom, and get rid of all these undesirables," said Dempsey, a hefty 70-year-old who still looks like a champ.

Harris' bill, focal point of the hearing, proposes creation of a federal boxing commission, but with few of the far-reaching powers prescribed by Dempsey, Tunney and Marciano. Its main function would be to bar interstate broadcasts of fights which it considers "likely" to be fixed or tied up with the rackets.

LADIES' GOLF

Teen-Ager Upsets Defending Champ

VANCOUVER (CP) — Defending champion Barbara Renwick of Vancouver was upset by an 18-year-old junior Tuesday in the opening round of the B.C. women's closed golf championship.

Miss Renwick lost on the 19th hole to Susan Brown in an upset that saw golfers playing exceptional games in heat that left them nearly exhausted.

Miss Renwick was the second member of the interprovincial team, whose members were announced Monday, to go down to defeat. The other was Mrs. Len Collett of Vancouver, who fell before Mrs. T. Taverna.

The other members of the team survived. Marilyn Palmer of Kamloops beat Mrs. D. McCormick of Colwood and Janet MacWha beat Mrs. W. F. Knox of Vancouver.

The Renwick-Brown match attracted the most attention.

Both players had 79s for the 18 holes. Miss Brown used long drives and superlative iron shots to get seven birdies. Miss Renwick shot three eagles.

Miss Brown was one up after 17 holes. She hit a trap and lost the 18th. On the 19th Miss Renwick lost the match when she drove into the woods.

In other matches, all composed of Vancouver area players: Mrs. Brice Evans beat Mrs. C. C. Lee; Mrs. J. Smythe defeated Mrs. G. Garnett; Yvonne Clark beat Mrs. T. Scott and Mrs. Peter Bentley defeated Miss D. Phillips.

'Slowpoke' Ammunition Troublesome

BISLEY, England (CP) — Ill winds and slowpoke ammunition are troubling the talented rookies in Canada's contingent at the Bisley meeting of marksmen.

"They told me Bisley conditions were tough," said Jean McKeever of Calgary, first woman to top the squad of Canadian qualifiers in 105 years of rifle competition here. "I thought the old hands were exaggerating, but they were not."

Mrs. McKeever, a widowed mother of four who works as a bookkeeper when she isn't puncturing bulls-eyes with the King's Own Calgary Regiment Rifle Association, is one of seven members of the Dominion of Canada Rifle Association's 20-member team competing here for the first time.

She won her place with top score in the Bisley aggregate at the DCRA shoot last August on Ottawa's Connaught Ranges, where the Bisley team is selected. She is the second woman to make the team for this overwhelmingly male competition. Schoolteacher Mary Maclennan came from Charlottetown in 1951.

Practising in preparation for the team and individual matches that begin for the DCRA Friday and run to July 17, Mrs. McKeever and other members of the squad have been bothered by fickle English light and erratic winds sweeping across the short-range century butts and the long-distance Stickledown Range.

In addition, the Canadian marksmen have had to adjust to the slower, less consistent .303 ammunition used here after the more efficient 7.62-millimetre now in general use for Canada.

Jack Cramer, 51, of North Vancouver, who competed here in 1959 and 1960, said Canadian ranges in general—and the Seaforth Range where he normally shoots in particular—are more sheltered than is Stickledown.

Airmen Fly High In Bisley Events

BISLEY, Eng. (CP)—Canadian Army marksmen at the Bisley rifle competition have sound grounds for wishing Royal Air Force men would stick to flying.

RAF sharpshooters nudged Canadians out of first place in three contests Tuesday at the annual two-week shooting spree on the Bisley ranges, 30 miles south of London.

Sgt. Peter Holderness of RAF Fighter Command won the first stage of the Queen Mary match, a premier event for servicemen, with a score of 180 out of 200 in the four-par event. This made the 179 of Sgt. Joe Daigle of St. Charles, N.B., second best. Sgt. Hal O'Neil of Halifax was third with 177.

CANUCKS QUALIFY

Three other members of the 12-man Canadian Army team—Capt. Bill Molnar of Fort Macleod, Alta., Sgt. Vince Kavanagh of Stittsville, Ont., and Pte. John Kabatoff of Calgary and Saskatoon, placed among the top 50 out of about 500 entries, and thus qualify for the second stage of the Queen Mary today.

Molnar, 28, winner of the 1964 Queen's Medal as top shot in the Canadian Army, was squeezed out of first place in the Kinnaird Prize in a shoot Tuesday to break a four-way tie. Cpl. Ronald Van Gelderen of RAF Bomber Command scored a perfect 15 in the shoot-off, while Molnar took second place with 14.

Results of the Hythe team match, posted Tuesday, showed a four-man Canadian Army team second to an RAF Bomber Command foursome. The airmen scored 342 out of 350 and the Canadians shot 322 in two matches Monday that counted in aggregate for the Hythe.

HAD PERFECT SCORE

One of the two Hythe matches, the Players Cup for shooting at 200 yards from a sitting position, brought top individual honors Monday to Daigle, who scored a perfect 50.

Daigle, 1963 winner of the Canadian Queen's Medal, is a contender for the Bisley service rifle championship. The title is based on the top aggregate score in seven individual events including the ones in which Daigle placed first and second—the Players and the Queen Mary first stage.

The Queen Mary consists of four parts in each stage: Deliberate shooting at 500 yards, running and firing at intervals from 500 up to 100 yards, rapid firing at 300 yards, and snap shooting from 300 yards at targets exposed in different places for three seconds each.

The Kinnaird won by Molnar is a seven-shot test of deliberate marksmanship at 300 yards. He scored 34 out of 35 Monday to tie with Van Gelderen and two Royal Navy men. In the three-shot tie-breaker Tuesday evening, Molnar scored an inner and two bulls to the airman's three bulls. The navy men fell back with scores of 13 and 10.

The Canadian Army team consists basically of marksmen from the 1st Battalion, Black Watch of Canada, Camp Gagetown, N.B., who won the Canadian Army championship last August. Daigle, a member of the Royal 22nd Regiment, Camp Valcartier, Que., and Kabatoff, of Lord Strathcona's Horse, Calgary, are independent members of the squad.

As such, they cannot be designated as members of groups shooting for team prizes. Daigle's top score in the Players Cup, for example, could not be applied in any four-man aggregate for the Hythe Trophy team score.

FILMS BEAT BOOKS

A Canadian film studio says Canada now produces more new films than new books each year.

Chuvalo Wants Crack At Champion

TORONTO (CP)—Irv Ungerman, manager of Canadian heavyweight Champion George Chuvalo of Toronto, said Tuesday Chuvalo has been offered several fights in the next two months.

But he said Chuvalo, third-ranked in World Boxing Association listings, is still hoping for a shot at world champion Cassius Clay.

Earlier Tuesday, San Francisco matchmaker Benny Ford said he has offered Chuvalo a guarantee of $15,000 and three round-trip tickets to box Elmer Rush in San Francisco Aug. 23 or sometime in September. Rush, 23, has lost only once and is ranked ninth.

Ungerman said he is considering several other offers and isn't in a position to decide on the San Francisco bout.

Offers mentioned by Ungerman included a September bout in England against Brian London, a Regina fight against an unnamed opponent early in August, a bout in Glace Bay, N.S., against unranked Chip Johnson of Miami July 31 and a fight in Saint John, N.B., July 19 against an unnamed opponent.

More Marines Rushed to Viet

(Times News Services)

SAIGON—Some 3,400 U.S. Marines landed at two points in central Viet Nam today, and a U.S. spokesman announced 4,600 more will come shore during the next week to boost American military strength to nearly 60,000 men.

About midway between the two marine landing points, the district capital of Dak, in the central highlands 280 miles northeast of Saigon, was reported overrun by the Viet Cong Tuesday night and was believed still in their hands late today. A relief force was ambushed and forced back.

As the marines began coming ashore, about 25 B-52 bombers of the U.S. Strategic Air Command flew 2,200 miles from Guam and dropped about 500 tons of bombs on an area in the D-zone jungle, 35 miles northeast of Saigon. A U.S. spokesman said no ground assessment of the damage has been made.

U.S. and Australian troops combing another sector of D-Zone got into an intense, half-hour clash with the Viet Cong today, about 25 miles northeast of Saigon, and were pinned down briefly by machine-gun fire.

A U.S. spokesman declined to say whether there were any allied casualties. He said the Viet Cong broke off the attack after helicopters began strafing the area.

A U.S. military spokesman said the new wave of Marines was not part of the six U.S.-based combat battalions recently ticketed for Viet Nam by the defence department.

He said the fresh reinforcements "were needed too quickly" to wait for the announced battalions. The arrivals were pulled in from the third Marine division on Okinawa because they were closer.

Underground Blasts Proposed by Wilson

LONDON (AP) — Prime Minister Wilson said Tuesday he had proposed staging one or two small underground nuclear explosions to see whether Soviet scientists could detect them.

Wilson told the House of Commons great advances have been made in the last few years on means of verifying underground explosions "but we have not reached the point where we can safely rely on external verification to distinguish between a nuclear explosion and, shall we say, a chemical one of equal power."

A treaty banning nuclear testing in the atmosphere, under water and in space was signed in Moscow Aug. 5, 1963, but underground testing was excluded because of the question of verification. The West insisted that some on-the-spot vertification was necessary; the Russians refused saying this would amount to espionage.

Sir Alec Douglas-Home, former Conservative prime minister and foreign secretary who negotiated and signed the test-ban treaty, asked Wilson whether he planned to revive a proposal for a meeting of U.S., British and Russian scientists to discuss the question of verification.

It was at that point that Wilson said he thought this would be a good idea since the Russians were so positive of their ability at external verification.

He said he had proposed to arrange for one or two small staged tests at times known only to the secretary-general of the United Nations to see whether the Russians could actually detect them.

Intervention Asked

MONTREAL (CP). — The Quebec Food Council Tuesday asked federal and provincial authorities to intervene in the strike of 1,000 grain elevator operators at Montreal. A telegram said there is a possibility of the strike spreading to other ports in Eastern Canada.

DRAMA AT BRIDGE

Spectator Drowns As Jumper Foiled

BUFFALO, N.Y. (UPI) — A young man who apparently came to watch another jump 70 feet into the Niagara River from the International Bridge here drowned today.

Police said the man, about 25 or 30 but unidentified, slipped off a dock and drowned in the river about 50 yards from where Earl K. Harmon was perched and threatening to jump when he had attracted a large enough crowd.

Officers said the victim struck his head on a docked boat after he slipped. His body was recovered in about 15 minutes. Police said only a few persons had gathered to watch the bridge drama.

COAXED TO SAFETY

Harmon, 23, of Buffalo, was coaxed off the bridge which spans the river between Buffalo and Canada a short time later. The Rev. Frank Endres, a Catholic Priest, talked to Harmon about an hour before he persuaded him to come down.

Harmon was taken to Meyer Memorial Hospital for observation and police said he would be charged with violation of the State mental hygiene law.

Police said the victim was watching the episode from a dock that jutted a short distance into the river. He lost his balance as Rev. Endres talked with Harmon from a fire ladder.

BOMB MISSILES, U.S. URGED

The bases, Ford said in an interview with Mutual Broadcasting System, are a threat to the security of American forces in Viet Nam.

The board voted Tuesday to permit principals, deans and teachers to spank "as promptly as possible after the offence, to associate the punishment with the special need for control."

NEW FROM PROCTER & GAMBLE

SAFEGUARD COMES TO BRITISH COLUMBIA

Leaves you Freer From Perspiration Odour Longer

EXTRA PROTECTION AGAINST ODOUR-CAUSING BACTERIA

So mild, it's ideal for bathing babies

PROCTER & GAMBLE has perfected this new and different deodorant soap named Safeguard. It's in town right now — just in time for summer.

When it's hot outside, you worry about perspiration problems. Then try Safeguard. The new deodorant soap now at your favourite store. Even today's leading deodorant soaps can't match its longer lasting protection against odour-causing bacteria.

Invisible to the naked eye, bacteria grow. So perspiration odour grows. But Safeguard, used daily, gets rid of more bacteria — millions more than any other leading soap — by helping keep new bacteria from growing, hour after hour. Safeguard has the strongest bacteria-fighting formula ever put in a leading bar of soap.

Despite Safeguard's extra strength, no soap you can buy is milder. Why, Safeguard is so mild, it's ideal for baby's bath.

Safeguard soap from Procter & Gamble. In a jewel box package. Polished. Firm.

New! Try this new extra-protection deodorant soap — Safeguard.

New SAFEGUARD stays with you long after other deodorant soaps have quit!

VON RYAN'S EXPRESS
Italian War Drama
Royal Theatre

Shot down over Italy in 1943, U.S. Col. Frank Sinatra is sent to a prisoner-of-war camp where he soon outrages and outranks Major Trevor Howard of the British Army.

The story catches fire when 500 Anglo-American prisoners are caught between retreating Germans and advancing units of the United States infantry—and Col. Sinatra earns the prefix "Von" from the British and American soldiers he pushes around.

The Allied prisoners are packed into a freight train bound for the Fatherland, but soon manage to subdue their Nazi guards, don their uniforms and proceed to bluff their way through Verona, Milan and a burning fuel depot in Switzerland.

Their train, pursued by highly-armored troops and planes over enemy terrain, offers just about the last word in excitement—especially when the Nazis send a train in pursuit.

Col. Sinatra reaches new heights when with eyes, hands and shoulders he fakes a conversation with a member of the Gestapo. He is undeniably a fine actor and has long since escaped the crooner role to which he was condemned for so long.

With Capt. Trevor Howard, he maps out a route which takes the train away from its destination in Germany and brings it to the Swiss border. Then the whole thing boils over with action.

The performances are competent and the script by Wendell Mayse and Joseph Landon, based on a novel by David Westheimer, is sharply oriented.

Theatre Guild Changes Date For Elections

The Victoria Theatre Guild has announced that the board of directors will serve for an extra seven months this year.

The term of the present board was extended until Jan. 31 following a general meeting of the guild last week which voted to hold elections on that date for the year beginning Feb. 1.

Mrs. Gladys Higgins retired as publicity chairman and will be succeeded by vice-chairman Mrs. Joan Jacobs.

Officials of the guild board are: Percy George, president; Thomas Mayne, vice-president; Mrs. Vera Rawlings, secretary; and Mrs. Jan Andrew, treasurer.

Sell Winnie's Home

LONDON (AP)—The London home of Sir Winston Churchill will be sold at auction, probably in October. Knight, Frank and Rutley, real estate agents, announced they had been instructed by Churchill's executors to sell 28 Hyde Park Gate, where Sir Winston died in January. Lady Churchill will move to an apartment at nearby Princess Gate, Kensington.

COMEDIENNE Martha Raye, displaying the insignias of outfits she entertained in South Viet Nam, flashes a smile after arriving in Los Angeles. The comedy star indicated she enjoyed the morale-boosting trip.

Queen E Heat Burns Up Promoters

VANCOUVER (CP)—A breakdown in air conditioning has made most unhappy fellows of the cast of "The Most Happy Fella" performing at the Queen Elizabeth Theatre.

Also unhappy is Martin A. Lindsley, President of the Vancouver Festival which is sponsoring the show, and promoters of the other attractions planned for the 2,800-seat theatre this summer.

Two of the three air-conditioning units in the civic-owned theatre are not operating, awaiting parts from Toronto.

Mr. Lindsley has threatened in a letter to City Council to move concerts to be conducted by Igor Stravinsky July 12-13 out of the theatre unless its air-conditioning units are fixed.

Hugh Pickett, Promotor of performances this summer by Harry Belafonte and the musical Hello Dolly, has also written to council saying the shows will be transferred to a downtown movie theatre unless immediate assurance is given of repairs to the units.

90 DEGREES

Mr. Lindsley said in his letter to council Monday the theatre staff reported 90 degree temperatures in the balcony and 84 degrees on the main floor.

"One member of the audience fainted and a number of persons left because of the heat," he said.

"There has been considerable publicity on the unpleasant conditions in the theatre and our box office receipts have suffered accordingly."

He said receipts for the show could drop as much as $50,000.

Mr. Linsley said there is concern that Igor Stravinsky, who is over 80 years old, would find conditions in the theatre intolerable.

"The orchestra for 'The Most Happy Fella' had to remove their jackets and ties on Saturday.

"We think it unlikely Mr Stravinsky would be physically capable of conducting under these conditions," he said.

MASSIVE INFORMATION PLAN

Pension Plan Rendered Painless

OTTAWA (UPI)—The federal government is launching a massive public education program it hopes will make inauguration of the Canada Pension Plan quiet, painless and simple.

The compulsory scheme becomes effective next Jan. 1 when first contributions will be deducted from payrolls.

The Quebec Pension Plan, for all practical purposes identical to the national plan, becomes operative the same day.

Before then, the department of health and welfare hopes to make the 6.4 million Canadians that will be covered completely aware of their rights and obligations under the new act.

FIRST STEP

The first step in the program has been taken and will be completed within a few days. It is a 10-page blue and red covered pamphlet being distributed to 3,275,000 homes across the country.

The booklet briefly explains the pension plan in French and English and also its relationship to the present $75 a month old age pension.

It will be followed within a few weeks by a detailed reference book—also in English and French and with blue and red covers.

The book, which health and welfare officials hope will be kept, is designed to enable Canadians to answer at home the majority of questions they may have about the pension plan.

OTHER MEASURES

As well, the government is sending information to businessmen for distribution among their employees, conducting an advertising campaign among the news media and training personnel to go into regional offices and answer questions arising out of the complex plan.

Health and welfare officials have received a steady stream of mail inquiries since the bill became law last May 5 and they hope the intensive education program will keep them from being swamped at the end of the year and also make the transition into the plan run smoothly.

The plan wil provide a contributory portable pension of 25 per cent of adjusted yearly earnings for about 92 per cent of the working force.

Although first contributions will be made next year, first benefits won't be paid until Jan. 1, 1967, to allow a fund to accumulate.

Wins Film Award

BERLIN (AP)—A futuristic spy film from France, directed by Jean-Luc Godard, Tuesday won the Gold Bear, top prize in the 15th Berlin film festival. The film Alphaville features Eddie Constantine, Anna Karina, Akim Tamiroff and Howard Vernon. American actor Lee Marvin won a Silver Bear as the best actor for his performance in Cat Ballou.

Japan Royalty To Visit West

TOKYO (UPI)—Prince and Princess Mikasa, accompanied by their daughter Yasuko, will leave here Sept. 5 for a month's visit to Canada and the United States, the imperial household agency announced today.

Prince Mikasa is the youngest brother of Emperor Hirohito.

While in the United States, he will attend the 11th meeting of the International Religious History Association to be held in Claremont, Calif., from Sept. 7 to 12.

Afterward the Japanese visitors will visit cities in the United States and Canada.

Merger Talks Start

OTTAWA (CP)—The 8,000-member department of veterans' affairs Employees National Association today announced it has begun merger talks with the 33,000-member Civil Service Association of Canada. The DVA group, one of 15 national departmental affiliates of the 80,000-member Civil Service Federation of Canada, is the first federation affiliate to take the step.

Rowdyism on Beaches Gets Action at Penticton

PENTICTON (CP)—Auxiliary police may be hired to patrol beaches near here after complaints of rowdyism were received by city council.

Letters from operators of two Skaha Lake tourist accommodations were received by council Monday. Both complained of late-night parties, horn-blowing and unseemly behavior on the beach.

Council was told it would be impractical to hire auxiliary RCMP as each man can only be on duty in the company of a regular RCMP officer.

It was decided to investigate hiring auxiliary police and giving them power by means of a bylaw.

Peacenik Charge 'Utter Nonsense' Replies Officer

COMOX—RCAF public relations officer Phil Clack today denied reports that he had been relieved of his position for speaking to peace marchers during a recent demonstration at the base.

Flight-Lieutenant Clack said the rumors were "utter nonsense."

Peace march leader Peter Light implied in a Peacenik bulletin that Flight-Lieut. Clack had been shifted to other duties for his tolerant attitude towards demonstrators.

The bulletin has been circulated in the Comox area.

Said Clack today: "I applied to go back to flying duties in April before I ever heard of Peter Light.

"The transfer came through in May, to be effective in July."

Cause of the trouble was a sit-down demonstration at the base July 5 when more than 100 peace marchers descended on the base.

At the time, Commanding Officer, Group Captain E. G. Ireland, warned base personnel not to asociate with the marchers.

As public relations officer, Flight-Lieutenant Clack was responsible for dealing with reporters and photographers at the main gate.

In the course of the day he came into contact with several of the demonstrators.

Light's bulletin suggests that he was polite to the marchers and it was for this reason that he had been transferred.

For George's bed was on the roof of his garage, 10 feet above ground level.

Mr. Brown, of Uplands Drive, Nanaimo, had moved to the roof to beat the heat.

His tumble came as he reached across to pull a blanket over himself.

NANAIMO—Construction will begin here soon on a $60,000, two-storey sailors' home. It is being established by the British Sailors' Society (Pacific Division) as a meeting place for sailors of visiting ships.

ISLAND ROUNDUP

Two Campers Robbed

SHAWNIGAN LAKE—Two families holidaying at the government camping site in Bamberton Park were robbed Monday night.

Wilfred Clark, 930 Agnes St., Victoria, and George A. Wand, Ladner, both reported thefts.

The Clarks lost a stove and other camping equipment.

Dishes and cutlery valued at $35 were stolen from the Wands.

During his investigations early Tuesday morning, Const. William Saunders of Shawnigan Lake RCMP, arrested and charged three people with liquor offences.

A 15-year-old girl, member of a beach party, was charged with possession of liquor.

Another is charged with supplying liquor to a minor.

NANAIMO—New magistrate Stan Wardill has clamped down on policemen giving evidence in drunk driving cases.

Hearing his first impaired driving case Tuesday Magistrate Wardill brought in a not guilty verdict.

And he warned police — cliches are not sufficient evidence to convict.

He said the police invariably resort to a series of observations, repeated in almost countless cases.

As an example, he quoted: "The accused had bloodshot eyes, flushed face, and he was unsteady on his feet."

A former lawyer, Mr. Wardill said that while he was sitting in court the "pat impaired speech" would not be enough to convict a driver.

Found not guilty of the charge Tuesday was Walter Liptak, of Nanaimo.

DUNCAN—St. Peter's Anglican Parish salmon barbecue will be held 5 p.m. Thursday at the home of Mr. and Mrs. Paul Stone on Gibbins Road.

NANAIMO—R. E. (Doc) Nicoll, of Breakwater Island, has had another tax assessment appeal turned down.

The perennial land tax assessment battler learned this week that for the second time this year his appeals have failed.

This time, the assessment appeal board of Vancouver, has rejected his argument.

Mr. Nicoll has spent the last eight years attempting to clarify the provincial tax picture.

The agricultural economist uses his property near Gabriola Island as a focal point for his appeals.

He claims a complete review of the machinery of appeals is long overdue.

NANAIMO—Police are searching for vandals who damaged two pieces of property in the area this week.

The vandals smashed a drag line and voltage regulator at a cement company in Chase River and damaged electrical junction boxes in homes under construction in the Lynburn area.

World burling champion Jubiel Wickheim, of Sooke, did it again Tuesday.

He won the men's burling event at the three-day World Champion Timber Carnival at Albany, Ore.

Awards were presented Tuesday.

Jubiel and his brother Ardiel only recently returned from Japan where they appeared in the Canadian Pavilion at the International Trade Fair.

SEARCH OFF

TOFINO — No sign has yet been found of a Vancouver fisherman or his boat missing in the Leonard Island area west of here since June 24.

Searches have now been called off for Ken Gibson and the 36-foot troller Kerry Junior, believed lost when a sudden storm struck on the night of the 24th.

Duncan Jury Attaches No Blame In Head-on Crash on Detour

DUNCAN—Two men saw Wilson Iverson disappear into the Mill Bay detour "in a cloud of dust" seconds before the head-on crash resulting in his death.

Richard Marinich and Robert Grant, both of Victoria, were together in the early hours of June 24 when they were passed by Iverson.

They testified Tuesday night at a coroner's jury in Duncan.

Marinich said he was driving south. He passed Iverson but was, in turn, passed by him.

The last he saw before coming on the scene of the accident was Iverson swinging off the Trans-Canada Highway into the gravel detour.

Norman Shaver, 33, Duncan, was the other driver involved in the fatal crash.

He was alone on his way home at the time.

Shaver told the jury: "There's a blank in my mind about the accident.

"All I remember is a bang. Everything's a haze and I don't even remember seeing another car."

The jury's verdict was accidental death with no blame attached to anyone.

Iverson, 58, was a stockroom employee at University of Victoria and his last known address was 1093 Foul Bay Road. He is survived by a son and daughter in California.

Medical evidence was that Iverson died of multiple injuries.

Dispute Settled

A contract dispute involving 78 operating engineers — members of the Operating Engineers (Ind.) — at hospitals in Campbell River, Nanaimo, Port Alberni, Vancouver, Burnaby and Trail has been settled. The contract will raise wages to a range of $461 to $620-a-month in the first year and $488 to $645-a-month in the second.

Arbitration Rule Urged By Trustees

District 70 School Board has adopted a resolution calling for impartial arbitration of disputes between trustees and the provincial government over shareability of capital costs.

Copies of the resolution will go to the annual meeting of the Vancouver Island Branch of the B.C. Trustees' Association.

At present the provincial government has the final say on which capital costs contemplated by a school board will be subject to provincial grants.

The board rejected a second resolution proposed by vice-chairman Carl Anshelm which sought permission for day school students to attend night school classes.

Mr. Anshelm said there is no difference between the day student attending a night school course and going to a tutor for assistance in a particular subject.

Trustee Bill Beckingham said the resolution was "too broad and would be dangerous."

ISLAND DIGEST

STRAIGHT from Moscow came Wing Commander Walter L. Drake this week to take over as chief operations officer at RCAF station Comox. A pilot, W/C Drake, was Canadian Air Attache in the Russian capital. Prior to going to Russia, he served as operations officer at NORAD headquarters in Colorado Springs. W/C Drake has spent 14 of his 29 years service outside Canada, including wartime service in a Mosquito night fighter squadron overseas.

FERRY SLAMS TERMINAL; SIX VEHICLES DAMAGED

ANACORTES, Wash.—The engines of the ferry Evergreen State failed to reverse Tuesday and the craft slammed into the ferry terminal here causing $15,000 to $20,000 damage to both of its wingwalls and six vehicles aboard.

No one was injured in the mishap.

Jack Hogan, manager of the Washington State Ferries, said the vessel made a return run to Sidney afterward.

Ferry engineers inspecting the damaged craft Tuesday night said they had not yet determined why the engines failed to reverse.

Fires Doused By Bombers

Water bombers have won the early rounds in the fight to save British Columbia's forest wealth from the ravages of fire this summer.

Although the fire hazard has been rated high to extreme in four of the five B.C. forest districts, there have been few major fires.

Forest Service personnel credit the 40 aircraft on contract to the service for the summer with keeping many fires minor and controlling them sufficiently to allow ground crews to clean up.

A Forest Service official said Tuesday night: "After such a long spell of really hot weather you'd expect one or two fires covering anywhere from 30,000 to 50,000 acres."

"We haven't had any of these, although we've had a few under 10,000 acres."

'BIRD DOGGING'

The aircraft are used mostly for water bombing. Some are used for fire spotting and "bird dogging," guiding a larger aircraft to a fire. Helicopters are used to take men to the fires.

It is the first time the service has relied so heavily on aircraft for fire protection.

In the last four days 119 fires have been started, but only two were considered serious.

These two were 5,000 and 8,000-acre blazes burning out of control in spruce timber in the Fort Nelson area north of Prince George despite efforts by nearly 200 men to contain them.

With the woods in an explosive condition, one company on Vancouver Island closed its operations throwing an undetermined number of men out of work.

Most other logging camps are working early morning shifts to avoid the hot mid-day sun and thus reduce the fire hazard.

The weatherman has forecast continued hot, dry weather in all districts Wednesday except the Prince Rupert area where clouds have brought a few rain showers.

'NO PATTERN DEVELOPING OF ROWDYISM'

Attorney-General Bonner said Tuesday he is satisfied an outbreak of rowdyism at White Rock last weekend doesn't reflect any developing pattern across the province.

Mr. Bonner said the incident, in which a resort owner shot and wounded two youths, was one of a series of sporadic outbreaks of rowdyism in recreational areas.

However, he suggested the public should look beyond the matter of police protection in seeking to avoid recurrences of such troubles.

"A pertinent factor is what control is being excerised at the family level when juveniles or young adults are keeping these kind of hours."

No Charges For Shooting Teen-Agers

WHITE ROCK (CP) — J. Wilson, municipal prosecutor, said Tuesday no charges will be laid against a campsite owner who wounded two teenage gang members.

Mr. Wilson said, however, that charges will be laid against several of the youths who led a mob onto the camp grounds Saturday.

Owner John Everett Dick shot two youths in the leg with a .22-calibre pistol after he gave repeated warnings to them to leave the property.

GOOD CONDITION

In good condition in hospital were Lawrence Ferster, 17, and Lawrence Eyre, 19.

Mr. Dick claimed he was forced to use his pistol to protect campers on the property.

Police said the mob apparently had been at a beer-drinking party at a beach about a quarter-mile north of the Canada-U.S. border.

Mr. Wilson said further investigation by RCMP will be required before he is able to determine how many of the estimated 50 youths will be charged.

Pill Slows Birth Rate

CANBERRA, Australia (Reuters) — Australia's birth rate in the first three months of this year dropped to its lowest figure since the Second World War official figures released here show. Authorities blamed the drop on the introduction of the oral birth control pill.

CITY FIREMEN FORM HONOR GUARD AT ST. JOHN'S ANGLICAN CHURCH

'He Loved His Victoria . . . Work;' Hundreds Pay Tribute to Curtis

The simple dignity of Anglican rites was felt by more than 500 people as funeral service for the late Ald. Austin Ivor Curtis was held Tuesday.

The people gathered at St. John's Church, where Canon George Biddle asked them to sing the former choir member's favorite hymn, "Unto the hills around do I lift up my longing eyes . . ."

Mayor R. B. Wilson, ex-mayor Percy Scurrah, aldermen, councillors from Greater Victoria municipalities, civic officers, school board personnel past and present, joined the family and prominent citizens in the brief service.

'PREPARE A PLACE . . .'

"I go to prepare a place for you," Canon Biddle spoke from the words of Jesus to the disciples.

The choir led in singing of the Twenty-Third Psalm as organ music welled up in the beautiful church, sunlight streaming through its stained glass.

Ald. Curtis had strangely dissimilar associations with the old building, restored after a mid-winter night fire consumed its interior 4½ years ago; he was a member of its choir and he was chairman of fire wardens committee for city council, his most notable work during 11 years as alderman.

In his memory, 20 city firemen heard the service and stood an honor guard on the church steps as the casket was carried through the portals.

Austin Curtis, said Canon Biddle, was a devoted man. "Loyalty and integrity," he said, were the two words he would choose to describe him.

"He loved his Victoria and his work for the fire department. He had a special spot in his heart for them . . .

"He will be greatly missed because he was greatly loved," the minister said.

Canon Biddle said he believed paying tribute where tribute is due, although in the Anglican Church it is not customary to speak an eulogy. He quoted a passage from the funeral tribute to King George V.

The people repeated the Lord's Prayer and the canon said a final prayer to end the service.

PALLBEARERS

Pallbearers were C. C. Wyatt, W. A. Bayliss, Kenneth Reid, Dennis Young, Lieut-Cmdr. Colin White and Joseph Emmett.

Honorary bearers were Mayor Wilson, Mr. Scurrah, Ald. Cecil Parrott, W. S. Kirkpatrick, fire chief John Abbott, L. M. Corke, Alec Baird, Jack Lee, M. K. Crockett and Mike Griffin.

Interment was at Royal Oak Burial Park, following cremation.

Killer Lioness' Owner Committed For Trial

QUEBEC (CP) — Georges Baker, owner of a young lioness that killed a three-month-old child last November, was committed for trial at the next assizes by Judge Alphonse Garon Tuesday. Baker is charged with criminal negligence.

The child Manon Tanguay, was clawed by the lioness in Baker's home in suburban Sillery.

Judge Garon, who presided at the preliminary hearing, said Baker should have known it was dangerous to keep an animal such as a lioness and that its claws should have been clipped.

Baker is free on $1,000 bail pending trial.

Compensate Wounded

JOHANNESBURG (Reuters) —Thirty-four white mercenaries wounded or disabled in the Congo Republic have been awarded compensation totalling more than 200,000 rand ($280,000), Irish-born Col. Mike Hoare the mercenaries' commander, said here Tuesday.

THOMPSON WANTS RIVARD PROBE

RED DEER (CP)—National Social Credit Leader Robert Thompson called Tuesday for further inquiry into the Lucien Rivard affair.

He said he wants another probe because not everything was uncovered in the Dorion report.

Mr. Thompson said it was "very unfortunate" Chief Justice Frederic Dorion's terms of reference were not sufficient for a complete investigation.

Mr. Thompson said he wanted to know if the $20,000 bribe offered to Montreal lawyer Pierre Lamontagne would have come from political patronage or international crime circles.

States to Vote On Succession

WASHINGTON (AP) — The Senate approved and sent to the states for ratification Tuesday a proposed U.S. constitutional amendment spelling out procedure to deal with presidential incapacity and to keep the vice-presidency filled.

The Senate completed U.S. congressional action by a 68-to-5 roll call vote—more than the two-thirds majority required. The House of Representatives had accepted the version by voice vote last Wednesday. President Johnson's signature is not required.

OIL WORKERS

Refinery Strike May Be Lengthy

VANCOUVER (CP)—Sitdown strikers inside the Shell Oil Company's Shellburn oil refinery are preparing for a long siege.

Attempts to get the company and the Oil, Chemical and Atomic Workers' Union (CLC) to discuss the situation failed Tuesday and for the second night in a row food was passed over the fence to the 100 strikers inside.

Following picket line violence Monday night the company was granted an injunction by the Supreme Court Tuesday restraining union members from dissuading persons from entering company property or dealing in Shell Oil goods.

Union president Fred Geddes said the company refused to meet until the men inside end the strike.

The strike, culmination of a series of disputes about overtime, began when maintenance workers refused to work overtime to repair a furnace last Saturday.

The union claims the maintenance workers who refused to work have been threatened with dismissal.

Union chairman Jerry Le Bourdais, who has been dismissed from his job, has said the men inside will not work until the company guarantees no disciplinary action against the maintenance men.

Miniature Sub Found

SEOUL (AP)—The U.S. navy is investigating a miniature submarine found grounded at low tide on a mud flat a mile south of the juncture of South Korea's Imjim and Han rivers. The submarine, believed to be a two-man Japanese craft left over from the Second World War, was found Monday by a South Korean army patrol.

Arthur Mayse

We come now to a chapter in our up-Island pilgrimage which I'm writing only that those who follow may take warning. It has to do with the travails imposed on us by our car, a vehicle no longer in its kitten years. Nevertheless, it started out bravely enough from Victoria with a new travel trailer towing astern.

We had a good equalizer hitch. That's mighty important to trailering.

The minor leak in the radiator had been dealt with before we left home. All the various fluids which are a car's lifeblood had been brought to their proper levels.

But the complex mishmash of rods, piping, shafts and cogwheels between hitch and radiator, I took for granted. They'd been doing their job unobtrusively for the last 72,000 miles, hadn't they?

So I put them out of mind until a certain Je ne sais quoi in Old Faithful's performance evolved into a subdued whup-whup-whup.

Even then, I didn't worry unduly. Tappets talking back, I decided, or perhaps a fleck of carbon fouling a sparkplug.

We found a nice spot for our trailer. I uncoupled the equalizer hitch at no more cost than a skinned knuckle, set the jacks that support a trailer's hind end when it is divorced from its automobile, twisted the faucet atop the tubby propane tank, and drove off to hunt up a friend in the boat-rental business.

With Parksville in view, the whup became a clank, then a clatter fit to chill a driver's blood.

★ ★ ★

"Bearing's kicked over," said the stern young mechanic.

We hung around disconsolately while bits and pieces of engine began to clutter the shop floor. Then we wandered the blazing-hot town, while luckier travellers purred past on the highway, many with trailers trotting meekly after on their neat little equalizer hitches.

"I've got a Splutz in with an occluded aorta," said the mechanic, more or less. "If there aren't too many interruptions, I'll finish that by Monday." He added, "You'll have yours back in a week."

We mooched off, hunted up another vehicle, and resumed our fractured journey. The substitute car was newer, but it's hard to love a sleek yellow brute that hasn't yet suffered enough to acquire a soul.

Gratefully, when the week was up, we transferred to our own car. It smelled right. It felt homey. We coupled up the trailer, rejoicing, and for a matter of miles, all went well.

★ ★ ★

Near the brow of a long, long hill, Old Faithful stopped smelling right.

Jetting steam from under her hood, she labored over the summit and in to the highway shoulder.

The passenger cars sailed carefree by, as I too have done under like circumstances. A good guy in a pickup stopped, and gave me a lift to a garage.

Presently tow truck, car and trailer started off in a linked cavalcade. We choo-chooed along until, from the other direction, a double-header freight rig roared past. The push of wind from its cliff-like sides set us swaying, and before you can say 'Get a horse!' we began to whiplash.

Swoop out to the middle of the highway—by a miracle empty at the moment. Then in to the shoulder, which dropped off in a steep 20 or 30 foot embankment. This not for the split second of the average highway hazard but for what to us seemed minutes. Once the trailer lurched a wheel over. But the knuckle-buster hitch held, our course straightened at last, and we came safe if quaking, to the garage.

So there you have it, chums, a lifetime of automotive misery compressed into a few days. Old Faithful is now in the hands of two eminent Victoria car specialists for further surgery, and I have some advice for all who plan to go trailering:

Make sure your car is sound. Equip it with a recommended hitch. And in your gear, swaddled against breakage, pack a bottle of well-aged drinking whisky . . . because, believe me, a time will come when you'll find a use for it!

CENTENNIAL COMMITTEE APPEALS . . . . . . TO GREATER VICTORIA FOR VOTE

Ideas Narrowed to Four—Now It Is Up to YOU

BRUCE HUMBER
. . . decide by July 31

Victorians today have a chance to help select a Greater Victoria joint centennial project from four suggested schemes covering sports, education and entertainment.

The Times, in co-operation with Greater Victoria Canadian confederation centennial committee, is publishing a ballot asking citizens to vote preference for:

- A planetarium;
- A multiple sports stadium complex with provision for indoor sports auditorium;
- A glass-domed pavilion at Clover Point;
- An outdoor salt water swimming pool.

Committee projects chairman Bruce Humber said today the list of 46 projects submitted by organizations and the general public up to July 1 deadline was narrowed after many meetings.

MANY FACTORS

"In making the decisions which brought the number of projects down to four, a number of factors had to be considered," he said.

"First, the projects which will be or could normally be carried out by either federal, provincial or municipal funds in the normal course of events had to be eliminated.

"The centennial project has to be one which would not normally be done.

"Second, projects which were not considered wide enough in scope, covering the need of the four municipalities involved—Oak Bay, Saanich, Victoria and Esquimalt—had to be eliminated.

'TOO COSTLY . . .'

"Third, some projects obviously were too costly to be considered.

(About $450,000 will be available.)

"Your committee feels that with the help of The Times ballot it will reach a decision before the end of July and will forward this decision to the proper authorities for their consideration," Mr. Humber said.

When a final project is selected, the four municipalities must agree to its acceptance.

PLEASED AT RESPONSE

Mr. Humber noted many fine projects were submitted. He was pleased with the response to the committee's request for ideas.

About 25 per cent of the suggestions covered sports projects, many of them seeking a stadium complex. A brief submitted by the centennial stadium committee of Greater Victoria Sports Council was selected as most detailed and typical.

PROJECTS LINKED

This is complimented by a brief from the Victoria and District Amateur Basketball Association asking for an indoor sports auditorium and the committee linked them into one project for purposes of the ballot.

Mr. Humber explained there would not be enough money to do both, but that they should both be allowed for on the same site for future development.

Indoor facilities suggested would accommodate 2,200 spectators for basketball, volleyball and badminton games. Total cost estimated including land would be $441,000.

15,000 SEATING

The outdoor complex should have seating for 15,000, parking for 3,000 autos on a 25-acre site, the sports council suggested.

Initially, 5,000 seats would be needed for a total cost of $400,000, not counting land.

The planetarium brief was submitted by Victoria centre of the Royal Astronomical Society of Canada. It would be an educational, cultural and entertainment facility with seating in the main theatre for 200 persons and 150 more in a lecture theatre.

Estimated cost is $469,000 excluding land.

SMALL THEATRE

The pavilion idea was submitted by R. B. Shaw, 1277 Rockland, who proposed a small theatre, auditorium, restaurant and facilities for orchestral concerts, dancing, small conventions, tearoom or coffee bar.

S. T. FitzPatrick, 1370 Oliver, suggested the outdoor pool for construction on the beach at Gyro Park, Cadboro Bay.

He said Vancouver's Kitsilano pool might be used as a rough guide for estimating cost.

To such ideas as Gorge beautification, the committee felt the amount of money required to be spent would not show tangible enough results; an aquarium would duplicate Oak Bay Marina's undersea garden; Royal Athletic Park redevelopment is a Victoria city responsibility; a centre for the performing arts will be handled by other funds.

Regional parks are covered by provincial legislation; a competition for prizes in the creative arts suggested by the late Ald. Austin Curtis was referred to centennial celebrations committee for possible consideration.

The ballot will appear daily and as they are sent in by readers, The Times will summarize the trend and preferences as a daily feature.

WHICH ONE?

Here is your chance to express your view on a centennial project for Greater Victoria.

The centennial committee Tuesday night winnowed down to four the number of projects still in the running.

To assist the committee in finding out the preference of the public The Times will run the following ballot daily until the end of the month when final decision will be made.

All you do is mark a cross against your choice and mail to "Times Centennial Project Ballot," 2631 Douglas Street, Victoria.

These are the four projects:

1. Planetarium ☐
2. Stadium complex with provision for immediate or future construction of indoor sports facilities ☐
3. Glass-domed pavilion at Clover Point ☐
4. Outdoor saltwater pool at Cadboro Bay ☐

Hurried Burglar Drops Safe

A burglar in a hurry to get away from the scene of his crime dropped a stolen safe from the back of his truck at a downtown intersection shortly before midnight Tuesday.

City police arrested a man a few hours after the safe was recovered.

In court this morning Clifford Piper, 2943 Bridge, was charged with breaking, entering and theft at Bluebird Cabs, 708 Johnson, and with unlawful possession of a safe stolen from Bluebird Cabs.

He elected trial by judge and jury. Bail was set at $1,000 cash or one surety.

Crown Prosecutor Peter Birkett said exhibits in the case will have to be tested at the Vancouver crime laboratory. Piper was remanded one week when a date will be set for preliminary hearing of the charges against him.

City police said a service station attendant, Bob Dunsmuir, 94 West Maddock, noticed the safe when it fell out of a truck at Johnson and Blanshard.

Mr. Dunsmuir heard the thud as the safe hit the ground. He looked over and saw the truck swing quickly left on Blanshard and take off at high speed.

U.S. Ban 'Severe Blow'

U.S. ban on imports of B.C. rooted crops has dealt a severe blow to the Vancouver Island and mainland seed potato industry.

The ban, which includes plants with soil attached, was imposed by the U.S. government until the areas of the golden nematode infestations are known in the province.

Federal plant inspectors are presently conducting soil testing for nematodes on island and mainland potato farms.

"The embargo will hurt seed potato farmers beyond question," Don Wilson, chairman of the Island Vegetable Co-operative Association, said today.

The Island exports to Washington and Oregon annually 25 carloads of seed potatoes — about 500 tons.

NOT SURPRISED

Mr. Wilson said he heard of the embargo Tuesday, but wasn't surprised.

He hoped representation would be made to Washington to lift the ban as soon as the extent of the infestation is known in the province.

He felt farm lands north of Ladysmith were free of the potato and tomato pests.

"Soil tests were conducted two years ago for the root rot nematode—another species of nematode," he said. "We were given a clean bill of health."

Federal plant inspectors expect to complete the golden nematode survey on potato farms by fall—in time for them to move their crops.

Clar Nelson, assistant field crop commissioner, said plant inspectors were presently concentrating the survey on potato farms and nurseries.

Meanwhile, researchers at the Patricia Bay airport laboratory, reported that it has been definitely established that the pest is on two separate farms owned by the man who orginally reported the infestation.

HABITUAL TRIAL DELAYED

Supreme Court To Hear Appeal

Habitual criminal proceedings against a 26-year-old Victoria man have been delayed to allow him to appeal a conviction to the Supreme Court of Canada.

John L. Smith was convicted earlier this year of attempting breaking and entering of a store in downtown Victoria.

After his conviction the Crown instituted proceedings to have him declared an habitual criminal who should be held in indefinite detention in the public interest.

Smith, however, appealed the conviction to the Court of Appeal of B.C. His appeal asked the court to consider new evidence of identification.

REJECTED

The court unanimously rejected the appeal and the date of Aug. 3 was set for the start of the habitual criminal proceedings.

In city court today Special Crown Prosecutor Terry O'Grady said Smith has now appealed to the Supreme Court of Canada.

Smith's lawyer, John McAlpine of Vancouver, said the appeal is based on three grounds, all dealing with the question of identification.

Smith was originally convicted mainly on evidence by a janitor who saw two men attempt to break into a store. The janitor raised the alarm and chased one of the men.

Mr. McAlpine said the appeal to the Supreme Court will ask if the B.C. Court of Appeal erred in not allowing new evidence on the identification.

Mr. McAlpine said there is evidence of a profound similarity between Smith and another person but the B.C. Appeal Court did not think this was relevant.

He said the B.C. Appeal Court also found that "the fact Smith could have given evidence and didn't can be taken as an inference against him."

ERRED?

Mr. McAlpine said the Supreme Court will be asked to say if the court erred in taking this point of view.

The third ground for appeal is that Magistrate William Ostler may have erred in holding there was sufficient evidence of identification to convict Smith. The appeal states that witnesses had only a limited opportunity to observe the burglars during the course of a pursuit. The appeal also takes note that the police failed to hold a line-up in the case.

The case was remanded today to Aug. 3 to await disposition of the new appeal and set a new date for a hearing if necessary.

Esquimalt Awaits View Royal Word On Merger Move

Esquimalt is waiting for word from View Royal before the next steps can be taken on the amalgamation of the two areas, Esquimalt Reeve A. C. Wurtele said today.

Both groups must make their own arrangements for a study of amalgamation problems and sharing the costs of a study.

A retired deputy minister of municipal affairs, B. C. Bracewell, said today he has been asked if he is available to handle the study, but declined to indicate his answer.

Main issue will be to establish a suitable tax structure for View Royal should it merge with Esquimalt.

TOUR PARTIES BIG BUSINESS

The Empress Hotel is serving an average of 300 meals a day to tour parties from many parts of Canada and the United States.

And the daily average of tour parties is around 14.

Today's tours originated in Chicago, New York, Philadelphia and San Francisco. Most of them come to Victoria from Seattle, then move on to Banff and Lake Louise, and return to the United States via Vancouver.

TOPICS of the DAY

Magistrate William Ostler Tuesday convicted Donald French, 532 Dallas Road, of impaired driving and imposed a $300 fine.

Evidence showed French was found behind the steering wheel of his car at the scene of an accident at Dallas and St. Lawrence April 19.

The magistrate said there was no evidence of who had been driving or when the accident occurred. However French admitted at the time being the driver although he later denied it.

The magistrate said French's admission was consistent with the facts.

Ray Hadfield, B.C. Motor Vehicle Superintendent, said Tuesday unofficial figures to the end of June show a three per cent rise in traffic accidents but an alarming 22.5 per cent jump in road deaths.

Eleven of the fatalities involved motorcyclists, compared with only one such death in the first half of 1964.

New Dimension For B.C. Votes

Multiple Insurance, Bank—NDP Platform

By JOHN MIKA
Times Legislative Reporter

The New Democratic Party today offered a "new dimension in government"—primarily by greater participation in the business world—in return for election as the B.C. government.

NDP Leader Robert Strachan released the multi-point statement of objectives drafted by a policy committee following the party's recent annual convention.

It featured plans to:

Establish a Bureau of Automation and Technology to help guide the province away from "social dislocation and chaos";

Launch a government-sponsored life insurance company as well as the long-advocated government car and fire insurance plans;

Create a county system and re-allocate provincial-municipal financial responsibilities;

BANKING AGENCY

Start a "banking agency in which the government will hold a substantial interest" which Mr. Strachan said could be either a chartered bank or an industrial development bank;

Ensure crown ownership of timber and its exploitation by all types of crown corporations.

The proposed ventures into life insurance, the lumbering industry and money-lending business were specific items in a general objective of "plans to finance social needs from profits of investment in industry and government enterprises."

It said the investment money would come from the capital reserves slated for the province from the Canada Pension Plan.

Other goals set as official policy repeated previous themes.

APPOINT OMBUDSMAN

These included: No reclassification of provincial parks without specific legislative approvals; appointment of an ombudsman; citizen rights to sue the government; adoption of oral question period and a Hansard in the legislature.

The policy also said the NDP would appoint an independent commission to redistribute B.C. constituencies and would lower the voting age to 18.

A system of public defenders to ensure no one was tried in B.C. courts without a lawyer would be instituted along with a law reform committee composed of jurists, lawyers and law professors.

A provincial bill of rights would be enacted.

Hotel Talks Break Down; Go to Board

Conciliation talks between both sides in the Empress Hotel contract dispute broke down Tuesday and a conciliation board will be formed.

The move was recommended by conciliation officer W. T. McLaughlin after only one meeting.

The conciliation board, composed of a representative from each side and an independent chairman, will hold hearings and make a report, possibly in three or four weeks.

Large Operation In Stolen Goods Nets 18 Months

Janos Puskas, 1020 Catherine, was given an 18-month jail term Tuesday when sentenced in city court on one charge of breaking and entering and seven counts of unlawful possession of property.

Mihally Molnar, same address, who was described by the magistrate as a "follower" of Puskas, was given a suspended sentence for breaking and entering.

The two were convicted of breaking and entering at the YMCA construction site April 1. Puskas was also convicted on possession charges dealing with construction materials.

Magistrate William Ostler said evidence in the case against Puskas indicated he was engaged in a large scale operation.

Q. Is it necessary for English-born people to take out Canadian citizenship papers if they have lived in Canada over 40 years? C.W.

A. No, you are automatically a Canadian citizen if you have been here that long. But if you want to apply for proof of citizenship, all you need is a birth certificate and $1. Take both to new Victoria Law Courts building, room 101.

ATTENDS YEATS CENTENARY IN DUBLIN

Swans Good Omen for Dr. Ann

By SUSAN PELLAND

Dr. Ann Saddlemyer, associate professor of English at the University of Victoria, has returned from a seven-week trip to Ireland.

There she took part in the Yeats Centenary Festival at Dublin celebrating the birth of the Irish poet-playwright in 1865.

Dr. Saddlemyer is a recognized scholar in the field of Irish prose and poetry and was responsible for the production of the Yeats Festival held here in March of this year.

The result of this festival was the publication of her book "The World of W. B. Yeats" edited by Dr. Saddlemyer and Robin Skelton, also associate professor of English at the university.

NEW BOOK

While in Ireland, Dr. Saddlemyer also worked on the manuscripts for publication of her new book—a collection of the plays of John Ellington Synge.

Born in Saskatchewan, she considers Ireland her second home and laughingly refers to Yeats and Synge as "my boys."

Once, while she was addressing a group of students gathered on the grounds of Coole, two wild swans flew overhead. The students considered this a good omen since Yeats wrote of the swans at Coole in many of his poems.

It convinced them that Ireland truly was her "home away from home."

AWARDED FELLOWSHIP

Dr. Saddlemyer was awarded the Guggenheim Fellowship in March of this year for research on the works of Yeats and Synge.

This enables her to take a year out from her teaching to work on her new book but at the end of the year she will return to the classroom and the work she enjoys most.

Explaining why she prefers to remain at the small, still-struggling University of Victoria Dr. Saddlemyer said:

"It is much more exciting to mould and pattern a university while it is still growing. Here I have the teaching freedom I wouldn't have at an older, established university. The results are more rewarding when they're yours."

Saanichton Fair Expanding With 4-Acre Land Purchase

Saanichton Fair is going to do something about its seamsbursting.

A general membership meeting of the North and South Saanich Agricultural Society gave the go-ahead Tuesday night to a plan to buy four acres of property adjoining the fair grounds to the north, adjacent to an area that has been used as the main parking area in the past years.

It will expand the fair grounds to 17 acres.

Negotiations for the purchase were carried out by fair board president Bert Doney who said increasing popularity of the fair, and rising land values warranted the action.

In discussion of the move, it was suggested the time was fast approaching for a general reorganization of the grounds and buildings with improvements in all sections.

SHOPPING GUIDE

Sleepwear for Summer Is Cool and Feminine

By Penny Saver

It won't be too long, now, before the Saver household packs up and takes off for a couple of weeks' vacation, just relaxing. The menfolk have been discussing the possibilities of camping but I am determinedly fighting for a trip to a resort or maybe even Hawaii. I can see what's going to happen—the boys are going to go camping and I am going to end up where I want to go all by myself.

I'm busily shopping for some new clothes to take along; new clothes always seem to make a vacation even nicer for me. I've discovered some of the greatest sleep-wear items, too, and I'd like to tell you about them.

These are for the strictly feminine female—the coolest idea in "shorty" pyjamas ever! Made of wonderfully washable nylon, these adhere to the bare look for this summer's fashions because they are sheer. The top is made of yards and yards of filmy nylon, and neckline, belled sleeves and hem are all trimmed with maribou. How feminine can you get?

Bottoms are brief, frilled bikini pants. The whole ensemble is selling for $14.95. They're wonderful for summer because they are so very, very cool. Trim can be removed for washing, too.

Another "fashion-conscious" pyjama is the new nylon bikini sleep-wear set I found, selling for $8.95. Also trimmed in fluffy, feminine maribou, this features a slightly supported bra top and brief pants.

Here's another item which would make a wonderful gift for Mom for her birthday or anniversary.

This is one of the most beautiful ideas for lounging I have ever seen. It is a "pop-on"—a full-length shift of finely brushed rayon, or "cuddle-down"—warm for winter and delightfully cool for summer.

The "pop-on" is finely tailored for a better and longer wear. Take note—this garment is entirely machine-washable and can be dried by machine, too, without losing its fluffy softness. You'll love the rows of ruffles which band the scoop neckline and three-quarter-length sleeves. For convenience, the skirt is slit at the bottom. Price is $24.95.

Green Goddess Rice is the name of this zingy new menu idea. It's perfect warm weather accompaniment for broiled meat. Simple preparations take only a short time, and yield a tempting and delicious dish.

IT'S A MAN'S DISH

Savory Rice Tasty With Meat

Green Goddess Rice is the ideal accompaniment for broiled lamb chops—or any broiled meat for that matter.

The savory rice mixture, named after the popular California-originated salad, contains a variety of zesty seasonings: garlic, green onions, anchovy paste, tarragon vinegar, and coarsely ground black pepper. Sour cream blends the seasonings into a smooth sauce which is then spooned over rice cooked in chicken broth until fluffy and tender.

Green Goddess Rice is the kind of a dish a man likes to prepare . . . and to eat. It requires a minimum of preparation time—just the amount needed to cook the rice, crush the garlic, chop the parsley and green onions, and measure the other ingredients. While the rice cooks, its seasonings can be prepared and the lamb chops cooked to the preferred doneness.

GREEN GODDESS RICE

Three cups chicken broth; 1½ cups uncooked rice; ¾ teaspoon salt; 1 clove garlic, crushed; ⅓ cup chopped parsley; ¼ cup chopped green onion; 2 tablespoons anchovy paste; 3 tablespoons tarragon wine vinegar; coarsely ground black pepper and 1½ cups sour cream.

Combine broth, rice, and salt in a 3-quart saucepan. Heat to boiling; stir once. Cover, reduce the heat and simmer for 14 minutes, or until liquid is absorbed. Blend garlic, parsley, green onion, anchovy paste, vinegar and pepper into sour cream. To serve, spoon sour cream mixture over cooked rice and serve as vegetable. Makes 6 to 8 servings.

DEAR ABBY . . .

You've Got a Choice!

By ABIGAIL VAN BUREN

DEAR ABBY: I am a 31-year-old woman who has been divorced five years. I have two children. We live with my parents as my mother is always at home, which makes it convenient for me to work. Besides, If I had my own place it would put a strain on my budget, and my job requires that I dress well and own my own car. I do pay room and board, however.

All my life my father has been domineering, unreasonable and very narrow-minded. Even my mother has never dared to cross him. If I am not in by 12 o'clock, he goes out looking for me. He has burst into places, insulted my escort, and has literally dragged me home with him. My friends have all been respectable, but after such a scene, they never call again.

I don't want to move out as it is so very comfortable and convenient having Mother to look after my children, and do all the laundry and cooking and cleaning. But I can't live like this, either. What would you do if you were in my shoes?

WANTS FREEDOM

DEAR WANTS: Which do you want more? The convenience of a live-in cook, cleaning woman and 24-hour baby sitting service? Or the right to live your own life? Obviously, you can't have both. If I were in your shoes, I would prefer the latter. And the longer you wait, the more difficult the break will be.

DEAR ABBY: I suspected that my husband was running around with a certain girl so I had him tailed by a private detective. They followed him to a motel where he checked in with this girl. They stayed only 32 minutes and then left. Do you think he could be guilty of wrongdoing?

HIS WIFE

DEAR WIFE: You're his wife; I'll ask you. Could he be?

DEAR ABBY: In a club initiation recently I had to shoplift a pair of shoes. I did this easily at a self-service store by taking a new pair of shoes and replacing them with an old pair I wore in. I didn't feel guilty while I was doing it, but I do now. I wanted to get into this club at all costs because all the cool kids belong. What should I do?

FEELING GUILTY

DEAR FEELING: Return the stolen shoes to the manager of the store, explain the circumstances. Since you wore the shoes out of the store, prepare to pay for them. I suggest you find "cooler" kids to go with before you end up in the "cooler."

DEAR ABBY: What do you say to a person who asks a lot of very personal questions in a crowd? This woman said to me, "It's funny that you've been married almost four years and don't have any children. Don't you WANT any? Or can't you HAVE any?"

NO NERVE

DEAR NO NERVE: The meek will inherit a lot of earthy questions. Muster the courage to tell her that it is none of her business.

SEW SIMPLE WITH Eunice Farmer

From Boat Neckline To Jewel Effect

Dear Eunice Farmer:

I recently had two dresses made by a dressmaker but am disappointed in the necklines. The pattern had a wide boat neckline and I preferred a jewel neckline. She said it would be easy to alter but when I got my dresses, they had the original neckline. I have never worn either of them, can an adjustment be made now?

Mrs. E.M.H.

Dear Mrs. E.M.H.:

Since you had the dresses made, you probably have some pieces of fabric left. I would suggest you have the dressmaker cut across the pattern, about four inches below the shoulder, and create a "yoke" effect. If you haven't any fabric left, use contrasting color. When this is done, be sure to add a seam allowance on both cut edges. Now you can re-cut the yoke, using the neckline you prefer. Your garment may be even more attractive than it was originally.

Local Guide Gets Highest Honor

HER HEART IS ON HER SLEEVE

By DINA STEWART

Miss Vivian Zuck is in danger of losing her sleeve!

Vivian, now has so many badges and awards from her five years as a Girl Guide, that there just isn't any room for any more on her sleeve which is gradually disappearing from view under all the felt crests.

But she has a special affection for them all because they, plus a lot of hard work, have given her the highest honor in guiding, the coveted Gold Cord.

Sixteen-year-old Vivian Zuck is a Grade 11 student at Victoria Senior Secondary School. She hopes one day to be an art teacher and already has a number of her paintings being exhibited in various parts of the United States and Japan.

Last month, Vivian was sent to Vancouver to compete in a Guide challenge—which included performing a number of tasks (unknown to her until she arrived) set by the Guide leader. Work in a children's hospital and in a church nursery were only a few of her chores.

"During the day," Vivian recalls with a laugh, "I had to cook lunch for four people—the menu was fried chicken, potatoes, vegetable and cocoa. This dinner was cooked, served and eaten out in the middle of the woods, over an open campfire."

"What made it just a little difficult was the fact that it was raining.

"I don't mind building a fire in the rain," she continued. "Every time I've competed in a campfire test, it's been pouring!"

This Friday, Vivian leaves for Vancouver and then for Sudbury, Ont., where she will be billeted for two days and then sent on to Doe Lake. She has been chosen to attend the Heritage Camp there, sponsored by the Canadian Centennial Committee as part of their youth travel program, and the Girl Guides.

A grant from the committee and a donation from the British Columbia Girl Guide Council will defray the costs of the trip. The object is to give young people a chance to learn about other parts of the country by visiting it and to give others information about the area of Canada they are from. Vivian has been chosen from the 11th Victoria Guide Company for this purpose.

During her two-week stay at Doe Lake, Vivian will live in a tent, cook meals over a campfire, and learn about Canada with other girls, aged 15 to 17, from across Canada. She's hoping it won't rain, either.

When she returns from her trip, Vivian will again resume her schedule as Guide patrol leader and Brownie pack leader. Skating will be wedged in there somewhere. She is also going to be one of the first Guide cadets, a new facet to the Girl Guides which teaches girls to become leaders or Guiders.

But first she's going to try and earn some more badges—even if there's no more room for them on her sleeve!

Lace Appliques on Gowns Worn By Bridal Attendants

Appliques of re-embroidered lace banded the Empire waistlines of the A-line gowns worn by the three attendants of Charlotte Marie Forrest when she became the bride of John Wayne Edwards recently.

Bridesmaids, the Misses Margaret and Jane Forrest and Zandra Innis complemented their ensembles with appliqued picture hats and colonial bouquets of pink carnations and roses.

The bride chose a gown of organza over taffeta, styled en train and accented with Alencon lace appliques. Bodice featured a sweetheart neckline and sleeves ending in lily points. Her tiered veil of silk illusion net misted from a coronet of crystals.

Parents of the principals are Mr. and Mrs. Ernest B. Forrest, 1576 Earlston Avenue, and Mr. and Mrs. Frank Edwards of Chilliwack. Mr. Forrest gave his daughter in marriage.

Arrangements of pink and white snapdragons decorated Knox Presbyterian Church for the ceremony at which Rev. A. G. Faraday officiated.

Soloist Miss K. Hatcher sang "Through The Years" during the ceremony.

Best man was James Armand. Ushering guests to their pews were Andrew Wilson and Brian Smith.

Pink and white wedding bells topped the three-tier wedding cake which centred the bride's table for the reception following in the Club Soho. Pink candles and pink and white streamers completed table decorations.

Following a honeymoon trip to the provincial interior and Alberta, the newlyweds will make their home at 690 Ker Avenue.

For travelling, the bride chose a white wool suit, accented with accessories of turquoise.

STORY-SMALL NUPTIALS

Cub Pack Members Form Guard After Wedding in St. John's

Members of the Second Camosun Cub Pack, of which the bride is an assistant leader, formed a guard of honor when Marion Hazel Small became the bride of Robert Peter Story.

White stocks and gladioli decorated St. John's Anglican Church when Canon George Biddle heard marriage vows exchanged between the daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Lester E. Small, 1034 Linden Avenue, and the son of Mr. and Mrs. Robert W. J. Story, 1225 Juno Street.

"Praise My Soul, the King of Heaven" and "O Perfect Love" were sung by the church choir during the ceremony.

Given in marriage by her father, the bride wore a floor-length gown of peau de soie, styled slightly en train. Bodice of the gown featured a bateau neckline and sleeves ending in lily points. Her four-tier veil of illusion net misted from a crystal headpiece and she carried a bouquet of pink rapture roses and stephanotis. Only jewelry was a crystal necklace, gift of the groom.

Matching bouffant gowns of aqua peau de soie were the choice of maid of honor, Miss Helen Small and bridesmaid, Miss Nancy Williams. They complemented their ensembles with toning floral headpieces.

Junior bridesmaids, the Misses Betty Ann Storey and Gwen Risebrow chose similar gowns of white lace over nylon with white floral headpieces. All carried white colonial bouquets.

Best man was Glenn Jaques.

Ushering guests to pews marked with ribbon roses were Brooke Williams, Arnold and Bruce Story.

A silver vase of sweet-heart roses topped the three-tier wedding cake which centred the head table for the reception following in the home of the bride's parents. John C. Smirl proposed the toast to his niece.

For a honeymoon trip up-Island, the new Mrs. Story donned a pink floral surah dress, topped with an imported wool coat trimmed with fox fur. She complemented her ensemble with white accessories.

The couple will make their home in Deerholme, B.C.

St. Mary's Church Setting For Evening Wedding

Pearl beading on bodice and sleeves highlighted the gown of Genevieve Margaret Sawatsky when she exchanged marriage vows with Patrick Maynard Scott recently in St. Mary's Anglican Church, Oak Bay.

White and pink gladioli decorated the church when Canon Hywel J. Jones officiated at the evening ceremony which united the daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Henry Frank Sawatsky, 456 Kipling Street, and the son of Mrs. Elizabeth Scott and S. Dacre Scott, both of this city.

Purcell's Horn March greeted the bride as she entered in a slim-skirted Empire gown of white peau de soie en train, carrying a prayer book decorated with white stephanotis. Mr. Sawatsky gave his daughter in marriage.

The bride's attendants were Miss Ardath Glassford, maid of honor; Mrs. Winston Roberts, bridesmatron; Miss Christina Scott, the groom's sister, and Miss Janie Mumford of Edmonton, bridesmaids.

All wore floor-length gowns of pastel pink organza over taffeta with lace trim. Their pink tulle veils misted from tiaras of matching pink lace, and they carried bouquets of multi-colored sweet peas.

Winston Roberts was best man, and ushers were Andrew Wade, Patrick Mead-Robins, and Henry Scott, the groom's brother.

At the reception in the Oak Bay Beach Hotel, Rowland Grant proposed the toast to the bride. Silver candelabra and pink and white gladioli decorated the table. The three-tier cake was topped with a silver vase of pink roses and fern.

For travelling the new Mrs. Scott wore a navy suit of French wool boucle with a white picture hat and white orchid corsages. On their return the couple will make their home in Victoria.

MARRIAGE IN ST. JOHN'S CHURCH

Empire Gown Choice of Bride Miss Karen Louise Robinson

A floor-length gown of lace over silk taffeta, styled with a taffeta bridal bow accenting the Empire waistline, was worn by Karen Louise Robinson when she became the bride of Herbert Keith Harrison.

The bodice of the bell-skirted gown featured a scoop neckline and elbow-length sleeves. Her tiered chapel-length veil of silk illusion net misted from a French organza rose headpiece. Pink roses, centred with white gardenias, were in her crescent-shaped bouquet.

Floral arrangements in pink, white and aqua tones decorated St. John's Anglican Church when Canon George Biddle officiated at the double-ring ceremony uniting the daughter of Mr. and Mrs. J. L. Robinson, and the son of Mr. and Mrs. A. G. Harrison in marriage. Mr. Robinson gave his daughter in marriage.

Matching gowns of blue and turquoise printed chiffon over taffeta were the choice of matron of honor Mrs. Bruce Corbett and bridesmaid Miss Lila Israel. They wore floral headpieces en tone and carried colonial bouquets of pink feathered carnations.

Best man was Jim Harrison. Ushering guests were Jim Robinson and Ken Harrison.

Doves holding wedding rings topped the four-tier wedding cake which centred the bride's table for the reception following in the Dominion Hotel Terra Cotta Room. The cake was made by Mrs. N. Stephenson.

For travelling on a honeymoon trip to Banff, the new Mrs. Harrison chose a pale blue Italian knit suit, accented with white accessories and chiffon floral hat en tone. A corsage of pink sweetheart roses completed the outfit.

The couple will make their home in the Queen Charlotte Apartments, 467 Lampson Street.

Hamburger Breakfast?

OTTAWA (CP)—An American nutritionist has said teen-agers can get just as much food value from hamburgers for breakfast as from bacon and eggs.

Dr. Elizabeth Neige Todhunter, dean of the school of home economics at the University of Alabama told an interviewer at the recent federal nutrition conference more flexibility may be needed in planning nutritious meals.

"We should be able to make many choices of food . . ."

Dr. Todhunter said a good breakfast can consist of many things.

"It can be orange juice, toast, eggs, bacon, and milk. But if a teen-ager happens to want a hamburger for breakfast, he can get approximately the same nutritional value from it."

However, Dr. Todhunter said few members of the public know enough about nutrition to be able to make such substitutions.

"If everybody had a better basic knowledge about nutrition, they would not be tied down to the more traditional types of meals and could do more experimenting."

EVEN ON DULLEST DAYS

Now That School Is Out— Beware of Old Sol's Rays

More children are admitted to hospital with cases of severe sunburn during the first week of school holidays than at any other time during the summer, say officials at Toronto's Hospital for Sick Children.

Their records show that last year, seven children were taken to hospital with sunburns worse than first-degree burns over extensive areas of their bodies. Unfortunately, either adults or children can burn again and again, especially if they are only in the sun occasionally, on weekends, for instance.

This is because the top layer of your skin is constantly changing, being replaced from layers beneath. You are, in a sense, constantly growing a new skin. It has four layers — the outer, protective layer, the one directly beneath it where a final change in cells takes place, the third one down which is made up of living cells, and the deepest, the basal layer where cells, including pigment or color cells, are formed.

When the sun's rays touch your skin, some are reflected, but some penetrate. The harmful effects are localized largely in the third layer. Some of the rays reach the basal layer, where they stimulate the formation of tan pigment in granules which work their way slowly to the top to show as tan after three or four days, says Dr. Archibald Black of Copper-tone Research Laboratories, Memphis, Tenn.

Shade won't necessarily completely protect you, because the reflection from sand and water can burn.

Clouds and haze may decrease the sun's intensity, but won't cut it entirely. You can be burned on overcast days.

You can go outdoors with safety about 4:30 p.m. because the sun's intensity has weakened by then. It is at its height at noon, and only about half as strong by 3 o'clock.

LESS WATER, MORE MONEY

Fresh Vegetables to Cost More

OTTAWA (CP)—Drought conditions in some parts of the country are expected to cause an increase in the price of fresh vegetables, the federal agriculture department said today in its monthly food outlook for consumers.

The department gave the following predictions about meat prices:

Poultry meats: Lightweight turkey and broiler chickens are plentiful with prices slightly below last year.

Lamb: Supplies of lamb will rise seasonally with corresponding price declines. The general level of lamb prices is higher than last year.

Pork: With pork in relatively short supply, seasonally high prices will continue for both fresh and processed cuts.

Beef: Increased marketings of lower quality cattle will widen the price difference between grades. Thus, lower priced cuts will be a relatively better buy.

Sun Dried Skin Is "Yelling" For Water

If your skin is dry, wrinkled and rough, chances are it's starving for water. You can pump water in from the outside by the tankful, and all that happens is it runs off. But at last an amazing discovery called CEP 600 actually carries water into and under the skin. Like your watered flowers, skin bursts into the bloom of youth with lines and wrinkles smoothed, roughness softened, aging skin made more youthful looking. The only way you can get CEP 600 and CEP 1200 in double strength is in a lotion-like substance called 2nd Debut. At drug or department stores.

WHY GROW OLD?

By JOSEPHINE LOWMAN

Needs of Senior Citizens Must Be Met at Local Level

Recently, I had a most inspiring and exciting time. I was invited to speak during the observance of Senior Citizens Month in Chattanooga, Tenn. This city has done an outstanding and truly successful job for its senior citizens.

Lowman

I know of no other city which can match Chattanooga in this matter. Dr. Donald P. Kent, director of the Office of Aging, United States Department of Health, Education and Welfare, left his busy schedule long enough to pay his respects and compliment the community for its program for the aging.

As Dr. Kent said, "Many needs of older citizens must be met at the local level." Believe me this has been done in Chattanooga! Leaders from all professions and businesses have thrown their weight behind the program. Otherwise it would not have been possible. Neither would it have been possible without the few enthusiastic, dedicated, visionary leaders who sparked the whole plan. It was interesting to me to see how many quite young women are on fire with the zeal to help.

Then Senior Neighbors have a large, well-equipped air-conditioned building they can call their own. All sorts of entertainment and classes are held there. It is a place to meet friends and to make friends, to get instruction in some activity or skill which interests them. The instructors are on a voluntary basis. Many of them are retired teachers.

The chairman of the Senior Citizens Month in Chattanooga is a very young woman, in years as well as in outlook. One of the models who demonstrated my exercises during my lecture is a co-founder of Senior Neighbors in Chattanooga. She is 60 years old but you would never suspect it because she is so vibrant in personality, looks so youthful and is much more limber (literally) than any teenagers I know.

The history of Senior Neighbors has many heartwarming stories. Many who had isolated themselves from life because of loneliness, were urged by their doctors or their families to investigate the opportunities available. When they did, their lives changed from frustration and loneliness to service and happiness. They suddenly found that they were needed, that they could help others.

Whether one is rich or poor, has a family or doesn't, to be wanted and useful is one of the fundamental needs of every human being.

Quiet Wedding In Hospital Chapel

Pemberton Chapel of Royal Jubilee Hospital was the setting of a recent quiet ceremony when Rev. Marvin Evans heard marriage vows exchanged between Ingrid Catherine Black and Alan Aitchison Benton.

Parents of the principals are Mrs. G. Hattery, Jamaica, and the late Mr. Hattery, and Mr. and Mrs. F. W. Benton of Victoria.

Given in marriage by her uncle, G. Coupland, the bride wore a turquoise linen suit, complemented by a hat en tone.

Her only attendant was Mrs. M. Tucker and best man was Monty Tucker.

Orange blossoms and sweetheart roses decorated the three-tier wedding cake which centred the head table for the reception following in the Victoria Avenue home of the groom's parents.

Out-of-town guests attending were Mrs. M. W. Riddle and Mark of Montreal, and Mrs. R. A. Grimes, Nelson, B.C.

Following a honeymoon trip motoring to Seattle and the Oregon coast, the couple will make their home in Victoria.

Extended Stay

Mr. and Mrs. W. M. Campbell of Rosedale, Toronto, have arrived in Victoria for an extended visit. While here they will be staying at the Empress Hotel.

Opening lead—♣Q.

Jim: "When John Gerber uses his convention and follows up the four club request for aces by the cheapest possible bid in a new suit he is asking for kings."

Oswald: "That's fine for John. But those of us who use his convention sparingly find that this causes too much confusion and we follow up with five clubs as a request to show kings. It seems to work out very well."

Jim: "We don't get to use this king request often, but here is a hand I had with Judy (Mrs. James Jacoby) recently which gave her an opportunity to bid a fine grand slam."

Oswald: "I assume that you sat South and that Judy went into the Gerber routine after your jump rebid of two no-trump."

Jim: "It was barely possible that I could have jumped to two no-trump with only one ace. In that case Judy had planned to sign off at four no-trump. Had I shown two aces she planned to bid six spades. When I showed three aces Judy saw that we would have 13 top tricks at no-trump if I could produce the two kings that she missed. When I bid five spades to show those two kings she went right to seven no-trump and of course we had those 13 top tricks."

Oswald: "I think a little further comment on Judy's plan to stop at four no-trump if you showed only one ace is appropriate. You must have been playing duplicate and Judy could see that in order for you to bid that two no-trump with only one ace you would have to be loaded with kings, queens and jacks and that the hand would make as many tricks at no-trump as spades."

COMMON SENSE!

During the first six months of this year we at MERCURY MARINE have sold more MERCURY outboard motors than any one MERCURY dealer in this area has ever sold in a full year. We are proud of this accomplishment! However there are reasons why! First of all we sell the world's No. 1 outboard; Secondly we will and do take in trade whatever make outboard motor you may own; Thirdly we try in every deal to offer you the very best deal in town and with the very best deal we make sure you get the kind of service you deserve. For these and many other reasons we have set sales records. Now wouldn't it make COMMON SENSE for you to buy a MERCURY outboard and to buy your MERCURY outboard at

Andy Stephen Looks at TV

The Television Academy, criticized for years because of the multiplicity of its awards, has introduced a new system for the 1964-65 Emmies. They will be presented Sept. 12.

Stephen

Instead of numerous categories, nominations are chunked into two large groups of programs and performers.

According to the academy, one or more Emmies may be presented in the groups; the standard is excellence, not competition.

Nominated for "outstanding program achievements in entertainment": Andy Williams Show, Bob Hope Presents, Dick Van Dyke Show, Hallmark Hall of Fame, The Man From U.N.C.L.E.

Plus Mr. Novak, My Name Is Barbra, Profiles in Courage, The Defenders, The Magnificent Yankee, Walt Wisney's Wonderful World of Color, New York Philharmonic Young People's Concert, Wonderful World of Burlesque, Danny Thomas Special, Xerox specials on United Nations.

Nominated for "outstanding individual achievements in entertainment": Alfred Lunt, The Magnificent Yankee; Barbra Streisand, My Name Is Barbra; Bob Hope, Bob Hope specials; Danny Kaye, Danny Kaye Show; David McCallum, The Man From U.N.C.L.E.; Dean Jagger, Mr. Novak.

Also Dick Van Dyke, The Dick Van Dyke Show; Gladys Cooper, The Rogues; Johnny Carson, Tonight Show; Julie Andrews, Andy Williams Show; Judy Harris, The Holy Terror; Leonard Bernstein, New York Philharmonic Young People's Concert; Lynn Fontanne, The Magnificent Yankee.

Add Red Skelton, The Red Skelton Show; Richard Crenna, Slattery's People; Robert Coote, The Rogues.

Other categories in which there are nominations include: outstanding program achievements in news, documentaries, information and sports; outstanding performers in news, documentaries, information and sports, and outstanding directors.

ARMY JEALOUSY?

Russ Rocketeers Under a Shadow

MOSCOW (AP) — Soviet rocket troops, once the apple of Nikita Khrushchev's eye, appear to have come on hard times since his downfall.

Soviet military publications for weeks have been criticizing them. Tuesday, amendments to the criminal code were published to tighten and enforce strict discipline in the rocket forces.

It is believed that the sudden loss of Khrushchev's patronage and support for the rocket forces may have touched off a squabble among top military men. Soviet rocketeers, mostly highly trained technicians, are reported to have irritated members of traditional troop units by flaunting their privileged status.

Shortly after Khrushchev's ouster last fall, the army newspaper Krasnaya Zvezda (Red Star) printed articles on the importance of teaching rocket troops to march in drill formation. It continued with barbed comments on their training and combat readiness.

CHANGE COMMANDER

The tactical rocket troops and artillery got a new commander —Marshal Konstantin Kazakov, 63. Until May, 1963, they had been headed by Marshal Sergei Varentsov, a Khrushchev appointee who was fired for doing favors for Oleg Penkovsky. Penkovsky was executed for spying for Britain and the United States.

The strategic, long - range rocket units of Marshal Nikolai Krylov also received severe criticism. Krylov is another Khrushchev appointee.

Among the shortcomings that were charged:

—Rocket commanders paid too much attention to polishing their rockets and not enough to keeping them in working order.

—Second - rate officers were assigned to key jobs.

—Electronic computing equipment was misused.

—Slipshod training methods permitted targets to slip through anti-aircraft and anti-missile defences.

TAKE TOUGHER LINE

The criminal code amendments appear to be the answer to Red Star's demand for tougher discipline and severe punishment for mistakes. The new law broadened the application of an article on violations in units charged with defending Russia against surprise attack.

The Soviet Communist party seems to be taking a bystander's attitude. The party leadership earlier this year made clear that it would not intrude on the professional soldiers' conduct of purely military affairs.

First Secretary Leonid Brezhnev reaffirmed the party's neutrality in a speech last week to the graduating class of the Soviet Military Academy.

At the same time, he seemed to be giving the rocket men a nod of encouragement by expressing satisfaction with the rocket defences.

NEW OUTLOOK FOR BOSSY

VANCOUVER (CP) — Visitors to this year's Pacific National Exhibition won't have to look at the rear ends of cows and steers when they tour livestock pavilions. The PNE has decided to install reverse stalls to enable the prize cattle to greet sightseers head-on.

Byelection Proposed For Aug. 12

An early civic byelection — proposed for August 12—will fill a Victoria council vacancy caused by the death Sunday of Ald. Austin Curtis.

Mayor R. B. Wilson set the date tentatively Tuesday, and with unanimous vote of city council, nomination day will be Aug. 2.

Full council support is necessary because the date falls within a 30-day minimum waiting period set by the Municipal Act.

There must be a byelection because three-quarters of Ald. Curtis' two-year term is unexpired.

It must be held within the 30 to 45-day period following notification of a vacancy.

Council's current business was deferred because of funeral service Tuesday.

A special council meeting was put over to 9:30 a.m. Friday and a meeting of Greater Victoria inter-municipal committee was set for July 15 at 3 p.m.

12 Area Youngsters To Vie in 4-H Finals

Twelve south Vancouver Island young people have been chosen to attend the annual provincial 4-H week competitions at New Denver in the Kootenays, starting on July 11.

Awards and honors range from university scholarships to selection as delegates to attend national and international 4-H conferences.

Saanich and Cowichan Valley 4-H members took part in stiff local competitions to attend the provincial finals.

They were selected after passing tests on their own specific 4-H projects, ranging in scope from agriculture to home economics, leadership qualities and club activities during the year.

AGRICULTURAL NEEDS

The program will feature lectures, instructions and discussions mainly on the theme "agricultural needs of the future."

A team of counsellors will assess the members on this subject and will also interview them on club work, citizenship, leadership and general knowledge of current events.

But it won't all be work. They will participate in skits, singsongs and sports.

NATIONAL WEEK

At the end of the week's program, the top 14 4-H members will be selected for the annual all-expense paid trip to national 4-H club week in Toronto and Ottawa in November.

Nine members will also be chosen for the inter-provincial delegates exchange in 1966.

Under the exchange program, delegates are guests for two weeks at the homes of 4-H members in other provinces. A similar number come to B.C.

In addition members will participate in a competition for a $600 Canadian National Exhibition university scholarship.

$500 SCHOLARSHIPS

Two other $500 scholarships are expected to be presented this year.

Two delegates, one to attend the national 4-H congress in Chicago in November and the national 4-H conference in Washington, D.C., April, 1966, will also be chosen.

There will also be other prizes, such as 10 gold watches awarded to top members at the conference.

ISLAND DELEGATES

Saanich delegates going to Denver are: Rhodena Cronk, 4316 Blenkinsop Road; Robert Stanlake, Saanichton; Margaret Lord, Sidney; Douglas Reimer, Sidney; Reginald Hoole, 5842 Oldfield Road; Anne Lees, 4003 Bow Road; Joan Honey, RR No. 2, Victoria; Don Alberg, 1516 Mount Douglas Road; Ronald McDowell, 2408 Millstream Road, and Bonnie Reimer, Sidney.

The Cowichan Valley is sending Richard Skeet and Gladys Roberts.

Quebec Group Worries Over U.S. Marines

QUEBEC (CP) — Opposition Leader Daniel Johnson said Tuesday he will ask the government in the legislature today if it intends to protest American intervention in Viet Nam and the Dominican Republic.

He told reporters he had been visted by a 12-member delegation calling itself the Committee for World Peace. Sitting on the committee, he said, are members of 13 organizations including the Quebec Students' Union, the Communist Party of Canada, and the Socialist party of Quebec.

The committee issued a statement saying the United States might land marines in Quebec to prevent a separatist takeover.

Mr. Johnson said the delegation also wanted the Quebec government to urge Ottawa to disassociate Canada from "the political aggression by the Washington government."

SOLUTION FRIDAY

VOICE OF BROADWAY

By DOROTHY KILGALLEN

NEW YORK—Close friends of Frank Sinatra attempt to describe his romance with young Mia Farrow by saying: "This one is different from all the others." They go so far as to predict "this one" will end up at the altar in the Fall . . . Some top-ranking Britishers are hinting broadly that Queen Elizabeth's next major visit to a foreign country will take her to Russia . . . Carol Burnett and Joe Hamilton are bored hearing about the rift rumors. No one ever seems to notice when they're out together holding hands and starry-eyed—but let one of them cross the street without the other, and the phone lines buzz from New York to Hollywood . . . Hedy Lamarr's latest suitor is Andre Andreoli, a 26-year-old Italian artist who has spent a great deal of his time in Holland. He once wooed Joan Baruch Bove . . . June Allyson is "breathing easier" after an operation on her nose. In her divorce action against Glenn Maxwell, she charged her pretty schnozz was broken during their brief honeymoon . . .

Talent agencies are getting feelers from Las Vegas nightclubs about Sybil Burton Christopher. To quote one agency chap: "She'd be worth $5,000 a week if she'd learn to sing—good or bad." . . . Princess Soraya turned down $17,500—odd amount, isn't it?—to pose for nude shots for a girlie magazine. Odd offer, too, to make to a former Empress . . . Natalie Wood's pals aren't making book on her engagement to Vladislov Blatnik, but they smile unanimously when Vlad is referred to as wealthy. He's in the shoe business and makes a comfortable living, but nothing that would impress Natalie or offer her any kind of style to which she's not already accustomed.

The FBI is updating its directory of Communists in the New York area, as many who have remained behind the scenes are coming out of the woodwork in order to frustrate U.S. policy in Viet Nam and the Dominican Republic. Many Communist cell meetings are being held these days and nights in private homes in Brooklyn and Manhattan, and rarely do the meetings break up without a group songfest—their song being a commie theme used during the Spanish Civil War. A Broadway songwriter has written a new set of lyrics to bring the party line up to date. (Oddity: the same fellow wrote a very patriotic American song during the Second World War, and it was recorded by one of the world's most popular vocalists) . . .

There's a good deal of mystery surrounding the divorce plans of actress Maria Schell and Horst Haechler, her husband of eight years. He is the one who asked for the divorce, but so far there has been no mention of the custody of their three-year-old son . . .

Lucille Ball and Eve Arden have asked for copies of Steve Allen's one act play, "The Inverview," which they may do as a concert presentation. The comedy received rave reviews when it was produced in Los Angeles last March with Lynn Bari as the star . . . Two thousand bookmakers of the Northern Bookmakers' Assn. in England want to make Bing Crosby an honorary member. Reason: he recently said he enjoyed British racing because of the atmosphere created by the bookies.

* * *

Teen-age girls in England have a new singing idol in American-born P. J. Proby, who couldn't make it here but is a sensation with the British. If you want to know why he couldn't make it over here, P. J. goes onstage wearing a pony tail and a pretty silk ribbon bow in his hair . . .

Geraldine Chaplin is a great girl for kicks these days—and her antics sometimes result in vast misunderstandings. Recently she posed with a handsome young Spanish photographer, Maolo Velasco, displaying the wedding ring she wears as the wife in "Dr. Zhivago," and a leading Spanish magazine published the picture along with a story duly noting that the two had been secretly married . . . Connie Francis may realize close to $1,000,000 for her role in "I've Got Rhythm" (or whatever they decide to call "Girl Crazy") because of her partnership deal with Metro. The picture is being produced under the Franmet banner—a combination of Francis and Metro.

WHERE'S THE BRANDY? Four-year-old Allistair Mitchell peeks out from under his giant St. Bernard at the All-Breed Championship Show and Obedience Trials in Winnipeg last weekend. HE GIVES AWAY GRAND PRIZES

Is there something you want to know? Do you want to win a set of valuable books or other instructive prizes? Then ask Andy.

Andy will answer questions submitted by child readers and those who submit the questions he selects to answer will receive worthwhile prizes.

The youngster who asks the first question answered each day receives a 20-volume set of the World Book Encyclopedia and of the second question a Hammond Atlas or Globe.

Andy sends a complete, 20-volume set of the World Book Encyclopedia to Sue M. Ford, age 11, of Utica, N.Y., for her question:

Do pussy willows have real fur?

Spring is a season of surprises. It is the time when proud parents in both the animal and plant kingdoms present their wondrous newly-born to the waiting world of nature. There are bursting buds of tender green, frogs and kittens, puppies and fluffy pussy willows.

The pussy willow tree likes to anchor its roots in cool, damp, woodsy soil. It is a native willow of eastern North America, and for most of the year it leads a rather sedate life. The tree may grow 20 feet tall, and its stiff twigs poke out from its branches like an array of long pencils. Like schools of grey-green minnows, its tapering leaves whisper with the summer breezes, then fade and flutter to the forest floor.

As a tall shrub or small tree, the pussy willow stands stiff and bare through the winter. It waits for the first warm breath of spring. Then its crusty brown buds pop open to show, of all things, rows and rows of fluffy newcomers that look for all the world like pixie-sized kittens of furry grey.

These spring offerings of the pussy willow tree are catkins and are related to kittens only in our imaginations. Like all catkins, each fluffy spike is a cluster of miniature flowerets. There are male and female catkins, just as there are male and female portions to a growing ear of corn. The silken tassel of the corn is the staminate that bears the stamens and golden pollen. The nubby ear of corn is the pistillate with the pistils and ripening seeds.

Silken Thread a Flower

The crowded flowerets of a catkin may be either staminates or pistillates. Poplars, alders, walnuts and birches bear their boy and girl catkins on separate branches, and the ripened pollen is wafted by the spring breezes from the staminates to the pistillate. A pussy willow is either a boy or a girl tree, for its staminate and pistillate catkins grow on separate trees.

True fur, however, is grown only by animals of the mammal group. The pussy willow catkin wears a dense coat of furry threads, but each silken thread is a flower. Soon the catkins grow into loose tufts of golden fluff and puff their precious pollen into the balmy breezes.

The pussy willow is a member of the Salicaceae family that includes some 200 poplars and willows. All of them are dioecious plants, a term meaning two houses, because their staminate and pistillate catkins are borne on different trees. And several plants of the Silicaceae family have catkins of crowded flowers that look for all the world like pixie-sized coats of silken fur.

HIGHWAY PATROL TEST

Ontario Police Take to the Air

TORONTO (CP) — Ontario Provincial Police are testing the possibility of enforcing highway speed limits from the air.

J. L. Needham, assistant commissioner of the OPP, said Tuesday results of a survey now being made from a single-engine plane over Highways 400 and 7 should be in his hands within a week. He did not say in what areas the survey is being made.

He said the plan, in which speeds on high - accident sections of highways would be enforced by aircraft flying at 1,000 feet, was only in the study stage.

Sections of highway are marked off and car speeds checked by stopwatch.

Reckless drivers would be spotted easily from an aircraft, Commissioner Needham said.

The plane would radio information to waiting police cruisers.

Commissioner Needham said the system has been used successfully in parts of the United States, but declined to say whether speeding drivers have been ticketed during the tests.

EXPLORERS BAFFIN-BOUND

WITNESS TESTIFIES

Cancer Condition Eased

CHICAGO (AP)—A witness whose wife died of cancer testified Tuesday that her physician reported her cancerous condition had eased after taking krebiozen.

Phillip C. Clarke, a Federal Aviation Agency employee from Bethesda, Md., testified in U.S. district court that his wife Louise had taken krebiozen treatments for four years, mustard gas therapy and radiation therapy before she died July 7, 1963.

He said his wife paid $2 an ampule for krebiozen, obtained at the request of her physician, Dr. Leo I. Donovan.

Clarke was a government witness at the trial of Dr. Andrew C. Ivy and three other men on charges of mail fraud, mislabeling a drug, making false statements to a government agency and conspiracy.

MOTHER AND SON MISSING

Sheriff Killers Hunted, Pair Feared Abducted

SPRINGFIELD, Ore. (AP)—A mother and her young son were missing today, and police feared they were abducted by two killers who fatally riddled a deputy sheriff with a shotgun blast and pistol bullets late Tuesday night.

The deputy, Carlton E. Smith, 33, was killed while making his first night patrol.

The killers' car was found early today a few miles away, abandoned in southeast Springfield, some 110 miles south of Portland.

Mrs. David Corbin, 33, and her son, Clinton, 12, and the family car were missing from a home less than two blocks away.

Lights in the house and the television were on. A daughter, Bernadette, 15, said she and three other younger children in the house, heard nothing during the night.

But neither did they hear police who checked the house at 2 a.m. as part of a house-to-house search through the area near where the car was found.

The killers' car was sold in Salem Tuesday to Wilbur Marlon Grey. Police sent out a bulletin seeking him and one of his frequent companions, Karl Cletes Bowles, for questioning.

SMITH
. . . on first patrol

Both were released last week from Oregon State Prison. Grey had served a sentence for armed robbery and Bowles for breaking and entering.

Smith had reported by radio near midnight that he had stopped a 1958 sports car for a routine check. He included its licence number in his report.

Moments later his voice came over the radio again:

"Oh my God I'm shot."

He was dead when sheriff's Sgt. Howard Kerschner raced up a few minutes later.

HEAR SHOTS

The shooting took place on a county road north of Eugene. A nearby resident, Donald Tosch, and his son Robert, 20, said they heard a series of shots, then a louder blast. They ran out of their house and saw two men pushing a sports car as though to start it, then leap in and roar away.

Authorities speculated they may be the men wanted in a $13,400 armed robbery of a First National Bank branch in Portland.

Two planes were in the air at dawn, scanning the area at the edge of Springfield. A house-to-house check was made and searchers with bloodhounds took to the fields.

INTERNATIONAL PHONE LINKS DEAD

'I Dig . . . Where I Am Told'

SWANLEY, England (Reuters) — International telephone links were thrown into confusion Tuesday when a workman dug a hole outside Bert's Cafe here.

Derek Chaplin, 30—"Where I am told to dig, I just dig"—severed thousands of connections on the continental cable with his mechanical shovel on a drain site.

Thanks to Derek:

- Phone calls to Europe were delayed up to 10 hours.
- Eurovision's television link was put out of action.
- Early Bird satellite communications between Britain and continental Europe were cut off.
- Dozens of telephone conversations between London and the continent came to an abrupt end.

Chaplin told his foreman: "No one told me to look out for a cable."

Merchants and European embassies in London had to use telex for their messages.

The line was not expected to be fully repaired until today.

TWO NEW MEMBERS

Cardin Gets Justice Post In Shuffle

OTTAWA (CP)—Works Minister Lucien Cardin, 46-year-old American-born lawyer, took over the justice portfolio today from Guy Favreau, who resigned under the fire of the Dorion report.

Mr. Favreau, 47, remains in the cabinet as president of the Privy Council with special responsibility for federal-provincial relations. A federal-provincial summit conference opens here July 19.

In cabinet shifts involving seven portfolios, Prime Minister Pearson also announced:

Larry Pennell, 50-year-old lawyer and parliamentary secretary to Finance Minister Gordon, joins the cabinet as solicitor-general.

Another new cabinet member as minister without portfolio is Jean-Luc Pepin, 40-year-old political scientist and parliamentary secretary to Trade Minister Sharp. His special job will be to assist Transport Minister Pickersgill.

REPLACES CARDIN

Privy Council President McIlraith replaces Mr. Cardin in the works ministry. He remains as government House leader in the Commons.

Mines Minister Benidickson, 54, will leave the cabinet because of ill health and go to the Senate. He will be replaced in the mines portfolio by J. Watson MacNaught, now solicitor-general.

Mr. Pennell and Mr. Pepin said they were called only Tuesday by Mr. Pearson.

Mr. Pepin, MP for Drummond-Arthabaska, said that before the call he thought he would replace the dismissed Guy Rouleau as parliamentary secretary to the prime minister.

He said his only qualification for the transport department is that his father is a retired CNR freight agent.

WELCOMES JOB

He added that he is glad to be given responsibility in the transport department because of the important railway legislation which will be introduced in the Commons.

"I also believe that French-speaking Canadians should become more interested in the economic departments of government than they have been," he said.

Mr. Pennell, MP for Brant-Haldimand, said he expects to confer with Mr. Cardin soon

'Sordid Mess'—John D.

KITCHENER, Ont. (CP) — Opposition Leader Diefenbaker said today Prime Minister Pearson's decision to name Guy Favreau president of the Privy Council only added to the "sorry, sordid mess" of the Rivard case.

He compared the affair to Britain's Profumo scandal and said retention of the former justice minister in the cabinet made the situation in Ottawa "immeasurably worse."

The Progressive Conservative leader, here on a speaking engagement, told a press conference the Privy Council presidency is a position of honor and respect.

"If he (Favreau) wasn't fit to be minister of justice, he's unfit for any other parliamentary portfolio," he said.

Mr. Diefenbaker said the prime minister's action would not have happened in any other country in the world.

"Profumo was not driven from public life because of his extramural life, but because he deceived the House of Commons. One can never agree in Parliament on the interpretation of facts, but the facts must be true," he said.

(John Profumo, British minister of war, resigned from the cabinet admitting he had lied to Parliament about his rela-

Pearson Needs To Be Hard-Nosed

LIBERALS 'BUMBLING' CLEANUP AFTER PROBE

By PETER NEWMAN

OTTAWA — In its handling of the Dorion report, the Pearson government has once again managed to make the worst of a bad situation.

Newman

It's difficult to diagnose the exact reasons why there was such a delay in the firing of Guy Rouleau and why the PM chose to keep Guy Favreau in the cabinet despite his highly justified offer to resign.

But it seems obvious that one element which did NOT go into this decision-making mix was hard-nosed political advice.

By failing to deal swiftly and ruthlessly with those directly involved, Pearson has transferred to himself and his whole administration much of the indignation which the Dorion findings have roused across the nation.

Had he ordered Rouleau out of the Liberal party more promptly and accepted Favreau's proferred resignation, Pearson could have immediately diverted the political lightning of an offended public opinion from himself to the subordinates whose behavior had been questioned by Chief Justice Dorion.

HAZARDS PRESTIGE

Instead, Pearson chose to hazard his own prestige. In the process he has placed in jeopardy the reservoir of goodwill that Canadians feel for him personally.

Most decisions taken by this government in the field of political strategy seem to be judged by the standard of bureaucratic acceptability.

The former civil servants who dominate the Pearson cabinet assess policies on the basis of what appeals to their small tight circle of equals.

The Pearson ministers dwell in a self-congratulatory cocoon, they rationalize their actions to each other and behave as if they need have no

Goons Enforce Gas Strike

MONTREAL (CP)—Ten men have been arrested in incidents resulting from a strike of gasoline retailers which has spread across Quebec province.

Members of the Gasoline Retailers Fraternity in Quebec City, Chicoutimi and the Lake St. John area now are officially in on the strike of other fraternity members in the general area of Montreal.

All are seeking higher profits, recognition of their group and other concessions from 11 gasoline companies in Quebec.

Auguste Vial, fraternity president, said any violence has been the work of persons from outside the fraternity.

Meantime the shutdown was estimated to be 90-per-cent effective in Montreal with nearly all service stations on the south shore of the St. Lawrence, the Laurentians and the Eastern Townships also reported closed.

Four of the arrests were made in Cowansville 45 miles southeast of Montreal where 40 men were held off by police as they sought to close a still-open service station.

WINDOWS BROKEN

In Montreal, five men were arrested after pumps and windows were smashed at an east-central service station. Police said the five were usually involved in any type of strike going on in the city.

Another man was taken into custody at an east-end garage on suspicion of carrying a concealed weapon.

Mr. Vial said in a statement that the companies are showing a negative attitude by not agreeing to negotiate with the fraternity.

Of the fraternity's request for recognition, a spokesman for Shell said today such recognition is impossible because the group represents "only a very small minority of Shell dealers."

ONLY FOUR OPEN

He said that of Shell's 160 dealers in Montreal, all but four are closed down.

WILSON IGNORES CRIES TO QUIT

LONDON (Reuters) — Authoritative sources confirmed today that Prime Minister Wilson's Labor government will ignore cries of "resign" that arose from Opposition members after their 1 a.m. defeat of the government early this morning.

The gleeful shouting from the Conservative Opposition came after a block of Conservative members, hidden in crannies of the building, ganged up on a lulled Labor party to win three early-morning votes.

$4,000 Ransom Demand

By TERRY IZZARD
Times Staff Reporter

An 82-year-old woman who was kidnapped from her Ladysmith home Tuesday, was found alive today.

Mrs. Mary Elizabeth Knight was found tied hand and foot in a potting shed in her garden.

The grey-haired wife of a hardware store owner was found buried beneath a pile of old wood and building material at 8:35 a.m.

She was bruised and scratched but apparently suffered no other injuries, according to police.

The elderly woman was rushed to Ladysmith Hospital where her condition is fair.

SEARCH

Her discovery ended a search which was sparked when Mrs. Knight mysteriously disappeared Tuesday morning.

The search was intensified after a phone call to the Knight home on the Old Island Highway Tuesday afternoon.

A man asked to speak to the missing woman's husband, Jocelin, 85.

He demanded $4,000 in small bills for Mrs. Knight's safe return.

The caller said the money was to be ready by 4 p.m. He did not say on what day or where the money was to be delivered.

INSPECTOR CALLED IN

Immediately Inspector George M. MacKay, head of Vancouver Island RCMP detachments, was called in on the case.

A search by nearly 100 police and volunteers concentrated on the area around the Knight house.

During the afternoon searchers came upon the old potting shed about 200 yards from the house.

They glanced inside but did not see anything.

Insp. MacKay could not be sure this morning if Mrs. Knight was actually inside at the time.

LIKELY CARRIED

But it is likely Mrs. Knight was carried to the shed after being kidnapped, then buried alive beneath the pile of rubble.

The kidnappers could not have used a car to carry her to the shed which is situated in thick woodland.

Police are appealing for information concerning anyone seen in the area Tuesday.

So far they have not been able to interview Mrs. Knight to get a description of her abductors.

REST ORDERED

Her doctor has ordered a complete rest for the time being.

Mrs. Knight was discovered

MANUFACTURING SLIPS, DBS REPORT SHOWS

OTTAWA (CP) — Canada's manufacturing industries shipped less and received fewer new orders in April than they did in March this year, but the trend may not have been all on the gloomy side.

The bureau of statistics reported that while shipments and orders were down in actual dollar value, the movements resulted predominantly from seasonal influences.

Recasting its statistics to remove the seasonal variations, the bureau reported shipments in April were little below the March level, while new orders actually rose.

Danger signs for the manufacturing industries are when shipments and new orders fall off, and they are left with a build-up of stocks of finished goods.

The bureau reported manufacturers' shipments in April at $2,778,100,000, a drop of almost three per cent from the March estimate of $2,860,100,000. The April shipments were nearly six per cent greater than April shipments in 1964.

Bids Suggest Luck Behind the Oil Wall

EDMONTON (CP) — Imperial Oil Ltd., which clamped tight security measures on a drilling site in the Rainbow Lake area of northwestern Alberta last month, Tuesday outbid rivals for drilling rights on crown land adjacent to the site.

Imperial paid a total of $4,815,890 for two drilling reservations of 8,320 acres each at a provincial government sale of oil and natural gas rights.

Imperial's parcels surround land on which the company already has drilling rights. Purchase of rights on the new parcels will allow the firm to expand its exploration for oil in the area 400 miles northwest of Edmonton.

The Rainbow Lake area has been a focus of oil industry interest since Banff Oil Ltd. was successful with a discovery well in February. The are is largely muskeg.

Last month Imperial confined all hands on its Rainbow Lake drilling rig to the site and erected a wall around the site.

These measures were to prevent scouts for rival companies from gauging Imperial's success and thus discovering the worth of the area in which Imperial is operating.

GRAIN PRICES

WINNIPEG (CP) — Most prices were firm in modest trade today on the Winnipeg Grain Exchange. There was some export interest.

Oats and barley moved narrowly in light domestic trade.

Oilseeds dropped slightly, but had a firm undertone. Sale of 2,000 tons of rapeseed to Japan and some flax to Britain was reported.

Peace River Big Producer Of Iron Powder

EDMONTON (CP) — The Peace River area of Alberta could become a big producer of iron powder, used in a revolutionary steel-making process, within three or four years, says G. R. Heffernan, president of Peace River Mining and Smelting Ltd.

Mr. Heffernan said in an interview here that Peace River area output by 1969 could reach 100,000 tons a year — about equal to U.S. demand for iron powder at present.

Mr. Heffernan said his company is developing a new leaching process and other recovery and refining techniques to produce iron powder 99 per cent pure from ore deposits at Clear Hills, Alta.

He said the techniques should be perfected in about a year and a plant at Clear Hills, 350 miles northwest of Edmonton and 100 miles north of Peace River, in operation two or three years after that.

Lower Prices Trend General

Declines were general in stock markets at New York, London, Montreal and Toronto today.

At Vancouver only one issue gained in slow trading.

AT NEW YORK General Motors and Chrysler lost about a point despite the fact that new car sales in June were the highest for any month.

U.S. Steel and Jones and Laughlin were down half a point. Du Pont dropped nearly a point and American Telephone was down a minor fraction.

Among Canadian issues, Dome Mines gained 1, Walker Gooderham ¼ and McIntyre Porcupine ⅛. Canadian Pacific dipped ⅝. Distillers Seagrams ½, International Nickel ⅝ and Aluminum Ltd. ¾.

AT TORONTO losses were mostly fractional, but some issues had heftier falls.

AT LONDON the market faltered after an early rise today but a majority of gains were registered.

The morning's improvement followed Tuesday's late advance and the government defeats in the Commons Tuesday night.

Gilt edged stocks were dull as were dollar stocks in reflection of North American values.

Bank of Montreal and Royal Bank of Canada were in demand. Canadian Imperial fell.

AT VANCOUVER Futurity was up two cents to .44 on 7,000 shares.

Most other mining issues were off; Hurley down 1½ to 32½, Copper Ridge eased a nickel to 80 cents and Stairs fell eight to $2.45.

VICTORIA, B.C., WEDNESDAY, JULY 7, 1965 —PAGE 19

Arthur Mayse

We come now to a chapter in our up-Island pilgrimage which I'm writing only that those who follow may take warning. It has to do with the travails imposed on us by our car, a vehicle no longer in its kitten years. Nevertheless, it started out bravely enough from Victoria with a new travel trailer towing astern.

We had a good equalizer hitch. That's mighty important to trailering.

The minor leak in the radiator had been dealt with before we left home. All the various fluids which are a car's lifeblood had been brought to their proper levels.

But the complex mishmash of rods, piping, shafts and cogwheels between hitch and radiator, I took for granted. They'd been doing their job unobtrusively for the last 72,000 miles, hadn't they?

So I put them out of mind until a certain Je ne sais quoi in Old Faithful's performance evolved into a subdued whup-whup-whup.

Even then, I didn't worry unduly. Tappets talking back, I decided, or perhaps a fleck of carbon fouling a sparkplug.

We found a nice spot for our trailer. I uncoupled the equalizer hitch at no more cost than a skinned knuckle, set the jacks that support a trailer's hind end when it is divorced from its automobile, twisted the faucet atop the tubby propane tank, and drove off to hunt up a friend in the boat-rental business.

With Parksville in view, the whup became a clank, then a clatter fit to chill a driver's blood.

"Bearing's kicked over," said the stern young mechanic. We hung around disconsolately while bits and pieces of engine began to clutter the shop floor. Then we wandered the blazing-hot town, while luckier travellers purred past on the highway, many with trailers trotting meekly after on their neat little equalizer hitches.

"I've got a Splutz in with an occluded aorta," said the mechanic, more or less. "If there aren't too many interruptions, I'll finish that by Monday." He added, "You'll have yours back in a week."

We mooched off, hunted up another vehicle, and resumed our fractured journey. The substitute car was newer, and substitute car was newer, but it's hard to love a sleek yellow brute that hasn't yet suffered enough to acquire a soul.

Gratefully, when the week was up, we transferred to our own car. It smelled right. It felt homey. We coupled up the trailer, rejoicing, and for a matter of miles, all went well.

★ ★ ★

Near the brow of a long, long hill, Old Faithful stopped smelling right.

Jetting steam from under her hood, she labored over the summit and in to the highway shoulder.

The passenger cars sailed carefree by, as I too have done under like circumstances. A good guy in a pickup stopped, and gave me a lift to a garage.

Presently tow truck, car and trailer started off in a linked cavalcade. We choo-chooed along until, from the other direction, a double-header freight rig roared past. The push of wind from its cliff-like sides set us swaying, and before you can say 'Get a horse!' we began to whiplash.

Swoop out to the middle of the highway—by a miracle empty at the moment. Then in to the shoulder, which dropped off in a steep 20 or 30 foot embankment. This not for the split second of the average highway hazard but for what to us seemed minutes. Once the trailer lurched a wheel over. But the knuckle-buster hitch held, our course straightened at last, and we came safe if quaking to the garage.

So there you have it, chums, a lifetime of automotive misery compressed into a few days. Old Faithful is now in the hands of two eminent Victoria car specialists for further surgery, and I have some advice for all who plan to go trailering:

Make sure your car is sound. Equip it with a recommended hitch. And in your gear, swaddled against breakage, pack a bottle of well-aged drinking whisky . . . . because, believe me, a time will come when you'll find a use for it!

Hurried Burglar Drops Safe

A burglar in a hurry to get away from the scene of his crime dropped a stolen safe from the back of his truck at a downtown intersection shortly before midnight Tuesday.

City police arrested a man a few hours after the safe was recovered.

In court this morning Clifford Piper, 2943 Bridge, was charged with breaking, entering and theft at Bluebird Cabs, 708 Johnson, and with unlawful possession of a safe stolen from Bluebird Cabs.

He elected trial by judge and jury. Bail was set at $1,000 cash or one surety.

Crown Prosecutor Peter Birkett said exhibits in the case will have to be tested at the Vancouver crime laboratory. Piper was remanded one week when a date will be set for preliminary hearing of the charges against him.

City police said a service station attendant, Bob Dunsmuir, 94 West Maddock, noticed the safe when it fell out of a truck at Johnson and Blanshard.

Mr. Dunsmuir heard the thud as the safe hit the ground. He looked over and saw the truck swing quickly left on Blanshard and take off at high speed.

U.S. Ban 'Severe Blow'

U.S. ban on imports of B.C. rooted crops has dealt a severe blow to the Vancouver Island and mainland seed potato industry.

The ban, which includes plants with soil attached, was imposed by the U.S. government until the areas of the golden nematode infestations are known in the province.

Federal plant inspectors are presently conducting soil testing for nematodes on island and mainland potato farms.

The embargo will hurt seed potato farmers beyond question," Don Wilson, chairman of the Island Vegetable Cooperative Association, said today.

The Island exports to Washington and Oregon annually 25 carloads of seed potatoes — about 500 tons.

NOT SURPRISED

Mr. Wilson said he heard of the embargo Tuesday, but wasn't surprised.

He hoped representation would be made to Washington to lift the ban as soon as the extent of the infestation is known in the province.

He felt farm lands north of Ladysmith were free of the potato and tomato pests.

"Soil tests were conducted two years ago for the root rot nematode—another species of nematode, "he said. "We were given a clean bill of health."

Federal plant inspectors expect to complete the golden nematode survey on potato farms by fall—in time for them to move their crops.

Clar Nelson, assistant field crop commissioner, said plant inspectors were presently concentrating the survey on potato farms and nurseries.

Meanwhile, researchers at the Patricia Bay airport laboratory, reported that it has been definitely established that the pest is on two separate farms owned by the man who orginally reported the infestation.

CENTENNIAL COMMITTEE APPEALS . . . . . . TO GREATER VICTORIA FOR VOTE

Ideas Narrowed to Four—Now It Is Up to YOU

Victorians today have a chance to help select a Greater Victoria joint centennial project from four suggested schemes covering sports, education and entertainment.

The Times, in co-operation with Greater Victoria Canadian confederation centennial committee, is publishing a ballot asking citizens to vote preference for:

- ● A planetarium;
- ● A multiple sports stadium complex with provision for indoor sports auditorium;
- ● A glass-domed pavilion at Clover Point;
- ● An outdoor salt water swimming pool.

Committee projects chairman Bruce Humber said today the list of 46 projects submitted by organizations and the general public up to July 1 deadline was narrowed after many meetings.

MANY FACTORS

"In making the decisions which brought the number of projects down to four, a number of factors had to be considered," he said.

"First, the projects which will be or could normally be carried out by either federal, provincial or municipal funds in the normal course of events had to be eliminated.

"The centennial project has to be one which would not normally be done.

"Second, projects which were not considered wide enough in scope, covering the need of the four municipalities involved—Oak Bay, Saanich, Victoria and Esquimalt—had to be eliminated.

'TOO COSTLY . . .'

"Third, some projects obviously were too costly to be considered.

(About $450,000 will be available.)

"Your committee feels that with the help of the Times ballot it will reach a decision before the end of July and will forward this decision to the proper authorities for their consideration." Mr. Humber said.

When a final project is selected, the four municipalities must agree to its acceptance.

PLEASED AT RESPONSE

Mr. Humber noted many fine projects were submitted. He was pleased with the response to the committee's request for ideas.

About 25 per cent of the suggestions covered sports projects, many of them seeking a stadium complex. A brief submitted by the centennial stadium committee of Greater Victoria Sports Council was selected as most detailed and typical.

PROJECTS LINKED

This is complimented by a brief from the Victoria and District Amateur Basketball Association asking for an indoor sports auditorium and the committee linked them into one project for purposes of the ballot.

Mr. Humber explained there would not be enough money to do both, but that they should both be allowed for on the same site for future development.

Indoor facilities suggested would accommodate 2,200 spectators for basketball, volleyball and badminton games. Total cost estimated including land would be $441,000.

15,000 SEATING

The outdoor complex should have seating for 15,000, parking for 3,000 autos, on a 25-acre site, the sports council suggested.

Initially, 5,000 seats would be needed for a total cost of $400,000, not counting land.

The planetarium brief was submitted by Victoria centre of the Royal Astronomical Society of Canada. It would be an educational, cultural and entertainment facility with seating in the main theatre for 200 persons and 150 more in a lecture theatre.

Estimated cost is $469,000 excluding land.

SMALL THEATRE

The pavilion idea was submitted by R. B. Shaw, 1277 Rockland, who proposed a small theatre, auditorium, restaurant and facilities for orchestral concerts, dancing, small conventions, tearoom or coffee bar.

S. T. FitzPatrick, 1370 Oliver, suggested the outdoor pool for construction on the beach at Gyro Park, Cadboro Bay.

He said Vancouver's Kitsilano pool might be used as a rough guide for estimating cost.

To such ideas as Gorge beautification, the committee felt the amount of money required to be spent would not show tangible enough results; an aquarium would duplicate Oak Bay Marina's undersea garden; Royal Athletic Park redevelopment is a Victoria city responsibility; a centre for the performing arts will be handled by other funds.

Regional parks are covered by provincial legislation; a competition for prizes in the creative arts suggested by the late Ald. Austin Curtis was referred to centennial celebrations committee for possible consideration.

The ballot will appear daily and as they are sent in by readers, The Times will summarize the trend and preferences as a daily feature.

HABITUAL TRIAL DELAYED

Supreme Court To Hear Appeal

Habitual criminal proceedings against a 26-year-old Victoria man have been delayed to allow him to appeal a conviction to the Supreme Court of Canada.

John L. Smith was convicted earlier this year of attempting breaking and entering of a store in downtown Victoria.

After his conviction the Crown instituted proceedings to have him declared an habitual criminal who should be held in indefinite detention in the public interest.

Smith however appealed the conviction to the Court of Appeal of B.C. His appeal asked the court to consider new evidence of identification.

REJECTED

The court unanimously rejected the appeal and the date of Aug. 3 was set for the start of the habitual criminal proceedings.

In city court today Special Crown Prosecutor Terry O'Grady said Smith has now appealed to the Supreme Court of Canada.

Smith's lawyer, John McAlpine of Vancouver, said the appeal is based on three grounds, all dealing with the question of identification.

Smith was originally convicted mainly on evidence by a janitor who saw two men attempt to break into a store. The janitor raised the alarm and chased one of the men.

Mr. McAlpine said the appeal to the Supreme Court will ask if the B.C. Court of Appeal erred in not allowing new evidence on the identification.

Mr. McAlpine said there is evidence of a profound similarity between Smith and another person but the B.C. Appeal Court did not think this was relevant.

He said the B.C. Appeal Court also found that "the fact Smith could have given evidence and didn't can be taken as an inference against him."

ERRED?

Mr. McAlpine said the Supreme Court will be asked to say if the court erred in taking this point of view.

The third ground for appeal is that Magistrate William Ostler may have erred in holding there was sufficient evidence of identification to convict Smith. The appeal states that witnesses had only a limited opportunity to observe the burglars during the course of a pursuit. The appeal also takes note that the police failed to hold a line-up in the case.

The case was remanded today to Aug. 3 to await disposition of the new appeal and set a new date for a hearing if necessary.

TOUR PARTIES BIG BUSINESS

The Empress Hotel is serving an average of 300 meals a day to tour parties from many parts of Canada and the United States.

And the daily average of tour parties is around 14.

Today's tours originated in Chicago, New York, Philadelphia and San Francisco. Most of them come to Victoria from Seattle, then move on to Banff and Lake Louise, and return to the United States via Vancouver.

New Dimension For B.C. Votes

By JOHN MIKA
Times Legislative Reporter

The New Democratic Party today offered a "new dimension in government"—primarily by greater participation in the business world—in return for election as the B.C. government.

NDP Leader Robert Strachan released the multi-point statement of objectives drafted by a policy committee following the party's recent annual convention.

It featured plans to:

Establish a Bureau of Automation and Technology to help guide the province away from "social dislocation and chaos";

Launch a government-sponsored life insurance company as well as the long-advocated government car and fire insurance plans;

Create a county system and re-allocate provincial-municipal financial responsibilities;

BANKING AGENCY

Start a "banking agency in which the government will hold a substantial interest" which Mr. Strachan said could be either a chartered bank or an industrial development bank;

Ensure crown ownership of timber and its exploitation by all types of crown corporations.

The proposed ventures into life insurance, the lumbering industry and money-lending business were specific items in a general objective of "plans—to finance social needs from profits of investment in industry and government enterprises."

It said the investment money would come from the capital reserves slated for the province from the Canada Pension Plan.

Other goals set as official policy repeated previous themes.

APPOINT OMBUDSMAN

These included: No reclassification of provincial parks without specific legislative approvals; appointment of an ombudsman; citizen rights to sue the government; adoption of oral question period and a Hansard in the legislature.

The policy also said the NDP would appoint an independent commission to redistribute B.C. constituencies and would lower the voting age to 18.

A system of public defenders to ensure no one was tried in B.C. courts without a lawyer would be instituted along with a law reform committee composed of jurists, lawyers and law professors.

A provincial bill of rights would be enacted.

TOPICS of the DAY

Magistrate William Ostler Tuesday convicted Donald French, 532 Dallas Road, of impaired driving and imposed a $300 fine.

Evidence showed French was found behind the steering wheel of his car at the scene of an accident at Dallas and St. Lawrence April 19.

The magistrate said there was no evidence of who had been driving or when the accident occurred. However French admitted at the time being the driver although he later denied it.

The magistrate said French's admission was consistent with the facts.

Hotel Talks Break Down; Go to Board

Conciliation talks between both sides in the Empress Hotel contract dispute broke down Tuesday and a conciliation board will be formed.

The move was recommended by conciliation officer W. T. McLaughlin after only one meeting.

The conciliation board, composed of a representative from each side and an independent chairman, will hold hearings and make a report, possibly in three or four weeks.

Large Operation In Stolen Goods Nets 18 Months

Janos Puskas, 1020 Catherine, was given an 18-month jail term Tuesday when sentenced in city court on one charge of breaking and entering and seven counts of unlawful possession of property.

Mihally Molnar, same address, who was described by the magistrate as a "follower" of Puskas, was given a suspended sentence for breaking and entering.

The two were convicted of breaking and entering at the YMCA construction site April 1. Puskas was also convicted on possession charges dealing with construction materials.

Magistrate William Ostler said evidence in the case against Puskas indicated he was engaged in a large scale operation.

Esquimalt Awaits View Royal Word On Merger Move

Esquimalt is waiting for word from View Royal before the next steps can be taken on the amalgamation of the two areas, Esquimalt Reeve A. C. Wurtele said today.

Both groups must make their own arrangements for a study of amalgamation problems and sharing the costs of a study.

A retired deputy minister of municipal affairs, B. C. Bracewell, said today he has been asked if he is available to handle the study, but declined to indicate his answer.

Main issue will be to establish a suitable tax structure for View Royal should it merge with Esquimalt.

Saanichton Fair Expanding With 4-Acre Land Purchase

Saanichton Fair is going to do something about its seamsbursting.

A general membership meeting of the North and South Saanich Agricultural Society gave the go-ahead Tuesday night to a plan to buy four acres of property adjoining the fair grounds to the north, adjacent to an area that has been used as the main parking area in the past years.

It will expand the fair grounds to 17 acres.

Negotiations for the purchase were carried out by fair board president Bert Doney who said increasing popularity of the fair, and rising land values warranted the action.

In discussion of the move, it was suggested the time was fast approaching for a general reorganization of the grounds and buildings with improvements in all sections.

ATTENDS YEATS CENTENARY IN DUBLIN

Swans Good Omen for Dr. Ann

By SUSAN PELLAND

Dr. Ann Saddlemyer, associate professor English at the University of Victoria, has returned from a seven-week trip to Ireland.

There she took part in the Yeats Centenary Festival at Dublin celebrating the birth of the Irish poet-playwright in 1865.

Dr. Saddlemyer is a recognized scholar in the field of Irish prose and poetry and was responsible for the production of the Yeats Festival held here in March of this year.

The result of this festival was the publication of her book "The World of W. B. Yeats" edited by Dr. Saddlemyer and Robin Skelton, also associate professor of English at the university.

NEW BOOK

While in Ireland, Dr. Saddlemyer also worked on the manuscripts for publication of her new book—a collection of the plays of John Ellington Synge.

Born in Saskatchewan, she considers Ireland her second home and laughingly refers to Yeats and Synge as "my boys."

Once, while she was addressing a group of students gathered on the grounds of Coole, two wild swans flew over head. The students considered this a good omen since Yeats wrote of the swans at Coole in many of his poems.

It convinced them that Ireland truly was her "home away from home."

AWARDED FELLOWSHIP

Dr. Saddlemyer was awarded the Guggenheim Fellowship in March of this year for research on the works of Yeats and Synge.

This enables her to take a year out from her teaching to work on her new book but at the end of the year she will return to the classroom and the work she enjoys most.

Explaining why she prefers to remain at the small, still-struggling University of Victoria Dr. Saddlemyer said:

"It is much more exciting to mould and pattern a university while it is still growing. Here I have the teaching freedom I wouldn't have at an older, established university. The results are more rewarding when they're yours."

Arthur Mayse

We come now to a chapter in our up-Island pilgrimage which I'm writing only that those who follow may take warning. It has to do with the travails imposed on us by our car, a vehicle no longer in its kitten years. Nevertheless, it started out bravely enough from Victoria with a new travel trailer towing astern.

We had a good equalizer hitch. That's mighty important to trailering.

The minor leak in the radiator had been dealt with before we left home. All the various fluids which are a car's lifeblood had been brought to their proper levels.

But the complex mishmash of rods, piping, shafts and cog-wheels between hitch and radiator, I took for granted. They'd been doing their job unobtrusively for the last 72,000 miles, hadn't they?

So I put them out of mind until a certain Je ne sais-quoi in Old Faithful's performance evolved into a subdued whup-whup-whup.

Even then, I didn't worry unduly. Tappets talking back, I decided, or perhaps a fleck of carbon fouling a sparkplug.

We found a nice spot for our trailer. I uncoupled the equalizer hitch at no more cost than a skinned knuckle, set the jacks that support a trailer's hind end when it is divorced from its automobile, twisted the faucet atop the tubby propane tank, and drove off to hunt up a friend in the boat-rental business.

With Parksville in view, the whup became a clank, then a clatter fit to chill a driver's blood.

★ ★ ★

"Bearing's kicked over," said the stern young mechanic.

We hung around disconsolately while bits and pieces of engine began to clutter the shop floor. Then we wandered the blazing-hot town, while luckier travellers purred past on the highway, many with trailers trotting meekly after on their neat little equalizer hitches.

"I've got a Splutz in with an occluded aorta," said the mechanic, more or less. "If there aren't too many interruptions, I'll finish that by Monday." He added, "You'll have yours back in a week."

We mooched off, hunted up another vehicle, and resumed our fractured journey. The substitute car was newer, but it's hard to love a sleek yellow brute that hasn't yet suffered enough to acquire a soul.

Gratefully, when the week was up, we transferred to our own car. It smelled right. It felt homey. We coupled up the trailer, rejoicing, and for a matter of miles, all went well.

★ ★ ★

Near the brow of a long, long hill, Old Faithful stopped smelling right.

Jetting steam from under her hood, she labored over the summit and in to the highway shoulder.

The passenger cars sailed carefree by, as I too have done under like circumstances. A good guy in a pickup stopped, and gave me a lift to a garage.

Presently tow truck, car and trailer started off in a linked cavalcade. We chooed along until, from the other direction, a double-header freight rig roared past. The push of wind from its cliff-like sides set us swaying, and before you can say 'Get a horse!' we began to whiplash.

Swoop out to the middle of the highway—by a miracle empty at the moment. Then in to the shoulder, which dropped off in a steep 20 or 30 foot embankment. This not for the split second of the average highway hazard but for what to us seemed minutes. Once the trailer lurched a wheel over. But the knuckle-buster hitch held, our course straightened at last, and we came safe if quaking to the garage.

So there you have it, chums, a lifetime of automotive misery compressed into a few days. Old Faithful is now in the hands of two eminent Victoria car specialists for further surgery, and I have some advice for all who plan to go trailering:

Make sure your car is sound. Equip it with a recommended hitch. And in your gear, swaddled against breakage, pack a bottle of well-aged drinking whisky . . . because, believe me, a time will come when you'll find a use for it!

Hurried Burglar Drops Safe

A burglar in a hurry to get away from the scene of his crime dropped a stolen safe from the back of his truck at a downtown intersection shortly before midnight Tuesday.

City police arrested a man a few hours after the safe was recovered.

In court this morning Clifford Piper, 2943 Bridge, was charged with breaking, entering and theft at Bluebird Cabs, 708 Johnson, and with unlawful possession of a safe stolen from Bluebird Cabs.

He elected trial by judge and jury. Bail was set at $1,000 cash or one surety.

Crown Prosecutor Peter Birkett said exhibits in the case will have to be tested at the Vancouver crime laboratory. Piper was remanded one week when a date will be set for preliminary hearing of the charges against him.

City police said a service station attendant, Bob Dunsmuir, 94 West Maddock, noticed the safe when it fell out of a truck at Johnson and Blanshard.

Mr. Dunsmuir heard the thud as the safe hit the ground. He looked over and saw the truck swing quickly left on Blanshard and take off at high speed.

U.S. Ban 'Severe Blow'

U.S. ban on imports of B.C. rooted crops has dealt a severe blow to the Vancouver Island and mainland seed potato industry.

The ban, which includes plants with soil attached, was imposed by the U.S. government until the areas of the golden nematode infestations are known in the province.

Federal plant inspectors are presently conducting soil testing for nematodes on island and mainland potato farms.

"The embargo will hurt seed potato farmers beyond question," Don Wilson, chairman of the Island Vegetable Co-operative Association, said today.

The Island exports to Washington and Oregon annually 25 carloads of seed potatoes — about 500 tons.

Meanwhile, researchers at the Patricia Bay airport laboratory, reported that it has been definitely established that the pest is on two separate farms owned by the man who orginally reported the infestation.

BRUCE HUMBER
. . . decide by July 31

Victorians today have a chance to help select a Greater Victoria joint centennial project from four suggested schemes covering sports, education and entertainment.

The Times, in co-operation with Greater Victoria Canadian confederation centennial committee, is publishing a ballot asking citizens to vote preference for:

- ● A planetarium;
- ● A multiple sports stadium complex with provision for indoor sports auditorium;

ATTENDS YEATS CENTENARY IN DUBLIN

Swans Good Omen for Dr. Ann

By SUSAN PELLAND

Dr. Ann Saddlemyer, associate professor of English at the University of Victoria, has returned from a seven-week trip to Ireland.

There she took part in the Yeats Centenary Festival at Dublin celebrating the birth of the Irish poet-playwright in 1865.

Dr. Saddlemyer is a recognized scholar in the field of Irish prose and poetry and was responsible for the production of the Yeats Festival held here in March of this year.

The result of this festival was the publication of her book "The World of W. B. Yeats" edited by Dr. Saddlemyer and Robin Skelton, also associate professor of English at the university.

NEW BOOK

While in Ireland, Dr. Saddlemyer also worked on the manuscripts for publication of her new book—a collection of the plays of John Ellington Synge.

Born in Saskatchewan, she considers Ireland her second home and laughingly refers to Yeats and Synge as "my boys."

Once, while she was addressing a group of students gathered on the grounds of Coole, two wild swans flew overhead. The students considered this a good omen since Yeats wrote of the swans at Coole in many of his poems.

It convinced them that Ireland truly was her "home away from home."

AWARDED FELLOWSHIP

Dr. Saddlemyer was awarded the Guggenheim Fellowship in March of this year for research on the works of Yeats and Synge.

This enables her to take a year out from her teaching to work on her new book but at the end of the year she will return to the classroom and the work she enjoys most.

Explaining why she prefers to remain at the small, still-struggling University of Victoria Dr. Saddlemyer said:

"It is much more exciting to mould and pattern a university while it is still growing. Here I have the teaching freedom I wouldn't have at an older, established university. The results are more rewarding when they're yours."

New Dimension For B.C. Votes

Multiple Insurance, Bank—NDP Platform

By JOHN MIKA
Times Legislative Reporter

The New Democratic Party today offered a "new dimension in government"—primarily by greater participation in the business world—in return for election as the B.C. government.

NDP Leader Robert Strachan released the multi-point statement of objectives drafted by a policy committee following the party's recent annual convention.

It featured plans to:

Establish a Bureau of Automation and Technology to help guide the province away from "social dislocation and chaos";

Launch a government-sponsored life insurance company as well as the long-advocated government car and fire insurance plans;

Create a county system and re-allocate provincial-municipal financial responsibilities;

BANKING AGENCY

Start a "banking agency in which the government will hold a substantial interest" which Mr. Strachan said could be either a chartered bank or an industrial development bank;

Ensure crown ownership of timber and its exploitation by all types of crown corporations.

The proposed ventures into life insurance, the lumbering industry and money-lending business were specific items in a general objective of "plans to finance social needs from profits of investment in industry and government enterprises."

It said the investment money would come from the capital reserves slated for the province from the Canada Pension Plan.

Other goals set as official policy repeated previous themes.

APPOINT OMBUDSMAN

These included: No reclassification of provincial parks without specific legislative approvals; appointment of an ombudsman, citizen rights to sue the government; adoption of oral question period and a Hansard in the legislature.

The policy also said the NDP would appoint an independent commission to redistribute B.C. constituencies and would lower the voting age to 18.

A system of public defenders to ensure no one was tried in B.C. courts without a lawyer would be instituted along with a law reform committee composed of jurists, lawyers and law professors.

A provincial bill of rights would be enacted.

Grits Bumbling Cleanup Job After Probe?

By PETER NEWMAN
Times Correspondent

OTTAWA — In its handling of the Dorion report, the Pearson government has once again managed to make the worst of a bad situation.

Newman

It's difficult to diagnose the exact reasons why there was such a delay in the firing of Guy Rouleau and why the PM chose to keep Guy Favreau in the cabinet despite his highly justified offer to resign.

But it seems obvious that one element which did NOT go into this decision-making mix was hard-nosed political advice.

By failing to deal swiftly and ruthlessly with those directly involved, Pearson has transferred to himself and his whole administration much of the indignation which the Dorion findings have roused across the nation.

Had he ordered Rouleau out of the Liberal party more promptly and accepted Favreau's proferred resignation, Pearson could have immediately diverted the political lightning of an offended public opinion from himself to the subordinates whose behavior had been questioned by Chief Justice Dorion.

HAZARDS PRESTIGE

Instead, Pearson chose to hazard his own prestige. In the process he has placed in jeopardy the reservoir of goodwill that Canadians feel for him personally.

Most decisions taken by this government in the field of political strategy seem to be judged by the standard of bureaucratic acceptability.

The former civil servants who dominate the Pearson cabinet assess policies on the basis of what appeals to their small tight circle of equals.

The Pearson ministers dwell in a self-congratulatory cocoon, they rationalize their actions to each other and behave as if they need have no

SEVEN CHANGES

Cabinet Gets Two New Faces In Shake-up

OTTAWA (CP)—Works Minister Lucien Cardin, 46-year-old American-born lawyer, took over the justice portfolio today from Guy Favreau, who resigned under the fire of the Dorion report.

CARDIN
. . . replaces Favreau

Mr. Favreau, 47, remains in the cabinet as president of the Privy Council with special responsibility for federal-provincial relations. A federal-provincial summit conference opens here July 19.

In cabinet shifts involving seven portfolios, Prime Minister Pearson also announced:

Larry Pennell, 50-year-old lawyer and parliamentary secretary to Finance Minister Gordon, joins the cabinet as solicitor-general.

Another new cabinet member as minister without portfolio is Jean-Luc Pepin, 40-year-old political scientist and parliamentary secretary to Trade Minister Sharp. His special job will be to assist Transport Minister Pickersgill.

REPLACES CARDIN

Privy Council President McIlraith replaces Mr. Cardin in the works ministry. He remains as government House leader in the Commons.

Mines Minister Benidickson, 54, will leave the cabinet because of ill health and go to the Senate. He will be replaced in the mines portfolio by J. Watson MacNaught, now solicitor-general.

Mr. Pennell and Mr. Pepin said they were called only Tuesday by Mr. Pearson.

Mr. Pepin, MP for Drummond-Athabaska, said that before the call he thought he would replace the dismissed Guy Rouleau as parliamentary secretary to the prime minister.

He said his only qualification for the transport department is that his father is a retired CNR freight agent.

He added that he is glad to be given responsibility in the transport department because of the important railway legislation which will be introduced in the Commons.

Mr. Pennell, MP for Brant-Haldimand, said he expects to confer with Mr. Cardin soon

'Sordid Mess'— John D.

KITCHENER, Ont. (CP) — Opposition Leader Diefenbaker said today Prime Minister Pearson's decision to name Guy Favreau president of the Privy Council only added to the "sorry, sordid mess" of the Rivard case.

He compared the affair to Britain's Profumo scandal and said retention of the former justice minister in the cabinet made the situation in Ottawa "immeasurably worse."

The Progressive Conservative leader, here on a speaking engagement, told a press conference the Privy Council presidency is a position of honor and respect.

"If he (Favreau) wasn't fit to be minister of justice, he's unfit for any other parliamentary portfolio," he said.

Mr. Diefenbaker said the prime minister's action would not have happened in any other country in the world.

"Profumo was not driven from public life because of his extramural life, but because he deceived the House of Commons. One can never agree in Parliament on the interpretation of facts, but the facts must be true," he said.

Wide Manhunt For Murderers

SPRINGFIELD, Ore. (AP)—A mother and her young son were missing today, and police feared they were abducted by two killers who fatally riddled a deputy sheriff with a shotgun blast and pistol bullets late Tuesday night.

SMITH
. . . on first patrol

The deputy, Carlton E. Smith, 33, was killed while making his first night patrol.

The killers' car was found early today a few miles away, abandoned in southeast Springfield, some 110 miles south of Portland.

Mrs. David Corbin, 33, and her son, Clinton, 12, and the family car were missing from a home less than two blocks away.

Lights in the house and the television were on. A daughter, Bernadette, 15, said she and three other younger children in the house, heard nothing during the night.

But neither did they hear police who checked the house at 2 a.m. as part of a house-to-house search through the area near where the car was found.

The killers' car was sold in Salem Tuesday to Wilbur Marion Grey. Police sent out a bulletin seeking him and one of his frequent companions, Karl Cletes Bowles, for questioning.

Both were released last week from Oregon State Prison. Grey had served a sentence for armed robbery and Bowles for breaking and entering.

Smith had reported by radio near midnight that he had stopped a 1958 sports car for a routine check. He included its licence numbers in his report.

Moments later his voice came over the radio again:

"Oh my God I'm shot."

He was dead when sheriff's Sgt. Howard Kerschner raced up a few minutes later.

HEAR SHOTS

The shooting took place on a county road north of Eugene. A nearby resident, Donald Tosch, and his son Robert, 20, said they heard a series of shots, then a louder blast. They ran out of their house and saw two men pushing a sports car as though to start it, then leap in and roar away.

Authorities speculated they may be the men wanted in a $13,400 armed robbery of a First National Bank branch in Portland.

Two planes were in the air at dawn, scanning the area at the edge of Springfield. A house-to-house check was made and searchers with bloodhounds took to the fields.

Ransom Bid At Ladysmith

By TERRY IZZARD
Times Staff Reporter

An 82-year-old woman, who was kidnapped from her Ladysmith home Tuesday, was found alive today.

Mrs. Mary Elizabeth Knight was found tied hand and foot in a potting shed in her garden.

The grey-haired wife of a hardware store owner was found buried beneath a pile of old wood and building material at 8:35 a.m.

She was bruised and scratched but apparently suffered no other injuries, according to police.

The elderly woman was rushed to Ladysmith Hospital where her condition is fair.

SEARCH

Her discovery ended a search which was sparked when Mrs. Knight mysteriously disappeared Tuesday morning.

The search was intensified after a phone call to the Knight home on the Old Island Highway Tuesday afternoon.

A man asked to speak to the missing woman's husband, Jocelin, 85.

He demanded $4,000 in small bills for Mrs. Knight's safe return.

The caller said the money was to be ready by 4 p.m. He did not say on what day or where the money was to be delivered.

INSPECTOR CALLED IN

Immediately Inspector George M. MacKay, head of Vancouver Island RCMP detachments, was called in on the case.

A search by nearly 100 police and volunteers concentrated on the area around the Knight house.

During the afternoon searchers came upon the old potting shed about 200 yards from the house.

They glanced inside but did not see anything.

Insp. MacKay could not be sure this morning if Mrs. Knight was actually inside at the time.

LIKELY CARRIED

But it is likely Mrs. Knight was carried to the shed after being kidnapped, then buried alive beneath the pile of rubble.

The kidnappers could not have used a car to carry her to the shed which is situated in thick woodland.

Police are appealing for information concerning anyone seen in the area Tuesday.

So far they have not been able to interview Mrs. Knight to get a description of her abductors.

REST ORDERED

Her doctor has ordered a complete rest for the time being.

Mrs. Knight was discovered

(See story page 3)

LONDON (Reuters) — Authoritative sources confirmed today that Prime Minister Wilson's Labor government will ignore cries of "resign" that arose from Opposition members after their 1 a.m. defeat of the government early this morning.

The gleeful shouting from the Conservative Opposition came after a block of Conservative members, hidden in crannies of the building, ganged up on a lulled Labor party to win three early-morning votes.

Goons Enforce Gas Strike

MONTREAL (CP)—Ten men have been arrested in incidents resulting from a strike of gasoline retailers which has spread across Quebec province.

Members of the Gasoline Retailers Fraternity in Quebec City, Chicoutimi and the Lake St. John area now are officially in on the strike of other fraternity members in the general area of Montreal.

All are seeking higher profits, recognition of their group and other concessions from 11 gasoline companies in Quebec.

Auguste Vial, fraternity president, said any violence has been the work of persons from outside the fraternity.

Meantime the shutdown was estimated to be 90-per-cent effective in Montreal with nearly all service stations on the south shore of the St. Lawrence, the Laurentians and the Eastern Townships also reported closed.

Four of the arrests were made in Cowansville 45 miles southeast of Montreal where 40 men were held off by police as they sought to close a still-open service station.

In Montreal, five men were arrested after pumps and windows were smashed at an east-central service station. Police said the five were usually involved in any type of strike going on in the city.

Another man was taken into custody at an east-end garage on suspicion of carrying a concealed weapon.

Mr. Vial said in a statement that the companies are showing a negative attitude by not agreeing to negotiate with the fraternity.

Of the fraternity's request for recognition, a spokesman for Shell said today such recognition is impossible because the group represents "only a very small minority of Shell dealers."

ONLY FOUR OPEN

He said that of Shell's 16 dealers in Montreal, all but four are closed down.

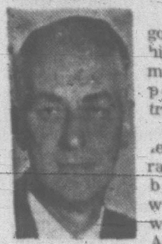
Victoria Daily Times

VICTORIA, B.C., WEDNESDAY, JULY 7, 1965—PAGE 19

Arthur Mayse

We come now to a chapter in our up-Island pilgrimage which I'm writing only that those who follow may take warning. It has to do with the travails imposed on us by our car, a vehicle no longer in its kitten years. Nevertheless, it started out bravely enough from Victoria with a new travel trailer towing astern.



We had a good equalizer hitch. That's mighty important to trailering.

The minor leak in the radiator had been dealt with before we left home. All the various fluids which are a car's lifeblood had been brought to their proper levels.

But the complex mishmash of rods, piping, shafts and cogwheels between hitch and radiator, I took for granted. They'd been doing their job unobtrusively for the last 72,000 miles, hadn't they?

So I put them out of mind until a certain Je ne sais quoi in Old Faithful's performance evolved into a subdued whup-whup-whup.

Even then, I didn't worry unduly. Tappets talking back, I decided, or perhaps a fleck of carbon fouling a sparkplug.

We found a nice spot for our trailer. I uncoupled the equalizer hitch at no more cost than a skinned knuckle, set the jacks that support a trailer's hind end when it is divorced from its automobile, twisted the faucet atop the tubby propane tank, and drove off to hunt up a friend in the boat-rental business.

With Parksville in view, the whup became a clank, then a clatter fit to chill a driver's blood.

★ ★ ★

"Bearing's kicked over," said the stern young mechanic.

We hung around disconsolately while bits and pieces of engine began to clutter the shop floor. Then we wandered the blazing-hot town, while luckier travellers purred past on the highway, many with trailers trotting meekly after on their neat little equalizer hitches.

"I've got a Splutz in with an occluded aorta," said the mechanic, more or less. "If there aren't too many interruptions, I'll finish that by Monday." He added, "You'll have yours back in a week."

We mooched off, hunted up another vehicle, and resumed our fractured journey. The substitute car was newer, but it's hard to love a sleek yellow brute that hasn't yet suffered enough to acquire a soul.

Gratefully, when the week was up, we transferred to our own car. It smelled right. It felt homey. We coupled up the trailer, rejoicing, and for a matter of miles, all went well.

★ ★ ★

Near the brow of a long, long hill, Old Faithful stopped smelling right.

Jetting steam from under her hood, she labored over the summit and in to the highway shoulder.

The passenger cars sailed carefree by, as I too have done under like circumstances. A good guy in a pickup stopped, and gave me a lift to a garage.

Presently tow truck, car and trailer started off in a linked cavalcade. We choo-chooed along until, from the other direction, a double-header freight rig roared past. The push of wind from its cliff-like sides set us swaying, and before you can say 'Get a horse!' we began to whiplash.

Swoop out to the middle of the highway—by a miracle empty at the moment. Then in to the shoulder, which dropped off in a steep 20 or 30 foot embankment. This not for the split second of the average highway hazard but for what to us seemed minutes. Once the trailer lurched a wheel over. But the knuckle-buster hitch held, our course straightened at last, and we came safe if quaking to the garage.

So there you have it, chums, a lifetime of automotive misery compressed into a few days. Old Faithful is now in the hands of two eminent Victoria car specialists for further surgery, and I have some advice for all who plan to go trailering:

Make sure your car is sound. Equip it with a recommended hitch. And in your gear, swaddled against breakage, pack a bottle of well-aged drinking whisky . . . because, believe me, a time will come when you'll find a use for it!

Hurried Burglar Drops Safe

A burglar in a hurry to get away from the scene of his crime dropped a stolen safe from the back of his truck at a downtown intersection shortly before midnight Tuesday.

City police arrested a man a few hours after the safe was recovered.

In court this morning Clifford Piper, 2943 Bridge, was charged with breaking, entering and theft at Bluebird Cabs, 708 Johnson, and with unlawful possession of a safe stolen from Bluebird Cabs.

He elected trial by judge and jury. Bail was set at $1,000 cash or one surety.

Crown Prosecutor Peter Birkett said exhibits in the case will have to be tested at the Vancouver crime laboratory. Piper was remanded one week when a date will be set for preliminary hearing of the charges against him.

City police said a service station attendant, Bob Dunsmuir, 94 West Maddock, noticed the safe when it fell out of a truck at Johnson and Blanshard.

Mr. Dunsmuir heard the thud as the safe hit the ground. He looked over and saw the truck swing quickly left on Blanshard and take off at high speed.

U.S. Ban 'Severe Blow'

U.S. ban on imports of B.C. rooted crops has dealt a severe blow to the Vancouver Island and mainland seed potato industry.

The ban, which includes plants with soil attached, was imposed by the U.S. government until the areas of the golden nematode infestations are known in the province.

Federal plant inspectors are presently conducting soil testing for nematodes on island and mainland potato farms.

"The embargo will hurt seed potato farmers beyond question," Don Wilson, chairman of the Island Vegetable Co-operative Association, said today.

The Island exports to Washington and Oregon annually 25 carloads of seed potatoes — about 500 tons.

NOT SURPRISED

Mr. Wilson said he heard of the embargo Tuesday, but wasn't surprised.

He hoped representation would be made to Washington to lift the ban as soon as the extent of the infestation is known in the province.

He felt farm lands north of Ladysmith were free of the potato and tomato pests.

"Soil tests were conducted two years ago for the root rot nematode—another species of nematode," he said. "We were given a clean bill of health."

Federal plant inspectors expect to complete the golden nematode survey on potato farms by fall—in time for them to move their crops.

Clar Nelson, assistant field crop commissioner, said plant inspectors were presently concentrating the survey on potato farms and nurseries.

Meanwhile, researchers at the Patricia Bay airport laboratory, reported that it has been definitely established that the pest is on two separate farms owned by the man who orginally reported the infestation.

Saanichton Fair Expanding With 4-Acre Land Purchase

Saanichton Fair is going to do something about its seamsbursting.

A general membership meeting of the North and South Saanich Agricultural Society gave the go-ahead Tuesday night to a plan to buy four acres of property adjoining the fair grounds to the north, adjacent to an area that has been used as the main parking area in the past years.

It will expand the fair grounds to 17 acres.

Negotiations for the purchase were carried out by fair board president Bert Doney who said increasing popularity of the fair, and rising land values warranted the action.

In discussion of the move, it was suggested the time was fast approaching for a general reorganization of the grounds and buildings with improvements in all sections.

CENTENNIAL COMMITTEE APPEALS . . . . . . TO GREATER VICTORIA FOR VOTE

Ideas Narrowed to Four—Now It Is Up to YOU

Victorians today have a chance to help select a Greater Victoria joint centennial project from four suggested schemes covering sports, education and entertainment.

The Times, in co-operation with Greater Victoria Canadian confederation centennial committee, is publishing a ballot asking citizens to vote preference for:

- ● A planetarium;
- ● A multiple sports stadium complex with provision for indoor sports auditorium;
- ● A glass-domed pavilion at Clover Point;
- ● An outdoor salt water swimming pool.

Committee projects chairman Bruce Humber said today the list of 46 projects submitted by organizations and the general public up to July 1 deadline was narrowed after many meetings.

MANY FACTORS

"In making the decisions which brought the number of projects down to four, a number of factors had to be considered," he said.

"First, the projects which will be or could normally be carried out by either federal, provincial or municipal funds in the normal course of events had to be eliminated.

"The centennial project has to be one which would not normally be done.

"Second, projects which were not considered wide enough in scope, covering the need of the four municipalities involved—Oak Bay, Saanich, Victoria and Esquimalt—had to be eliminated.

'TOO COSTLY . . .'

"Third, some projects obviously were too costly to be considered.

(About $450,000 will be available.)

"Your committee feels that with the help of The Times ballot it will reach a decision before the end of July and will forward this decision to the proper authorities for their consideration," Mr. Humber said.

When a final project is selected, the four municipalities must agree to its acceptance.

PLEASED AT RESPONSE

Mr. Humber noted many fine projects were submitted. He was pleased with the response to the committee's request for ideas.

About 25 per cent of the suggestions covered sports projects, many of them seeking a stadium complex. A brief submitted by the centennial stadium committee of Greater Victoria Sports Council was selected as most detailed and typical.

PROJECTS LINKED

This is complemented by a brief from the Victoria and District Amateur Basketball Association asking for an indoor sports auditorium and the committee linked them into one project for purposes of the ballot.

Mr. Humber explained there would not be enough money to do both, but that they should both be allowed for on the same site for future development.

Indoor facilities suggested would accommodate 2,200 spectators for basketball, volleyball and badminton games. Total cost estimated including land would be $441,000.

15,000 SEATING

The outdoor complex should have seating for 15,000, parking for 3,000 autos on a 25-acre site, the sports council suggested.

Initially, 5,000 seats would be needed for a total cost of $400,000, not counting land.

The planetarium brief was submitted by Victoria centre of the Royal Astronomical Society of Canada. It would be an educational, cultural and entertainment facility with seating in the main theatre for 200 persons and 150 more in a lecture theatre.

Estimated cost is $469,000 excluding land.

SMALL THEATRE

The pavilion idea was submitted by R. B. Shaw, 1277 Rockland, who proposed a small theatre, auditorium, restaurant and facilities for orchestral concerts, dancing, small conventions, tearoom or coffee bar.

S. T. FitzPatrick, 1370 Oliver, suggested the outdoor pool for construction on the beach at Gyro Park, Cadboro Bay.

He said Vancouver's Kitsilano pool might be used as a rough guide for estimating cost.

To such ideas as Gorge beautification, the committee felt the amount of money required to be spent would not show tangible enough results; an aquarium would duplicate Oak Bay Marina's undersea garden; Royal Athletic Park redevelopment is a Victoria city responsibility; a centre for the performing arts will be handled by other funds.

Regional parks are covered by provincial legislation; a competition for prizes in the creative arts suggested by the late Ald. Austin Curtis was referred to centennial celebrations committee for possible consideration.

The ballot will appear daily and as they are sent in by readers, The Times will summarize the trend and preferences as a daily feature.

WHICH ONE?

Here is your chance to express your view on a centennial project for Greater Victoria.

The centennial committee Tuesday night winnowed down to four the number of projects still in the running.

To assist the committee in finding out the preference of the public The Times will run the following ballot daily until the end of the month when final decision will be made.

All you do is mark a cross against your choice and mail to "Times Centennial Project Ballot," 2631 Douglas Street, Victoria.

These are the four projects;

1. Planetarium ☐
2. Stadium complex with provision for immediate or future construction of indoor sports facilities ☐
3. Glass-domed pavilion at Clover Point ☐
4. Outdoor saltwater pool at Cadboro Bay ☐

HABITUAL TRIAL DELAYED

Supreme Court To Hear Appeal

Habitual criminal proceedings against a 26-year-old Victoria man have been delayed to allow him to appeal a conviction to the Supreme Court of Canada.

John L. Smith was convicted earlier this year of attempting breaking and entering of a store in downtown Victoria.

After his conviction the Crown instituted proceedings to have him declared an habitual criminal who should be held in indefinite detention in the public interest.

Smith, however, appealed the conviction to the Court of Appeal of B.C. His appeal asked the court to consider new evidence of identification.

REJECTED

The court unanimously rejected the appeal and the date of Aug. 3 was set for the start of the habitual criminal proceedings.

In city court today Special Crown Prosecutor Terry O'Grady said Smith has now appealed to the Supreme Court of Canada.

Smith's lawyer, John McAlpine of Vancouver, said the appeal is based on three grounds, all dealing with the question of identification.

Smith was originally convicted mainly on evidence by a janitor who saw two men attempt to break into a store. The janitor raised the alarm and chased one of the men.

Mr. McAlpine said the appeal to the Supreme Court will ask if the B.C. Court of Appeal erred in not allowing new evidence on the identification.

Mr. McAlpine said there is evidence of a profound similarity between Smith and another person but the B.C. Appeal Court did not think this was relevant.

He said the B.C. Appeal Court also found that "the fact Smith could have given evidence and didn't can be taken as an inference against him."

ERRED?

Mr. McAlpine said the Supreme Court will be asked to say if the court erred in taking this point of view.

The third ground for appeal is that Magistrate William Ostler may have erred in holding there was sufficient evidence of identification to convict Smith. The appeal states that witnesses had only a limited opportunity to observe the burglars during the course of a pursuit. The appeal also takes note that the police failed to hold a line-up in the case.

The case was remanded today to Aug. 3 to await disposition of the new appeal and set a new date for a hearing if necessary.

Esquimalt Awaits View Royal Word On Merger Move

Esquimalt is waiting for word from View Royal before the next steps can be taken on the amalgamation of the two areas, Esquimalt Reeve A. C. Wurtele said today.

Both groups must make their own arrangements for a study of amalgamation problems and sharing the costs of a study.

A retired deputy minister of municipal affairs, B. C. Bracewell, said today he has been asked if he is available to handle the study, but declined to indicate his answer.

Main issue will be to establish a suitable tax structure for View Royal should it merge with Esquimalt.

TOUR PARTIES BIG BUSINESS

The Empress Hotel is serving an average of 300 meals a day to tour parties from many parts of Canada and the United States.

And the daily average of tour parties is around 14.

Today's tours originated in Chicago, New York, Philadelphia and San Francisco. Most of them come to Victoria from Seattle, then move on to Banff and Lake Louise, and return to the United States via Vancouver.

New Dimension For B.C. Votes

By JOHN MIKA
Times Legislative Reporter

The New Democratic Party today offered a "new dimension in government"—primarily by greater participation in the business world—in return for election as the B.C. government.

NDP Leader Robert Strachan released the multi-point statement of objectives drafted by a policy committee following the party's recent annual convention.

It featured plans to:

Establish a Bureau of Automation and Technology to help guide the province away from "social dislocation and chaos";

Launch a government-sponsored life insurance company as well as the long-advocated government car and fire insurance plans;

Create a county system and re-allocate provincial-municipal financial responsibilities;

BANKING AGENCY

Start a "banking agency in which the government will hold a substantial interest" which Mr. Strachan said could be either a chartered bank or an industrial development bank;

Ensure crown ownership of timber and its exploitation by all types of crown corporations.

The proposed ventures into life insurance, the lumbering industry and money-lending business were specific items in a general objective of "plans to finance social needs from profits of investment in industry and government enterprises."

It said the investment money would come from the capital reserves slated for the province from the Canada Pension Plan.

Other goals set as official policy repeated previous themes.

APPOINT OMBUDSMAN

These included: No reclassification of provincial parks without specific legislative approvals; appointment of an ombudsman, citizen rights to sue the government; adoption of oral question period and a Hansard in the legislature.

The policy also said the NDP would appoint an independent commission to redistribute B.C. constituencies and would lower the voting age to 18.

A system of public defenders to ensure no one was tried in B.C. courts without a lawyer would be instituted along with a law reform committee composed of jurists, lawyers and law professors.

A provincial bill of rights would be enacted.

TOPICS of the DAY

Magistrate William Ostler Tuesday convicted Donald French, 532 Dallas Road, of impaired driving and imposed a $300 fine.

Evidence showed French was found behind the steering wheel of his car at the scene of an accident at Dallas and St. Lawrence April 19.

The magistrate said there was no evidence of who had been driving or when the accident occurred. However French admitted at the time being the driver although he later denied it.

The magistrate said French's admission was consistent with the facts.

Ray Hadfield, B.C. Motor Vehicle Superintendent, said Tuesday unofficial figures to the end of June show a three per cent rise in traffic accidents but an alarming 22.5 per cent jump in road deaths.

Eleven of the fatalities involved motorcyclists, compared with only one such death in the first half of 1964.

Hotel Talks Break Down; Go to Board

Conciliation talks between both sides in the Empress Hotel contract dispute broke down Tuesday and a conciliation board will be formed.

The move was recommended by conciliation officer W. T. McLaughlin after only one meeting.

The conciliation board, composed of a representative from each side and an independent chairman, will hold hearings and make a report, possibly in three or four weeks.

Large Operation In Stolen Goods Nets 18 Months

Janos Puskas, 1020 Catherine, was given an 18-month jail term Tuesday when sentenced in city court on one charge of breaking and entering and seven counts of unlawful possession of property.

Mihally Molnar, same address, who was described by the magistrate as a "follower" of Puskas, was given a suspended sentence for breaking and entering.

The two were convicted of breaking and entering at the YMCA construction site April 1. Puskas was also convicted on possession charges dealing with construction materials.

Magistrate William Ostler said evidence in the case against Puskas indicated he was engaged in a large scale operation.

U.S. Ice Breaker To Be Fitted Here For North Probe

The scientific ship USS Staten Island from Seattle will be fitted with scientific gear from the Pacific Naval Laboratory at Esquimalt this month.

The ship—an ice breaker—will arrive at Esquimalt Monday at 1:30 p.m.

Four Victoria men from the naval laboratory will join the ship for her voyage to the Arctic in August. They are Allen Milne, William Burroughs, Tom Hughes and John O'Malia.

The Staten Island is engaged in year-round scientific research in the Arctic.

"Scientific apparatus will be fitted into the ship while she is berthed at HMC Dockyard," a navy spokesman said. "This is part of a comprehensive effort between the Canadian and U.S. navies."

ATTENDS YEATS CENTENARY IN DUBLIN

Swans Good Omen for Dr. Ann

By SUSAN PELLAND

Dr. Ann Saddlemyer, associate professor of English at the University of Victoria, has returned from a seven-week trip to Ireland.

There she took part in the Yeats Centenary Festival at Dublin celebrating the birth of the Irish poet-playwright in 1865.

Dr. Saddlemyer is a recognized scholar in the field of Irish prose and poetry and was responsible for the production of the Yeats Festival held here in March of this year.

The result of this festival was the publication of her book "The World of W. B. Yeats" edited by Dr. Saddlemyer and Robin Skelton, also associate professor of English at the university.

NEW BOOK

While in Ireland, Dr. Saddlemyer also worked on the manuscripts for publication of her new book—a collection of the plays of John Ellington Synge.

Born in Saskatchewan, she considers Ireland her second home and laughingly refers to Yeats and Synge as "my boys."

Once, while she was addressing a group of students gathered on the grounds of Coole, two wild swans flew overhead. The students considered this a good omen since Yeats wrote of the swans at Coole in many of his poems.

It convinced them that Ireland truly was her "home away from home."

AWARDED FELLOWSHIP

Dr. Saddlemyer was awarded the Guggenheim Fellowship in March of this year for research on the works of Yeats and Synge.

This enables her to take a year out from her teaching to work on her new book but at the end of the year she will return to the classroom and the work she enjoys most.

Explaining why she prefers to remain at the small, still-struggling University of Victoria Dr. Saddlemyer said:

"It is much more exciting to mould and pattern a university while it is still growing. Here I have the teaching freedom I wouldn't have at an older, established university. The results are more rewarding when they're yours."

Ask The Times

Q. Is it necessary for English-born people to take out Canadian citizenship papers if they have lived in Canada over 40 years? C.W.

A. No, you are automatically a Canadian citizen if you have been here that long. But if you want to apply for proof of citizenship, all you need is a birth certificate and $1. Take both to new Victoria Law Courts building, room 101.

Anyone wishing a question answered is invited to send the problem alone to the Times, addressed to "Ask the Times" Editor. Questions and answers will be published daily.

All questions should deal with matters stamps or antiques. These should be of fact and be of general interest. The Times does not undertake to solve conundrums or legal problems. Nor will it attempt to put a value on old coins, submitted to a dealer.
